Loyalists Desert.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, March 31.—Insurgents entered a second province of Catalonia today in their eastward drive to the sea, while to the north thousands of government militiamen and civilian refugees streamed toward and across the French border.

[Commanders of some of loyalist Spain's army divisions, admitting that "the fight is up," joined thousands of their deserting troops in the flight into France, the United Press reported.

[It was estimated that more than 3,000 of the demoralized loyalists had reached the safety of French soil during the last 18 hours.

[They reported that "thousands more" were fighting their way through knee-deep snow in the mountains to escape from the insurgent advance toward the Mediterranean seacoast.

[Among the arrivals was Gen. Juan Gallol, commander of the loyalist tenth army corps, members of the general staffs of the thirty-first and forty-third government divisions, under Gallol's command, and loyalist leaders of the region east of Huesca, on the northern Spanish battlefront.

A 'Third Victory' Due for Fascism, Duce Tells Aides

Rome, March 31 (U.P.).—Premier Mussolini's private statement to his subordinates that a "third victory" is in store for Fascism led to widespread speculation among Italians tonight that Il Duce may consider another war imminent and inevitable.

Il Duce's cryptic prediction, made to cabinet advisers in his study at Venice palace after his warlike speech before the Senate yesterday, was not printed in the Italian press but it spread like wildfire throughout the nation.

There was nothing to indicate from whom Italy's "third victory" would be claimed.

By the United Press.

New York, March 31.—Herbert Hoover, who returned this week from a brief tour of 14 European nations, tonight suggested an American foreign policy of joining "in the collective moral forces to prevent war" while "minding our own business" about the internal structure of foreign nations.

He told the Council on Foreign Relations at a dinner in his honor that "in the larger issues of world relations, our watchwords should be absolute independence of political action and adequate preparedness."

Hoover also suggested a plan to reduce the area of frictions upon war-debt problems. This was a readustment of relief-credit debts, as distinguished from war debts.

Asks Scientific Exchange.

He proposed the United States suggest to the relief debtors that they make their payments into a fund in their own countries and in their own currencies. Each such individual fund would be used for extension of higher education, scientific research and scholarships in their own universities and an exchange of students and scientific information with the United States.

Hoover warned against joining a democratic front of Britain and France against fascist dictatorships.

"We should have none of it," he said. "If the world is to keep the peace then we must keep peace with dictatorships as well as with popular governments. The forms of government which other peoples pass

EDUARD BENES.

By Louis P. Lochner.
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, March 31. In a world pensive and jittery about the fate of Czechoslovakia, Eduard Benes, President and one of the principal founders of the republic, is placid and composed.

Although the last decision for the destiny of the state, 15,000,000 citizens and perhaps for the peace of the world rests upon his shoulders, he shows no signs of giving way to the general European hysteria.

This correspondent was privileged to talk intimately with the President for 45 minutes.

In keeping with international usage, visitors to the beautiful Palace Hradshin, overlooking the Moldau, must not quote the President.

Attitude of Benes.

Foremost, it was evident from the President's attitude that the object nearest to the heart of this Czechoslovak patriot is that of solving the complicated nationality problem of Czechoslovakia during his Presidential administration.

(Benes became President December 18, 1935. His term of office is seven years.)

Benes and the government are aiming at a solution which shall insure spiritual and cultural autonomy to all minorities, including the powerful Germans, and which shall give the greatest possible measure of local self-government to the various national groups in the sections in which they clearly prediminate.

This means that in purely Ger-

Move for Lebrun As Premier Gets Warning of Labor

Paris, March 31 (AP).—A campaign by war veterans to enlist President Albert Lebrun as head of a "public safety" cabinet met with a warning from France's labor czar tonight that his 5,000,000 followers would "go the limit" to prevent it.

Street Battle Bars Japanese Suchow Drive

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Friday), April 1.—Bloody fighting surged through the barricaded streets of Taierchwang today with the success of Japan's drive toward Suchow hanging on the outcome.

About 10,000 Chinese wielded big broadswords against the bayonets of an equal Japanese force in primitive contact fighting. Hand grenades and machine gun fire at 50 yards also played a deadly part in the fierce battle which has continued for days.

Japanese reported they held the northeast and northwest corners of the little city, much of which was in flames. Taierchwang is on a narrow-gauge branch railroad east of the main line, the Tientsin-Pukow, on the coastal side of the central front.

Chinese Trapped.

Japanese acknowledged, however, they were being forced to hack their way through solidly barricaded streets to take the city on the line of their advance south to Suchow where the Tientsin-Pukow and east-west Lunghai trunk line intersect.

Both sides attempted wide flanking attacks in efforts to break the frontal deadlock. Japanese declared three Chinese divisions were trapped at Ikow, ten miles north-

Los Angeles Zoo May Have to Kill Starving Animals

Los Angeles, March 31 (AP).—Several hundred lions, tigers, monkeys, camels and other animals at Zoo Park are nearly starved.

Unless immediate arrangements can be made to feed them, said Dr. C. C. Warn of the city humane department, "we will put them to sleep humanely."

Funds of the California Zoological Society, which operates the zoo, have been depleted and admittance revenues sharply curtailed because the zoo was damaged in the March 2 floods.

Soon after the floods, the animals were placed on half rations. Tonight the feeding was placed on a one-third ration basis.

Japanese Isle Is Inspected by Mystery Ship

War Vessel in Night Visit Was American, Tokyo Paper Hints.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Friday), April 1.—The Japanese press gave prominence today to a report that a mystery warship had entered the harbor of one of Japan's mandated islands at 2 a. m. on March 27, and indicated that "various quarters" believed the vessel was American.

The report said the ship played its powerful searchlights over the harbor and surrounding hills, then quickly disappeared.

The report caused a sensation in Tokyo.

"The mystery naturally is connected with the fact that the United States Navy has expanded the area of its grand Pacific maneuvers," said the Tokyo newspaper Hochi (referring to present American maneuvers in the Pacific).

It said the island was one of the Japanese mandated Truk group, south of the United States island of Guam.

"The nationality and the purpose of the visit by a strange warship are causing speculation and irritation, in various quarters," Hochi continued, mentioning the "delicate international situation and the fact that the world powers have started a naval building race."

Hochi said the United States had concentrated 10 capital ships, 500 war planes and an armada of aircraft carriers and other vessels in the southwestern Pacific region, proving "the recent report that America would include Japan's mandates within the scope of the 1938 maneuvers was not a mere rumor."

14,000 Exiled Storm Troopers March Into Austrian Homeland

By the Associated Press.

Salzburg, Austria, March 31.—Austrian legionnaires came home today as disciplined heroes from their five-year exile in Germany.

These Austrian Nazis fled across the border in 1933 and 1934 as outlaws from Dollfuss' and Schuschnigg's independent Austria.

They returned a carefully drilled, motorized corps, neatly uniformed as Nazi storm troopers. How many returned was an official secret, but one estimate placed 14,000 in the line that thousands of cheering, weeping home folk greeted.

They crossed the Austrian border—now stripped of customs barriers—at Rott, near here, in a chilly rainstorm. Only a handful saw the actual crossing.

Over the former boundary was the banner: "The Homeland Greets You." The roads to Salzburg were lined by hundreds of school children, and mothers and fathers of some of the legionnaires. Now and then a child threw flowers into a lorry. Churchbells rang a welcome.

Truck after truck, each carrying 16 men with full military equipment, passed the former frontier during the morning.

From Salzburg they will be transported to their own towns for welcoming ceremonies.

The first contingent of Salzburgers gathered at the Cathedral Square for a colorful ceremony, the return of the old Salzburg storm troop flags.

One of them had been given by Hermann Wilhelm Goering to the Salzburg storm troop corps in 1923. It and others were smuggled into Germany in 1933 when the Nazi party was outlawed in Austria.

"These flags once represented a small minority but they have been succeeded by more flags so that they have become banners of a majority," the Salzburg burgomaster rejoiced.

Income Levy Rise Rejected In Senate Bill

Completed Draft Tops House Proposals by $23,000,000.

Last Fight to Be Made on Floor to Save Profits Tax.

By the narrow margin of one vote, the Senate Finance Committee yesterday defeated proposals to increase low individual income and surtax revenues, then completed work on a tax bill topping House tax proposals by $23,000,000.

Chairman Pat Harrison announced he will carry his bill to the Senate next Monday, when the Administration will make a last fight for the House undivided profits tax principle eliminated by the Senate committee.

So close was the committee division on the La Follette plan for broadening the income-tax base, that a section of the proposal was approved on an initial ballot, but later reconsidered and eliminated from the bill.

La Follette Offers Plan.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin, offered plans for starting surtax rates on salaries of $3,000, and lowering individual income exemptions from $1,000 to $800 on single persons, and from $2,500 to $2,000 on married couples.

He divided the amendment into two parts and offered first his plan to increase surtaxes in the range of incomes between $3,000 and $40,000. This amendment was approved by the committee, 10 to 7.

But when the Wisconsin Progressive presented his amendment to reduce individual income tax exemptions, the committee turned thumbs down, 10 to 7. A reconsideration of the surtax vote was quickly demanded, and this time the committee reversed its initial action and defeated the surtax increase, 9 to 7.

Makes Last Effort.

La Follette made one last effort to broaden the tax base by offering his combined proposals in one amendment, estimated to increase Federal revenues by a total of $283,000,000.

On this last try, he lost 9 to 8, a margin of 1 vote.

Voting with La Follette for the combined base-broadening plan were Senators Walsh, Bailey, Guffey, Bulkley, Harrison, Townsend and Vandenberg.

Voting against the low-bracket and surtax revenue step-ups were Senators King, George Connally, Lonergan, Gerry, Brown, of Michigan; Herring, Capper and Davis.

The narrow squeak by which the plan was defeated in committee made certain another test of strength on the Senate floor, where La Follette hopes to muster greater strength.

Before winding up work on the bill, the committee approved a plan to prevent tax avoidance by individ-

Hope Is Gone For Six Lost Navy Fliers

(Pictures on Page 18.)

By the Associated Press.

Honolulu, March 31.—Hope for six Navy fliers aboard a missing bomber was abandoned tonight by Naval officials directing an unprecedented search amid casualty-strewn Pacific maneuvers.

Officers, although continuing the hunt, expressed belief the six men died when the plane fell into the sea yesterday morning, a few hours after five other fliers had been killed in the crash of another bomber.

The second tragedy culminated a week of aerial accidents in which three planes, valued at $300,000, sank and at least six others escaped possible crashes by forced landings.

A high Naval official said the accidents had not demonstrated any fundamental wrong with the planes or pilots, but on the contrary, the performance of planes in maneuvers designed to test Hawaii's defenses, had conclusively proved their value in scouting operations.

The aircraft carriers Lexington, Saratoga and Ranger unleashed 210 planes over the Pacific 200 miles northwest of Oahu Island, where the bomber with six men aboard vanished yesterday while helping defend Hawaii against a powerful attacking fleet.

Thirty other bombing planes out of Pearl Harbor joined the search.

Games Fatal to 24.

Aboard the plane were Lieut. Charles Signer; Aviation Cadet R. J. Iarrobino; Aviation Machinist's Mates P. B. Pancoast and J. A. Bingham, and Radiomen G. T. Williamson and C. R. Oulundsen.

Regardless of their fate, the Navy counted at least 24 aviation deaths and numerous fleet injuries as the result of the 1938 Pacific operations, which perhaps more nearly approached war conditions than any previous American peacetime naval maneuvers.

Fleet authorities disclosed that eight men were injured, there seriously, and five others were cut and bruised in the landing of 1,400 bluejackets at Lahaina Roads, 75 miles southeast of here.

The bodies taken from the wrecked bomber were identified as those of Lieut. L. O. Crane, Aviation Pilot B. I. Windham and Radioman V. A. Luciano.

Annapolis, Md., March 31 (AP).—Lieut. Leo O. Crane, killed in the crash of a Navy bombing plane off the Hawaiian Islands, was an outstanding end on the Naval Academy football team while a midshipman.

Crane, commander of the crashed plane, was graduated from the Academy in 1931. Three years later he was married to Miss Frances O'Neill, daughter of James G. O'Neill, head of the chemistry department of the Navy Experiment Station here.

Area Ravaged By Tornadoes Fears Floods

Storms Kill 35 and Damage Midwest Property $2,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

Threats of widespread flood damage in southeastern Missouri followed last night in the wake of disastrous spring tornadoes which ripped through five States, taking a toll of 35 lives and $2,000,000 in property damage.

United States Army engineers moved into Missouri to direct the fight against the Black and St. Francis Rivers, rising under the impetus of heavy rainfall.

Meanwhile hundreds of refugees, homeless and injured, huddled in emergency quarters.

The Red Cross said 5,500 persons were "acutely affected" by the storms which tore at the tri-State corner of Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri, hit northern Arkansas and roared up the Illinois valley in central Illinois.

Gov. Henry Horner sent company F of the 130th infantry of the Illinois National Guard, from Peoria, to South Pekin for relief work.

A Reconstruction Finance Corporation field representative will leave today to survey tornado-stricken areas regarding the possibility of making rehabilitation loans.

Statement of President Held Strategy to Aid House Leaders.

143 Vote Against Considering Bill

Close Battle Admitted After Majority Whip Takes Sample Poll.

Mr. Roosevelt addresses homesteaders in rural Georgia, page 2.

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt's dramatic assertion—"Heaven knows I do not want to be a dictator"—yesterday was used as a hammer intended to drive through the House tomorrow his buffeted Government reorganization bill, but the margin was close and leaders were battling to clinch it.

"I think the bill will pass, all right, but we have a fight on our hands," said Representative Pat Boland, of Pennsylvania, majority whip, following a sampling poll of House voting strength.

Debate opened yesterday in a flurry of overruled points of order and invective, after the House voted, 202 to 143, to proceed to consideration of the measure. Fifty-six Democrats voted with Republicans against even considering the bill.

Index to Strength?

Although Speaker Bankhead said he regarded this ballot as an "index" to the strength of the bill, other leaders conceded privately that many who voted to call up the measure would vote against it in the end, and vice versa.

Meanwhile, it was learned from an unimpeachable source that the President's early morning statement from Warm Springs was suggested by certain House leaders who had grave doubts about the fate of some sections of the bill, and thought the President's statement would aid them.

Particularly in doubt was the outcome of efforts to provide for disapproval of Presidential orders by concurrent resolution, requiring only a majority vote, without signature by the President.

Hits Majority Rule.

Mr. Roosevelt went squarely on record against the majority vote method in his letter released yesterday. He said there is "the constitutional question involved in the passage of a concurrent resolution, which is only an expression of Congressional sentiment. Such a resolution cannot repeal executive action taken in pursuance of a law."

The battle for passage was opened at 2:30 p. m. by Chairman John J. Cochran, of the House Reorganization Committee, who "assured" the House that conferees will never accept Senate bill provisions abolishing the Comptroller General's office and the General Accounting office.

Railroads Urge UnitRule;Train Limit Bill Dies

Spokesman Says Carriers Should Be Put Under I. C. C. Supervision.

By the Associated Press.

The Nation's railroads, through a spokesman, proposed unified control of all transportation yesterday as a way out of a "precarious" dilemma.

In Congress, meanwhile there were two important developments affecting the carriers. A bill to limit freight trains to 70 cars was killed, and bills were drafted to establish a special unemployment insurance system for 1,000,000 railroad workers.

The Association of American Railroads, including all class one roads, made the appeal for unified control through R. V. Fletcher, its general counsel. He said airplane as well as rail and highway transportation should be under the supervision of the I. C. C.

Association officials were elated at the killing of the bill to limit train lengths. They had contended it would increase costs by $125,000,000 a year. Railway labor advocated the bill as a measure to increase both employment and safety. The House Interstate Commerce Committee voted, 14 to 7, however, not to report out the bill, which had passed the Senate.

Bills for a special unemployment insurance setup for rail workers were drawn by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, and Representative Crosser (Democrat), Ohio.

Their legislation would tax railroad workers' pay up to $300 a month at 3 per cent, the levy to be paid by the carriers. It would remove railroad employes from State unemployment insurance systems. Railroad labor executives favor such a program, contending workers in interstate commerce are not adequately protected.

Ickes Sponsored Choice of Burlew, Pittman Charges

He also charged Ickes had threatened him with the loss of projects and patronage for opposing Burlew.

The Westerner has battled the Burlew nomination for more than three months.

'Bill' Mileham Finds District Full of Business Opportunity

WILLIAM J. MILEHAM.

President of Central Association Arrived in Capital in 1933 and Is Enthusiastic About the Future of the City.

By Christine Sadler

"Bill" Mileham, the 26-year-old president of Central Business Association, is a District newcomer who finds business opportunities and the joys of life much greater in Washington "than one ever would ever expect from all the growling."

In fact, it would take a microscope to find much wrong with the place at all—believes William J. Mileham. He likes even the climate!

His experiences here have justified his belief. He arrived in 1933, fresh from Harvard University's school of business administration and "fresh without a job." College graduates were as plentiful as closed banks, and Harvard accents were on the market at a dime a dozen.

Grabbing at the first thing that came along, Mileham became a clerk in the Shade Shop, Inc. Today, he is general manager, secretary and treasurer—and the establishment is classified as the largest retail shade and Venetian blind business in the country.

Director of Lions Club.

In addition, he is a director of the Lions Club, on the public order committee of the Board of Trade, program chairman and a director of the Washington Association of Credit Men, a thirty-second degree Mason, a Shriner, an Elk, and a member of the Reciprocity Club.

The Central Business Association is six years old and has around 250 members. It was once known as the Central Business Men's Association, but the name was changed to please its many women members. The entire central portion of the city is its territory, giving it more concentrated business area than any of the other groups belonging to the Federation of Business Men's Associations.

Among the civic improvements favored by the active association are a municipal auditorium and stadium, an increased police force, an improved and modern airport, better traffic. The organization has endorsed work of the Criminal Justice Association and has taken the lead in warring on vice in the central business area.

The association is opposed to the business privilege tax, because its members "have seen the hardship it worked on some business men, particularly wholesalers." It favors a sales tax.

"We have so many persons living here who pay no local taxes. We consider that the sales tax would be fair and hit all alike. The visitor does not mind paying a sales tax. This has been demonstrated in the many States which have this open form of taxation," Mileham declares.

As far as the total amount of taxation levied in the District is concerned, he regards it as about equal to that levied in other cities. He does not believe, however, that the Federal Government contributes a fair share toward District expenses.

"I doubt, though, that the local condition would be materially improved by suffrage. We have an excellent government and many advantages, comparatively speaking," he says.

Born in Jersey City.

"If they could get some unified plan," he adds, "they would make more ground. The people of Washington rarely have a co-operative plan on which they are wholly agreed. That justifies Congressmen in their habit of going ahead and doing as they intended to do in the first place."

"Compared with other cities," he declared, "the District has no problems."

Mileham was born in Jersey City, always wears a red carnation in his lapel, and is unquestionably handsome. Tennis is his sport specialty, although motoring strikes him as being just as much fun. He is married and lives at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments.

On Monday—Henry J. Smith, president of Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association, is next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Roosevelt Slaps At Doubters of Rehabilitation

Warm Springs, Ga., March 31 (AP). President Roosevelt struck today at those who "scoff and ridicule" at the Administration's efforts to rehabilitate share-croppers and other needy farm elements.

Informally addressing more than 1,000 country folk endeavoring to eke a livelihood out of 13,000 acres at Pine Mountain Valley homesteads, a subsistence project 18 miles from Warm Springs, he said:

"I wish others from over the United States would come here and see the success of this project. There would be fewer people who would scoff and ridicule if they could see with their own eyes."

Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry L. Hopkins and Miss Gay Shepperson, Georgia WPA director, drove with the President to the homesteads.

Children Sing for Him.

More than 100 children greeted the President when he drove up in front of their little white frame school. With a piano accompaniment, they sang "Anchors Aweigh" and "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Their fathers and mothers, wearing overalls and plain cotton dresses, surrounded the car. For more than two years 200 families—with from 12 to 36 acres each—have been trying to get a new start with Federal help by growing cotton and vegetables and raising chickens and dairy cattle.

The colony is operated by a private corporation under Federal supervision. Miss Shepperson heads the corporation board.

Bridges, in Maine, Hails Open Season On Administration

Bangor, Me., March 31 (AP).—Maine Republicans, assembled in State convention, today roared approval of attacks on President Roosevelt's policies and demands for decentralization of government.

Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, in the keynote speech, declared it was "open season on the New Deal from now on."

Senator Bridges told the convention the 1936 election was "not an election but a public auction."

President Roosevelt, he said, "was the highest bidder because he had your and my money to bid with."

Closed Bank Gets Collateral Put Up For Postal Savings

Ruling that the now insolvent Woodlawn Trust & Savings Bank, of Chicago, had no authority under its State charter to deposit collateral to guarantee repayment of Postal Savings deposits, Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat in District Court here yesterday held that approximately $454,000 in bonds posted by the bank to cover the deposits should be surrendered by the trustees of the Postal Savings.

The Gallup Poll

Government Spending Still Opposed by Voters Despite Slump in Business.

By Dr. George Gallup.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 31.—The downward trend of stock market prices and of business activity has led many observers to believe that the New Deal will authorize a sharp increase in Government spending within the next few weeks, not only to stimulate business but to improve Democratic prospects in the fall elections.

George Gallup

Will public opinion indorse a new move toward pump priming?

Studies by the American Institute indicate that the public has never been sold on the theory of spending our way to prosperity. In three separate surveys during the last four months increased Federal spending has been opposed by an overwhelming majority of voters. The latest study, completed this week, shows that opposition has continued stable, with more than six out of every ten voters against further outlays for priming the business pump.

The question put to a scientifically selected cross-section of voters in all sections of the country in the three surveys read: "Do you think Government spending should be increased to help get business out of its present slump?

The trend has been as follows:

	Increase spending? Yes.	No.
Dec., 1937	38%	62%
Feb., 1938	37	63
Today	37	63

The stability of the opposition is especially significant in view of the fact that stock market prices and business activity decreased sharply since the first survey was made. The deepening of the recession has apparently caused no shift of sentiment toward greater spending for recovery.

Intensity Measured.

The national figures in the survey, though they show the numerical line-up of voters on the issue, do not tell the whole story. The Institute likewise measured intensity of sentiment for and against spending. Its field reporters, who conducted the survey through the interview method, found that for every voter who emphatically declared himself in favor of spending there were nearly three emphatically opposed.

The survey likewise revealed that even Democratic voters oppose further pump priming, though the majority is small—54 per cent against spending, 46 per cent in favor. Republicans are opposed by an overwhelming vote—82 per cent against, only 18 per cent for spending.

Explain Opinions.

Fear of increased taxes was the chief reason given by voters opposed to greater Federal spending. "Small business is crippled by taxes now," said one typical voter. "More spending means more taxes." Others added that the spending of the last few years had contributed to the rise in taxes which is now "holding up business recovery." A large group of voters also declared that spending has been tried in the past without getting us out of depression. "That kind of spending brings artificial recovery," was a typical comment.

Voters who favor spending declared that it is essential to prime the pump in order to reduce unemployment. "If business won't spend," said one typical voter, "then the Government's got to."

Crabapple Trees Begin to Blossom In Anacostia Park

Tree and blossom experts of the office of National Capital Parks came through yesterday with the following bulletins:

The Japanese double blooms in East Potomac Park should present an attractive display the latter part of next week and probably be at their best a week from Sunday.

Some of the crabapple trees in Anacostia Park have begun to blossome and a good show is likely this week-end. A lone specimen at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue already is in full bloom. Many persons prefer crabapple blossoms to the more publicized Japanese cherry blossoms.

Four large elms which previously inhabited West Potomac Park are being transplanted at the south front of the new Interior Building at the request of Secretary Harold L. Ickes, who likes the shade they provide. Each tree, with the earth attached to it, weighs about 12 tons.

Senate Approves Sweeping Inquiry On Auto Industry

By the Associated Press.

Senate approval sent to the White House yesterday a resolution ordering a sweeping Federal Trade Commission investigation of trade policies of the automobile industry.

The resoultion, adopted by the House last week, would authorize the commission to investigate "policies employed by manufacturers in distributing motor vehicles, accessories and parts, and the policies of dealers in selling motor vehicles at retail."

Findings of the commission would be used as a basis for remedial legislation by Congress. The resolution authorized $50,000 for expenses of the inquiry.

Roosevelt Handed TVA Inquiry Plan

By the Associated Press.

The Senate completed congressional action yesterday on a resolution directing board investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority, on motion of Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, it accepted minor House amendments to the original inquiry resolution voted by the Senate. The measure went to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

Japanese Canal Across Siam Is Shown a Myth

Monkeys Chatter Where Nipponese Were Reported Digging.

(James A. Mills has spent many years in Japan and China, has covered several of Japan's military campaigns on the Asiatic continent and is familiar with Japan's imperial program.—Editor's note.)

By James A. Mills,

Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

Kra, Siam, March 31.—By elephant, motorboat, train, automobile and afoot I have traveled hundreds of miles across and along the Isthmus of Kra in search of the storied Kra Canal Japan is supposed to be building for Siam.

I can say that reports such a canal is being built are entire fabrications.

(For years there have been rumors in the Occident Japan was changing the map of the Orient with a scheme to cut a canal across the narrow neck where Siam adjoins British Burma, shortening the route to Europe by many days and vastly diminishing the strategic and commercial importance of Britain's oriental Gibraltar—Singapore.)

Peasants Amazed.

In my travels over the supposed site of this enterprise, which touched Chumpohn, on the Gulf of Siam, and Taplee, on the Bay of Bengal, I failed to find a single trace of it. I saw not a single Japanese officer, not a native workman, not a stone turned, not a spadeful of earth disturbed, not one sentry.

Instead of the canal, I found a forest of coconut trees full of chattering monkeys.

Peasants of Kra expressed blank amazement when I mentioned the supposed canal. The district, largely infested by tigers and wild elephants, is hilly jungle land presenting insuperable difficulties to digging of a ship channel.

American, British and French advisers to the Siamese government pronounced such a scheme utterly unfeasible, both from the strategic and commercial standpoints. They added two-thirds of the isthmus consists of solid rock.

Japanese Dominance a Myth.

The Kra district, some 700 miles north of Singapore and 400 miles southwest of Bangkok, has not been proclaimed a military zone, as has been reported abroad. Trains run through it regularly. Automobiles are allowed to circulate freely. I personally took scores of photographs unhindered.

I found in Siam no basis for persistent reports that Japan is exercising dominant military, political and commercial influence in Siam. The only Japanese expert employed by the government is a minor agriculturist experimenting in cotton production.

"The last Japanese officer engaged by the Siamese government served 200 years ago, but today there is not a single Japanese officer in the whole of Siam," Premier Sena told me.

Said Foreign Minister Luang Pradit Manudharum:

"Siam never will impair the friendship of the United States, Great Britain and other powers, nor jeopardize her own independence by awarding such an enterprise as the Kra Canal to Japan."

Manhandling Protested.

Shanghai (Friday), April 1 (AP).—United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss protested to Japanese authorities today against rough treatment V. F. Meisling, of Los Angeles received at the hands of Japanese police.

Meisling, a reporter and photographer for the North China Daily News, was accosted when he attempted to take photographs of the New Asia Hotel, incubator of the Japanese inspired central government at Nanking.

Foreign Fliers Ousted.

Shanghai, March 31 (U.P.).—The entire foreign legion of the reorganized Chinese air force has been disbanded by T. V. Soong, recently appointed head of the service, it was learned here tonight.

Five American members of the crack squadron which bombed the Japanese military air base at Taihoku, Formosa, in the most spectacular Chinese air attack of the war, plan to leave China at once.

The Americans assert the Chinese refused to carry out agreements made with them when they entered the service. Soong, on the other hand, accused the Americans of drunkenness.

In all, ten foreign fliers were dropped, including a Dutchman and three Frenchmen.

Britain Offers Plan to Clear Spain in June

Franco May Win Before Volunteers Withdraw, Observers Say.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 31.—Great Britain today offered a new plan for withdrawing foreign fighters from Spain's civil war.

The proposal, laid before envoys of Europe's major powers at a nonintervention subcommittee meeting, was designed to start withdrawals by mid-June.

With the Spanish insurgents smashing into Catalonia on a sweeping "victory drive," the possibility arose that Gen. Franco might win the war before the British plan could become operative.

The Earl of Plymouth, presiding at the meeting, announced the plan embodied two "compromise proposals."

They were:

First, that 10,000 volunteers should be accepted as a criterion for substantial progress in the withdrawls.

Second, that land and sea supervision of traffic to Spain should be reestablished when nonintervention commissions begin counting volunteers, but that it should be taken off if actual withdrawals did not start after 56 days.

Meanwhile, Viscount Halifax, Britain's foreign secretary, told an international audience "the English people have never remained and I think never can remain aloff from what is happening in Europe."

This declaration was considered a blow aimed at British advocates of a policy of extreme isolation for Britain.

Addressing a luncheon of the Foreign Press Association, attended by many foreign ambassadors and ministers, Lord Halifax said:

"This nation intends to be strong and to go on building up its strength . . . in order that it may make its voice powerfully heard in the counsels of Europe."

Protestants Fall in Line.

Vienna, March 31 (U.P.).—A declaration approving union of Austria and Germany in the plebiscite April 10 will be read in all Protestant churches Sunday. The anschluss will be hailed as a "God blessed achievement." A similar declaration was made in all Catholic churches last Sunday.

Cardenas Calls Special Session On Oil Seizures

Congress to Convene April 11 to Consider Emergency Legislation.

By the United Press.

Mexico City, March 31.—A special session of Congress was called today for April 11 to consider emergency economic legislation forced by confiscation of foreign oil properties and the United States' suspension of silver purchases.

The call was issued by the permanent congressional committee at the request of President Lazaro Cardenas.

Cardenas said it was necessary "urgently" to consider a law authorizing an internal loan of 100,000,000 pesos ($23,000,000), modification of import and export duties, which were increased last January, amendment of the existing petroleum laws, a change in the labor section of the constitution and about 20 other projected measures.

The loan, it was understood, would be employed for part payment to American and other foreign oil companies for the expropriation of their $400,000,000 holdings.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for the foreign oil companies announced they would sue to recover their holdings. They will seek injunctions declaring unconstitutional the law under which the properties were expropriated, and forcing revocation of the executive decree of March 18 by which the holdings were seized.

Drive to Unite Made 'Easier,' Hitler Declares

By the Associated Press.

Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, March 31.—Adolpf Hitler today expounded his aims for a united German Reich, choosing for his appearance here the ninetieth anniversary of a similar movement launched in this historic city.

An enthusiastic multitude cheered the Fuehrer as he referred to the 1848 attempt and reviewed his own present-day efforts to realize the "eternal longing" for the union of all Germans.

"National community is such a holy and precious thing to us that one can not but incessantly fight for it," he said in bringing here his whirlwind campaign in behalf of the April 10 vote on union of Austria and Germany.

"In the future it will be easier," he declared.

"Until now many people have been suffering from prejudices, complexes and inhibitions.

"But the younger generation goes through our schools and gets our National Socialist Education.

"National socialism is such a holy thing that we never wish to force it on foreign people.

"I hope to God it may remain ours alone forever."

He stressed the points of his greater Germany campaign and the one launched on March 31, 1848, to create a united German Reich under a constituent assembly set up after the revolution of that year.

Amid roars of applause, he told exultantly how he ripped leaf by leaf out of the Versailles Treaty.

"I have done this," he said, "not a breaker of laws, but as a remaker of laws and re-establisher of justice.

Goebbels Wants More.

Breslau, Germany, March 31 (AP).—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels tonight heaped scorn on France, the ally to which Czechoslovakia looks for help.

Frenchmen are accusing Nazi Germany of contempt for international justice, he told a crowd which heard him urge a "yes" vote in the April 10 plebiscite on union of Austria and Germany.

"But it was from the French that we learned this contempt for international justice. . . . What we have done is only the consequence of what our opponents already have done. . . .

"I don't really blame the French. It isn't easy to be torn by internal crises and at the same time watch a former defeated enemy regain its old position of power step by step.

"But we've only taken a small part of what belongs to us—there still remains a whole series of items yet to be liquidated."

Ex-Minister Arrested.

Vienna, March 31 (AP).—It was learned from reliable sources today that Karl Vaugoin, former Austrian defense minister under the late Chancellor Dollfuss, was under arrest on charges of corruption.

It was stated Vaugoin was especially involved in the Phoenix scandal—he was a vice president of the largest Austrian insurance company which crashed two years ago.

(Vaugoin previously was reported to have escaped into Hungary, March 13 when Adolf Hitler seized control of Austria.)

U.S. May Force Mexico to Sell Oil to Dictators, Saenz Warns

DR. MOISES SAENZ.

Warning that too much economic pressure by America and Great Britain in retaliation for the expropriation of their oil companies might force Mexico to sell vast stores of oil to Germany, Italy and Japan was given yesterday by Dr Moises Saenz, Mexican Ambassador to Peru, who is a guest at the embassy here.

"It is the last thing the government and the people of my country would wish" said Dr. Saens, for six years Under-Secretary of Education and one time Minister of his country to Ecuador and Denmark.

"We are a liberal and democratic republic. We detest the fascist ideas. Only extreme necessity will make us sell a single barrel of oil to the war-makers of Europe and the Far East.

"But first comes self-preservation. And if we were strangled economically because of the oil company affair, we would have our backs to the wall."

He pointed out that America and Britain normally buy 60 per cent of Mexican oil exports, and that this Nation's suspension of silver purchases would hit the mining industry in Mexico and cause distress among the workers.

He analyzed the events which led to the seizure of the properties in five steps.

First, he said, there was a general strike of the oil workers last year. It was based on a wages and hours dispute. No agreement was reached.

Second, according to the laws of Mexico, when such a situation arises, an economic investigation is asked into the claims of both parties. This, he said, was done by experts of outstanding integrity and confidence.

Third, Dr. Saenz stated, on the basis of the findings of the Federal Labor Court, it was decided the companies would be able collectively to pay a total of 26,000,000 pesos, or approximately $7,000,000 more annually in wages and compensations, and still make reasonable profits.

Fourth, he claimed, the companies declared their inability to pay, and appealed to the Supreme Court at Mexico City. The Supreme Court confirmed the labor report on March 3, but next day the companies issued statements that they regretted the decision, but were still unable to pay. Then, he said, the government stepped in.

Fifth, he said, both President Cardenas and the companies consulted two weeks, and reached no agreement. The companies insisted they were unwilling to cease operations. The workers demanded three-months' compensation.

"My government is willing to compensate for the $400,000,000 of property expropriated," said Dr. Saenz, "The plan is a 10-year payment plan, and we can make our first payment immediately."

"We see eye-to-eye on so many things. We are good neighbors," he concluded.

Lerida Ambush TookHugeToll, Loyalists Claim

By the Associated Press.

Barcelona, March 31.—Insurgent forces were reported tonight to have suffered enormous losses when enticed into a trap in the center of Lerida, fortified gateway to Catalonia, by a ruse of 15,000 loyalists who lay in wait for them after making it appear that the city had been evacuated.

[On Monday the insurgent high command announced Lerida had fallen without a shot being fired. A few hours later the reports were admitted to have been "premature."—Editor's note.]

Eye-witnesses returning from the Lerida battlefront, 84 miles west of Barcelona, described the ruse as one of the most daring maneuvers of the 21-months-old war.

The insurgent advance guard, composed largely of African Moors, had reached the western outskirts of the city along the Saragossa-Lerida highway during the night.

Tanks Draw No Fire.

At dawn the medieval city, perched atop a high hill, appeared undefended and virtually deserted. But the insurgents were cautious. In strategic points of ambush inside the city the 15,000 loyalists remained silent and alert.

A short time later the insurgents, advancing along the Rambla de Aragon, sent 40 or 50 tanks into the center of the city. The loyalist defenders were said to have remained silent and the tank crews sent messengers back reporting that the government forces had fled.

During this time, it was said, an insurgent air squadron flew low over the city without drawing fire although several anti-aircraft batteries — well camoflaged — were trained on them with full crews and plenty of ammunition.

Loyalists Open Fire.

The insurgent infantry marched along the broad river road a short time later, it was reported, and advanced to the main square of Lerida.

Then, at a signal, the hidden loyalists opened fire from windows, doorways and other points of vantage.

Hand grenades, machine guns and anti-tank guns contributed to the slaughter, witnesses said.

Two squadrons of loyalists fighting planes were said to have gone into the air from a nearby airdrome and a few minutes later were fighting insurgent planes over the city.

From hundreds of rooftops loyalists peppered hand bombs at the massed insurgent troops and at the enemy tanks.

The witnesses said the insurgents hurriedly withdrew.

Reich Plans Reported.

After being driven from the city the enemy battalions were said to have begun a vast encircling operation.

A government war office communique tonight said the insurgents continued to advance upon Lerida but were meeting with stiff resistance.

Another defense ministry communique alleged that Germany was installing 30 heavy cannon in Spanish insurgent territory along the French border and is preparing to "ventilate the Alsace-Lorraine question."

It was asserted that Germans belonging to the Condor legion were the only ones permitted to enter these fortified areas menacing France and that the Biscay ports of Bilbao and Pasajes had been made German bases for war material.

east of Taierchwang, between Japanese forces closing in from Lini and those attacking Taierchwang.

According to the Japanese, the three Chinese divisions were attempting to shift from near Yihsien to an attack position behind the Japanese lines at Taierchwang.

Both Sides Bombed.

Chinese, however, said the Japanese holds both on Yihsien and Taierchwang were being loosened by the flanking attacks.

Both sides made heavy use of airplanes. Relays of Japanese bombers aided in the attack. Japanese reported a Chinese troop train was bombed and set afire on the Lunghai near Yunho. Chinese said a bombing squadron raided Japanese positions at Yihsien, scoring direct hits.

A new Japanese threat against the vital Lunghai corridor, meanwhile, came from the south through Kiangsu Providence. Foreign military observers said a Japanese column had advanced more than 80 miles from Nantungchow, on the Yangtze River north of Shanghai, since March 17 and now was about 100 miles south of the Lunghai.

They considered the maneuver important as it menanced Chinese defenders of the Grand Canal sector between the Japanese Natungchow column and deadlocked Japanese forces of the Tientsin-Pukow.

tains offered the only way out."—Editor's note.]

Navarrese troops were reported to have penetrated Tarragona and captured the village of Batea in smashing their way to a point 5 miles from the important city of Gandesa.

A second column in the sector, insurgent dispatches said, occupied entirely of Englishmen, in the southern sector.

To the north of these operations, Lerid, key to the defenses of Cata-insurgent dispatches said, occupied the village of Calaceite, in western Teruel Province, crossed into Tarragona and took the village of Caseras.

Englishmen Captured.

Navarrese reported they had tak-lonia, 80, miles west of Barcelona, was announced by the insurgents to have been surrounded.

Lerita is the capital of the province of the same name, the first of the four provinces of Catalonia the insurgents entered.

Southwest of Gandesa was the extreme right wing of the insurgents, which was reported to have occupied the village of Fornoles and driven to within 5 miles of Valderrobres.

Loyalists Cut Off.

On the northern sector of the 165-mile front, the insurgents advanced through mountains eastward from Jaca toward Boltana, 65 miles northwest of Lerida.

The government's Pyrenees divisions, cut off from their bases by the insurgent advance on Lerida and especially by the operations east of Jaca, were reported fleeing in disorder.

The first body of deserting militiamen, numbering 1,000, escaped across the Pyrenees into the French hamlet of Hospice de France from where they were taken to Bagneres de Luchon.

Refugees in Camps.

As the number of Spanish refugees reaching France increased, French border officials began shifting them to camps in frontier towns. There they were interned and fed after the soldiers among them were disarmed.

French observers feared these scattered legions were but the vanguard of thousands of homeless and destitute persons, including troops, whose care would create a serious problem.

With insurgents nearing the coast in the southern sector, France became virtually the only place of refuge from the northeastern war zone.

Lerida Inhabitants Flee.

Insurgent airmen reported that all main highways from the western border of Catalonia deep into the heart of the region were choked with refugees. Many of them were the 35,000 to 40,000 inhabitants of Lerida who fled just before the arrival of Gen. Yague's army at the city gates.

Insurgent observers on heights outside Lerida reported columns of smoke were rising from the outskirts. Only fires broke the darkness over the city. The central electric light plant had been destroyed.

Government forces, determined to defend the western Catalonian city at all costs, were reported to have mined all entrances.

New Line Fortified.

If this were shown to be true, Gen. Yague would be expected to send only a portion of his forces into Lerida, moving the main body of his army around the city to continue the march toward Barcelona without attempting occupation.

To offset this, government engineers were speeding work on a line of fortifications about 12 miles east of Lerida, between Balaguer and Borjas Blancas. This line would guard the direct route to Barcelona as well as roadways from Lerida northeast to the French border and southeast to Tarragona.

2,000 Cross Border.

At sundown today more than 2,000 refugees, including women and children, had crossed the border to Hospice de France alone.

The militiamen among them, almost all of whom were attached to the 134th brigade of the Spanish government's Thirty-first division, said that other units of the division were on their way to the border.

Although the militiamen were very well uniformed they were poorly armed. Some carried only daggers and scythes while what firearms they had ranged from rusty hunting pieces to cumbersome horse pistols.

Additional French mobile guardsmen were sent to Cauterets, 25 miles south of Tarbes, following border reports that units of the Spanish government's Forty-second division also were being encircled by insurgent troops with no other escape but over the frontier.

Loyalists Strike.

Madrid, March 31 (AP).—Semi-official reports to Madrid today said the Spanish government had launched an offensive north of Guadalajara, some 40 miles northeast of here.

Predictions of such a thrust have been current for a week, predicated on the belief the government would be compelled to strike at the insurgents' rear to relieve pressure on the yielding government lines in Aragon and Catalonia.

The reports said intense artillery fire was roaring above Guadalajara at noon, interrupting a month-long silence.

This central sector has been relatively quiet since a year ago when the insurgents' Italian allies were driven back from Brihuega with heavy losses, the outstanding government victory of the war.

Volunteers Called.

Barcelona. March 31 (AP).—The Catalan popular front of trade unions and political parties issued a call tonight for 100,000 volunteers and 50,000 fortification builders to defend Catalonia from Spanish insurgents.

Japanese Volcanic Isle Rumbles, Emits Gases

Tokyo, March 31 (U.P.). — Earth rumblings which began yesterday on the volcanic Sakurajima Island in southern Japan continued today and stifling gases were emitted from the crater. The 10,000 persons on the island made preparations to leave if the eruptions grow worse.

$143,930,000 Surplus Reported by England

London, March 31 (AP).—The British government closed the books on its financial year today with a net surplus of £28,786,000 ($143,930,000), the largest since 1934.

Local Man, 23, Hurt in Spain, Still Pro-Rebel

'The Only Thing' for the Country, Guy Castle Says of Cause.

Guy W. S. Castle, 23-year-old volunteer with the Spanish insurgents returned to his home in Oxon Hill yesterday, nursing a wounded foot but wishing success to his former comrades in their drive on Barcelona.

Castle landed in New York a few hours earlier on the Conte di Savoia. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Harriet Bayne Castle, who joined him after he was wounded in the fighting at Teruel three months ago.

Bothered by his wound, Castle was too weak to tell of his adventures last night. In New York, however, he said veterans in the Spanish Foreign Legion, the organization with which he served, think the war in Spain the "cruelest ever fought in modern times."

He declared that he was still enthusiatic over Franco's cause, the "only thing for Spain." During his service, he said, he never saw another American.

Castle was wounded in both the foot and the hip. He walks with a slight limp and has to use a cane.

A graduate of St. Alban's School here, Castle served for a time in the Marine Corps and worked as a reporter on a Washington newspaper before he embarked on his Spanish adventure last July.

In February, news dispatches from Gibraltar reported that the Oxon Hill youth had attempted to escape from a rebel hospital by swimming the Straits of Gibraltar. This he denied.

U. S. Drive Aided ByAustrian Coup, Bund Bosses Say

New York, March 31 (AP).—Leaders of the German-American Bund said tonight Hitler's absorption of Austria had brought thousands of recruits to their organization. G. Wilhelm Kunze, national director of public relations, said 19 new Bund units in the East, Midwest and South brought the total to 130 in this country.

Denying that the Bund was subsidized by the German government, Kunze said the organization was related to Germany only by a "similarity of ideas."

James Wheeler-Hill, national secretary, announced the Bund would enter the Congressional elections next fall on a platform of "Americanism and anti-Communism," joining with 13 other American nationalist organizations in an effort to win over members of both major parties.

The Bund's political program, Wheeler-Hill said, would not emphasize anti-Semitism, but would fight Jews incidentally "because the majority of Jews are Communists."

Very Unusual Zephyr Fans La Jolla, Calif.

San Diego, Calif., March 31 (AP).—When residents of La Jolla sniffed the breeze today and sighted a dead whale drifting toward the beach, indignant phone calls flooded the city hall. Officials passed the problem to the Coast Guard patrol at San Pedro, which agreed to tow the carcass toward China.

Boy, Girl Who Pined For D.C. Home Sent Back to Baltimore

A 12-year-old boy and his younger isiter were back with their parents in Baltimore last night after a double disappearing act, once from their home and once from the home of their brother in Washington.

Robert Young and his sister, Cornelia Young, who lived in Washington until two weeks ago, left their home Wednesday to revisit old haunts. After hitch-hiking as far as Laurel, Md., they were found and brought to the home of their older brother, George A. Young, 1713 Kenyon street northwest. Yesterday morning they disappeared again. And after police broadcast a lookout for them, their brother found them playing in Rock Creek Park. He left with them for Baltimore.

Britain Appoints Gen. Ironside To Command Rock of Gibraltar

By the Associated Press.

London, March 31.—Britain today chose giant Gen. Sir William Edmund Ironside to command Gibraltar—the rock which guards the empire's arteries in a warlike world.

The man who once picked out the present Shah of Iran (Persia) from the ranks of his own enlisted men, was appointed governor and commander in chief of Gibraltar in recognition of a bold career which has straddled three continents.

The army's tallest and heaviest officer, he stands 6 feet 5 and weighs 250 pounds.

Friends call him "Tiny."

He succeeds Gen. Sir Charles Harington, whose term at Gibraltar expires in October.

Since 1936 Ironsides has been commander in chief of the eastern command.

How He Chose Leader.

With anarchy reigning in Teheran, the levies formed the only regular army in Persia.

The story told in England is that Ironside strode swiftly down the ranks, passing up native officers.

His eyes sought out a husky non-com almost as big as himself.

"What's your name," he barked.

"Reza Khan, sir," the man barked back.

"You'll do," Ironside snapped.

Four years later the intelligence and bravery of Reza Khan, once a peasant, led him to the peacock throne vacated by the deposed Shah, Sultan Ahmad.

Fought Against Reds.

Ironside, who joined the army at 19, disguised himself as a Boer during the German West African campaign and learned the inside of the German colonial organization.

After the World War he was sent to Archangel as general in command of all allied troops against the Bolshevists.

He put down one mutiny after another and lived through numerous plots against his life. Once he ducked a Bolshevist bullet by hiding behind a lamp post—something like an ordinary man hiding behind a fishing rod.

Now 57, Ironside knows 16 languages—all but the verbs.

He learned by studying nouns and adjectives 20 minutes each day.

G. A. R. Leader Dies.

U.S. Aide Urges Law to Exclude Cancer Serum

7th Woman Given Ensol Dies in Florida; 3 Others Ill.

The loophole in the national biologics act which permitted ensol to be shipped legally into the United States was criticized yesterday by a high Federal official as the seventh victim of the cancer treatment serum died in Orlando, Fla.

Requesting that his name be withheld, for the sake of interdepartmental harmony in the investigamental now under way, the executive voiced the opinion that Federal laws should be tightened up against entry of foreign-made drugs or biologicals which have not been standardized and approved in this country.

Mrs. F. E. Moonert, 63, of Winter Park, Fla., succumbed yesterday a little more than 24 hours after the deaths of six other women. All had received injections of the serum at the Orlando clinic of Dr. T. A. Neal, as had the several other persons now in hospitals.

Fifty-four Vials Sent to U. S.

First described in 1935 by its discoverer, Dr. Hendry Connell, of Kingston, Ontario, the ensol was shipped to Orlando directly from Canada.

Dr. P. B. Dunbar, assistant chief of the Food and Drug Administration, Department of Agriculture, said investigation has disclosed 54 vials of the compound were sent into the United States. Twenty of these went to Dr. Neal's clinic and the remainder to two physicians in New York State, and one each in Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Kansas.

Dr. Robert Olesen, an assistant surgeon general of the Public Health Service, reported arrival of Dr. William G. Workman in Orlando and Dr. W. T. Harrison in Kingston to inquire into the deaths and the composition of the serum which apparently caused them.

Three Others Are Ill.

A sample of the ensol, as it was named by Dr. Connel, arrived in Washington late yesterday from Orlando for analysis by food and drug chemists. Dr. Connell has informed Washington officials he believes the product was contaminated, pointing out that it has been administered to scores of cancer patients without harmful results.

In a dispatch from Orlando, the Associated Press reported two men and a woman were critically ill following treatment with the serum and another woman was under close surveillance after showing signs of tetanus (lockjaw). The same symptoms befell the seven who died.

A coroner's jury requested Dr. Connell to come to Orlando to assist in the investigations being conducted by the Orange County Medical Society, Florida board of health and American Medical Association, as well as the United States Public Health Service and Food and Drug Administration.

Meantime, experts from the Canadian department of national health reached Kingston to pursue the Dominion's investigation, according to a Canadian press report.

Suspect Is Held In Shake-Down Of Policy Game

Vice Squad Seizes Man on Complaint of Numbers Operators.

According to Detective Sergt. G. C. Deyoe the man was arrested on information furnished by his prospective victim, who told police about a distinctive tattoo mark on his hand. One of the members of the vice squad remembered having seen a man whose hands were tattooed in this manner.

The man, employed as a truckdriver for a Washington shoe firm, was held for investigation, to appear in police line-up.

Earlier, two colored men, two colored women, and a white man were arrested by the squad in a raid on the first block of Naylor court northwest. The men were booked for investigation at the First Precinct Station and the two women were sent to the Women's bureau.

The arrest came after one of the Federal agents went into the house to make a purchase of liquor. A few minutes later his companions entered the house, found one of the colored men in possession of a phial believed to contain drugs.

Dorsey Theodore Queen, 58, of 810 Fifth street northwest, was arrested in the 400 block H street northwest, and charged with operating a lottery. Police said they found marked money and numbers slips on his person. He gave his occupation as a meatcutter.

Estelle Butler, colored, 43, and Clara Underwood, colored, 51, were seized in a raid in the 700 block of Balls Court northwest. Two charges of selling liquor without a license, one of keeping liquor for sale, and one of permitting gaming were placed against Estelle Butler, while one of each charge was placed against her companion.

Hoover Warns Against War to Crush Fascism

Hoover

"The Dragon's Teeth."

"You will recollect we were once animated by a desire to save the world for democracy. The only result that time was to sow dragons' teeth which sprang up into dictatorships. We can never herd the world into the paths of righteousness with the dogs of war.

"While we should reject the whole idea of pledging our military or economic forces to any scheme for preserving peace by making war we have both the obligation and the interest to organize and join in the collective moral forces to prevent war."

Mr. Hoover reiterated his belief that a general European war is not imminent, since war preparations are incomplete.

Warns Against Planning.

He found a connection between "so-called planned economy" in the United States and fascism.

"It is worthy of emphasis," he said, "that fascism has always begun in the form of planned economy. And it was ushered in by the same cries and slogans that they were for the liberation of the common man."

Democracies, he said, are first infected with totalitarianism "by the plausible notions of 'cure the business slump' through so-called economic planning."

"Every step in this direction requires another," he continued. "Every step further demoralizes free economy. And step by step more force and coercion must be applied until all liberty—economic and personal and political—is lost.

Holds Coercion Inevitable.

"Let no man mistake that we in America have until now avoided the infection of these European systems. If our own so-called planned economy is not an infection from the original stream of fascism it is at least a remarkable coincidence."

Hoover said that once economic planning began "each step has required another until it arrives at Government dictation to business, to labor and farmers, of wages, hours, production, consumption, prices, profits, finance, imports and exports."

"Coercion becomes a necessary instrument," he said, "and then it is but a few steps to complete dictatorship. All opposition becomes treason."

European nations have shown better recovery from depression than the United States, Hoover said, but he added that while the average German is today better off than he was five years ago "the standard of living is higher in all the democratic states than in any of the fascist states."

Marxism "Dying."

Fascism has become a "raging power" which no longer holds within its original boundaries, Hoover warned, but has spread to 14 European nations with 240,000,000 people.

German fascism, he said, has brought "some sort of employment and security to all who comply."

"And concentration camps," he added dryly, "give security to the balance."

Meanwhile, he said, Marxian socialism is a "dying faith" and Soviet Russia "is moving steadily toward a fascist regime." But he predicted that inevitably fascism also would die.

Alabama Vote Nears.

Absentee voters from Alabama must make application for ballots for the primary between April 1 and 30, Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, director general of the official Absentee Voters Bureau, 1406 G street northwest, announced yesterday. The primary will be May 3.

man districts the communal and district officials may be German.

The government also is ready to fill state offices with minority representatives in accordance with each minority's proportional numerical strength.

In the case of the Germans, this means 22 per cent.

Confident of Success.

Benes is firmly convinced, it was gathered, that the great aim of domestic appeasement can be achieved if there is no outside interference.

Another positive impression is that Benes does not believe that a war over Czechoslovakia is in the offing.

He is convinced that Germany will not force the issue just as he is convinced that his country shall do everything humanly possible to prevent a conflict.

That the nation would rise to a man for defense in event of attack also may be taken for granted.

Joy Over U. S. Trade Pact.

There is great joy in the Hradshin over the conclusion of a trade treaty with the United States.

(Czechoslovakia and the United States on March 7 signed a sweeping trade agreement to run for one year and thereafter until there is six months' notice of termination.)

Benes sees in this pact more than a mere business arrangement.

It is to him a brotherly gesture of good will and support extended to a young and struggling central European democracy at a time when such encouragement is particularly helpful.

If any European statesman looks in top condition, Benes is the man. He is tanned and healthy looking and his steel-blue eyes have lost none of their luster.

Benes' questions and observations indicate that he continues to be the hard-working leader he was when he was foreign minister.

A heap of state papers, reports and documents on his desk bore evidence that he has remained the glutton for work he always was and that he is no less conversant with details than with broad lines of policy.

He has a saving sense of humor which no doubt helps over many a situation that is tense.

It was learned authoritatively that Benes is devoting much time to assisting Premier Milan Hodza with the draft of the latter's "minority statute" which government spokesmen said would make it possible for all citizens of good will within the state to co-operate wholeheartedly in the nation's upbuilding.

They declared the world would find it fair and democratic and denied that Hodza meant merely to codify existing minorities regulations.

Burke Lays Slump To U.S. Labor Act

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, declared last night that defects in the Wagner labor law and its administration were "a potent cause of the depression which has engulfed the country."

In a broadcast, Burke said the defects had caused costly strife. He urged his audience to demand that Congress investigate the law's administration and eliminate its "one-sided" features.

Boys Clubs Hosts To U. S. Workers

Scores of Government workers yesterday visited the five Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs in the organization's first 1938 "open house." The guests were especially numerous at the Fifth Precinct Club because of the Misses Lucille McJilton and Ann Mannix, comely employes of the tax division of the Department of Justice.

The Misses McJilton and Mannix boxed and played ping pong with club members, just as advance notices said they would, in the interest of the organization's drive for $75,000.

Volunteer workers will be addressed by the Rev. Lawrence H. Sheehan, assistant director of the Catholic Charities of Washington, at a meeting at the Willard Hotel at noon today.

Protest Slated on Shift Of Girls to Blue Plains

A committee from the Inter-denominational Ministers' Alliance of Washington and vicinity announced yesterday it will call on President Roosevelt soon to protest the removal of colored girls in the National Training School for Girls to the Industrial Home for Colored Children, at Blue Plains because of "a woeful lack of adequate facilities at Blue Plains."

Hull Informs Nations U. S. Is In Naval Race

Ends Warship Limitation on Anniversary of Pact With Japan.

The United States, on the eighty-fourth anniversary of the first American-Japanese treaty designed to "establish firm, lasting and sincere friendship" between the two nations, officially entered a naval armament building race. in which the goal is ability to meet the Japanese on equal terms in a sea struggle.

The friendship treaty was signed when Commodore Matthew C. Perry, at the head of an American naval squadron, opened the Far Eastern islands to trade. The start of the naval building race was heralded yesterday by Secretary of State Cordell Hull in notes stating the United States would not limit her war vessels to 35,000 tons.

Secretary of State Hull sent notes to the British and French embassies and to the Canadian Legation, advising them of this Government's intention. At the same time a note from Britain, announcing a similar intention, was en route to Washington.

France took another course. electing not to build super-battleships unless other European power (i. e., Germany and Italy) do so.

Texts of the notes will not be published until tomorrow. It was stated reliably, however, that they say a power nonsignatory to the London naval treaty (Japan) is presumed to be building super-dreadnaughts, having refused to deny it. Therefore, the United States Government is invoking the escalator clause of the London naval treaty permitting it to exceed the treaty limitations.

Merchant Auxiliary.

London, March 31 (AP).—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy declared tonight the United States was determined to maintain a merchant marine as an "auxiliary of defense" but had no aggressive designs on the world's shipping trade.

The ambassador, who was chairman of the United States Maritime Commission before President Roosevelt assigned him to the Court of St. James's spoke at the annual dinner of the chamber of shipping.

Error Made Tanks Out of Trucks in War Cargo Story

The United States liner President Roosevelt reported yesterday by the Associated Press as sailing from New York with a cargo of war supplies consigned to Havre, France, did not carry 105 Army tanks, as stated yesterday by The Washington Post. An error resulted in the word "trucks" in the Associated Press dispatch appearing as "tanks" in this newspaper.

The State Department said yesterday no license for the export of Army tanks had been issued by its office of Arms and Munitions Control.

The Post regrets the error.

Youth Who Fled Nazi Persecution Sees U. S. Capital

Martin Marden, 16-year-old Jewish boy who fled German persecution three years ago, arrived here last night to see the Capital of the land that is for him a haven of freedom.

The boy will speak at 9 a. m. today at Woodrow Wilson High School, where he will be introduced by Representative Sol Bloom. He also is scheduled to speak at Central High School Monday and at Roosevelt High Tuesday.

This afternoon at 5:30 he will appear in a radio program at the National Broadcasting Company studios in the Trans-Lux Building.

Roosevelt's Letter Denying 'Dictator' Aims

President Roosevelt's letter replying to dictatorship charges by opponents of the Administration's reorganization bill, together with a prefatory statement by the President's secretary, Marvin McIntyre, follow:

During the past ten days the President received comparatively few letters and telegrams relating to the reorganization bill now pending in the Congress. The pros and cons were about equally divided.

The smallness of the number compared with the flood of telegrams sent to members of the Senate is proof positive that the campaign against the reorganization bill was the result of organized effort on the part of political or special self-interest groups, because during the past five years, where there were real questions of public policy at issue, the President's mail was flooded with letters and telegrams on both sides of the question, sent by citizens who communicated with the President voluntarily rather than as the result of a propaganda campaign.

To a letter from a friend received a few days ago, the President has replied in the letter which follows. The name of the correspondent is purposely withheld because he did not write for publicity purposes.

The letter of the President follows:

"Warm Springs, March 29, 1938.

"My Dear——,

"Many thanks for your letter telling me that you are concerned over the charges in several newspapers that the reorganization bill, now before Congress, would make me a dictator.

"1. As you well know, I am as much opposed to an American dictatorship as you are, for three simple reasons:

"A. I have no inclination to be a dictator.

"B. I have none of the qualifications which would make me a successful dictator.

"C. I have too much historical background and too much knowledge of existing dictatorships to make me desire any form of dictatorships for a democracy like the United States of America.

"2. The reorganization bill now before the Congress is the culmination of an effort starting over 40 years ago to make the business end—i. e., the executive branch of the Federal Government, more business-like and more efficient. Seven or eight of my immediate predecessors in the Presidency have recommended similar reorganization measures.

"There are two methods of effecting a businesslike reorganization. It can be done by complex and detailed legislation by Congress going into every one of the hundreds of bureaus in the executive department and other agencies.

"Or it can be done by giving to the President as Chief Executive authority to make certain adjustments and reorganizations by executive order, subject to over-riding of these executive orders by the Congress itself.

"I would have been wholly willing to go along with the first method, but attempts at detailed reorganization by the Congress itself have failed many times in the past, and every responsible member of the Senate or the House is in agreement that detailed reorganization by the Congress is a practicable impossibility.

"We come, therefore, to the second alternative — reorganization by executive order, subject to over-riding by the Congress.

"3. In any reorganization you will realize, I am sure, that if it changes existing administrative setups, consolidates jobs or makes other kinds of savings, either from the point of view of cost or from the point of view of bureaucratic authority, such changes are bitterly fought by those who stand to lose some authority and by those who are so wedded to existing practices that they go to any length to prevent the slightest change which seeks greater efficiency.

"Several Stats have put into effect reorganization of their departments. These changes have resulted in some economy. But chiefly these reorganizations in State governments have increased the efficiency of these State governments to a very marked extent. That result is what we seek in the bill now before the Congress.

"4. You know that when over a year ago I recommended a reorganization bill to the Congress all parties and all factions agreed on the need for such a measure. You know, too, that a year later a carefully manufactured partisan and political opposition to any reorganization had created a ploitical issue—created it deliberately out of whole-cloth.

"5. The opposition has planted bogies under every bed. It was said, for example, that the work of the Army engineers was to be abolished, in spite of the fact that Congress, and the Congress alone, can determine who will do river and harbor dredging and build flood-control levees. It is charged that the splendid work of the forestry services is to be hamstrung—hamstrung, I suppose, by the best friend forestry ever had in the United States.

"It is charged that the extremely efficient Veterans Bureau, or the excellent Railroad Mediation Board is to be damaged beyond repair.

"I cite these merely as examples of a score of equally silly nightmares conjured up at the instigation either of those who would restore the Government to those who owned it between 1921 and 1933, or those who for one reason or another seek deliberately to wreck the present Administration of the Government of the United States.

"6. One point remains: There are those who honestly believe that every minor change, every minor detail of conducting the business of the administrative branch of the Government, should receive in effect a positive congressional approval before such changes go into effect.

"The bill in its present form makes the "executive orders relating to such changes—and most of them are minor—subject to disapproval by the Congress within 60 days by joint resolution. Let me state to you categorically that if such a joint resolution were passed by the Congress, disapproving an order, I would, in the overwhelming majority of cases, go along with carefully considered congressional action.

"I can think of no cases where the President would not gladly yield to a clear congressional opinion.

"But there are two cogent reasons why the bill should go through as it is now drawn. The first is the constitutional question involved in the passage of a concurrent resolution, which is only an expression of congressional sentiment. Such a resolution cannot repeal executive action taken in pursuance of a law.

"The second is the very remote possibility that some legislative situation might possibly arise in the future where the President would feel obligated to veto a joint resolution of the Congress and properly require a two thirds vote to over-ride his veto.

"I repeat that I visualize no such possibility between now and 1940, when the authority given is to end.

"Thus you will see that charges of a dictatorship are made out of whole cloth—even if I wanted to be a dictator, which, heaven knows, I do not.

"With every good wish,

"Always sincerely,

(Signed)

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Vain Sacrifice.

Although duplicate is a splendid game and, over a period of time, a good test of skill, there is no denying that peculiar things can happen. Some of the results shown by the traveling score sheet are hard to reconstruct. On the hand shown below my partner and I felt that we had done extremely well in taking a non-vulnerable sacrifice against the opponents' four-spade bid. To our astonishment we found ourselves below average. Almost every South player had duly reached four spades but had failed to make the contract.

South, dealer.
N-S vulnerable.

North:
♠ J 9 6
♡ K J 10 2
◇ 7 5 4
♣ K 10 3

West:
♡ Q 7 5 4
◇ A K J 8 3 2
♣ Q 7 4

East:
♠ A 7 4 3
◇ 10 9 6
♣ J 9 8 5 2

South:
♠ K Q 10 8 5 2
◇ Q
♣ A 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2◇	2♠	3◇
4♠	5◇	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

As West, I felt that five diamonds, not vulnerable, should be cheaper than permitting the opponents to play their vulnerable four-spade contract, and inasmuch as I went down only one trick against the defense that was offered I felt that we had probably taken a "top." Examination of the North-South hands convinced me that four spades, or even five, were virtually a laydown. I was told later, however, that many of the South players "guessed" the heart finesse wrong.

Let us consider how much of a "guess" the heart finesse really was. The opening lead is, of course, the king of diamonds, followed by the ace. South ruffs the second round and lays down the spade king, West discarding a diamond. East has no reason to hold up the ace, since he has only one more diamond with which to pump declarer. He wins and leads this diamond. Declarer ruffs again and is now on an even trump basis with East. He cannot draw the trumps, since he may lose the heart finesse and East may have another diamond. But surely there are not two ways to take the heart finesse. If declarer loses the heart queen to East while a trump remains in dummy, no great harm has been done. East cannot return any suit that will injure declarer; a heart return, for instance, cannot be ruffed, since West has been shown to have no trumps.

The same cannot be said for a heart finesse taken in the opposite direction. If declarer leads to the king and lets the jack ride on the return, he can see quite clearly that if this loses to the queen another heart lead may be ruffed by the defender who has been shown to hold trumps. Surely this is not a "guess."

I must admit that I was a little peeved to find that my small sacrifice had been taken in vain.

Will H. Hays Perceives Hope In Cinema's Creative Ability

Head of Motion Picture Industry Also Pays Critics Tribute of Reliance in Their Judgment; Dads and Boys to Have Banquet; Notes.

BELL.

IT IS gratifying to note that in his annual report to the motion picture industry, Will Hays, usually maligned as the "czar of the movies"—which he is not at all—has this to say: "The success and distinction of original screen plays, which comprised some of the outstanding pictures of the year, marked a significant direction in the progress of the motion picture industry. Such prize-winning films as "The Life of Emile Zola," "A Star Is Born" and other pictures of the last season proved that the studios are increasingly creating their first-rank productions from material prepared directly for the screen."

This is gratifying because it reflects the view entertained by this department in its selection of the "ten best pictures of the year," offered as a minor contribution to the annual poll of the Nation's drama editors and critics conducted by Jack Alicoate and his Film Daily. We managed to land a total of seven pictures on the final list of winners and might have had three more, except for a definite and, at the time, defined objection to three excellent pieces of film work that impressed us rather as photographed stage plays than as original film creations reflecting the peculiarly stylized ability of the screen to contrive its own medium of expression, unhampered by the technique of the traditional theater.

The three works that we deliberately struck from our list were "Stage Door," "Winterset" and "Dead End"—excellent beyond compare in their proper classification, but not at all revelatory of the silver sheet's capacity for creating its own mode of expression.

My esteemed fellow-Hoosier, Mr. Hays, of course, never has heard of my attitude with regard to the "ten best pictures of 1937," but if he had, I suspect that in the back of his mind there would be a suggestion of sympathetic understanding that might extend a bit beyond the item of our common statehood. His annual report to the industry he serves so efficiently seems to make that clear.

* * * *

"Thick-soup Bill"—and there is a funny story of Indiana politics connected with that Indianapolis luncheon-hour pseudonym—goes on in his report to pay a rather handsome tribute to those of us who also labor in the vineyard, in these words: "The process of criticism, selection and education have enlarged the dramatic opportunities of the screen and increased the box-office appeal of motion pictures. In addition to the co-operation given by educational, social and religious leadership to the better picture movement, a definite contributing factor is the character of motion picture criticism published by the press. Millions of discriminating movie-goers look to the motion picture critic for appraisal and criticism of current pictures, thereby increasing steadily not only the importance but the social responsibility of these critics. The fact that the cinema, like the stage, the concert hall and literature, has a public that wants, and looks for, the best in the art, and also has a body of critics who weigh and appraise, is excellent proof of the fact that the cinema really has come of age."

The most imposing non-commercial "show" of the year will be presented in the Mayflower Hotel on Sunday night, April 24, when the annual Fathers and Sons Banquet will be held under the sponsorship of the members of the Brotherhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Once a year these Capital businessmen make a night of it with their boys. Having been privileged in former years to observe at close hand the results of this fine spirit of camaraderie between "Dad" and "the kid," I am able, in a small way, to vouch for its value to the community. There is a spirit of understanding, filial devotion and paternal pride that sets these events apart from all others. It is an inspiration—even to a case-hardened old bachelor—to sit on the sidelines and merely look on.

This year's banquet, as usual, is under the general chairmanship of Sidney B. Lust, with William Bush, president of the Brotherhood, as co-chairman. One of the most elaborate programs in the history of these celebrations has been planned and will be participated in by featured acts from the Johnny J. Jones Exposition, through the courtesy of E. Lawrence Phillips, veteran Washington showman; Uncle Dave and His Clowns, acts from the downtown theaters; Capt. Mansfield, cartoonist; Magician Archie Engel and his baffling hocus-pocus, an impressive array of distinguished sports, civic and newspaper celebrities, a stalwart representation of the many summer wonders of Leonard Schloss' Glen Echo Park, soon to open, and a little bit of everything else that could bring joy to the heart of a youngster and a glow of self-satisfaction to the face of his father.

* * * *

Speaking of Mr. Lust, foremost of the Capital's independent motion picture and film exchange managers, as we were somewhere back there, he and Cecilia, who is by way of being Mrs. Lust, have just returned from that fishing trip in Florida waters, where they ran into Carter and "Chic" Barron, of the rival Loew interests, who also were rivals on the fishing banks. Mr. Barron, it seems, still is intent on snagging a sailfish bigger than the one that now adorns the wall of his office in Loew's Capitol Theater, and won't be happy until he does. But the important part is that Mr. Lust remembered that we went practically overboard for that tangerine marmalade he brought back North last year. So he brought back a few more cans this season and is passing them around—within certain limits. "Thanks for the Memory."

I would suggest that those who attend the Earle Theater, beginning today, to view Ernst Lubitsch's production of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," co-starring Claudette Colbert and Gary Cooper, do not do so in the expectation of being shocked beyond all possibility of recovering from their blushes.

There is a spicy quality in the picture, to be sure, but it borders nowhere nearly so dangerously upon the risque as the same producer's picturization of "Angel," for example, starring Marlene Dietrich. That was as deft a camouflage of the more salacious implications of screened drama as these eyes ever have seen. "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" doesn't go quite so far—although it does manage to get to a discussion of the comparative values of the tops and bottoms of a suit of masculine pajamas. If that seems beyond the polite social pale, perhaps you had better stay away. If you do, you'll miss a lot of fun!

Arrive on Stage at the Capitol Today

CLYDE McCOY AND THE BENNETT SISTERS.

And that would be reading, for once, in the wrong direction. It is Mr. McCoy in the lower right-hand corner, presumably tooting his trumpet. The Bennett girls are the ones in the porthole—or whatever it is. All are concerned in the goings-on of the "Sugar Blues Orchestra," which Mr. McCoy brings to town today to headline the stage revue at Loew's Capitol.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

HEDDA HOPPER.

Hollywood, Cal., March 31.—When young Doug Fairbanks shook the dust of America off his feet, following in his father's footsteps—to England, they wouldn't even use his name on the marquees of the theaters in connection with his latest picture. Don't ask why. I don't know.

His marriage with Joan Crawford was washed up—and so was he.

He did all right over there, at least monetarily. Added lots of experience, good and bad. Today, he's wanted by every producer in town—is literally working 18 hours a day. Spends half a day at Universal in "Rage of Paris" with Danielle Darrieux, who, by the way, is hiding that beautiful chassis of hers in a pair of Doug's pajamas—in the picture of course. Then he rushes to R-K-O. "Having Wonderful Time" with Ginger Rogers.

I'd reverse Horace Greeley's advice, as Doug did—go to England. Even if you have to hike and swim. Doug was always quick to learn. At seven he used to ask the most embarrassing questions. Still does, which helps make him an expert at our popular game, "Quotations."

Unlike many I could mention, Douglas remembers old friends.

The remaining half of that union isn't doing so well. Joan Crawford turned down "Parnell," for which Clark Gable took the rap. She, just as Myrna Loy, would have gone through that unscathed. She insisted upon "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," which followed that other disaster, "The Bride Wore Red."

She did very well in "Mannequin." That's the sort of role she knows best how to do. Then, too, having Spencer Tracy's naturalness and absolute sincerety wasn't a handicap. Now, I understand, she's turned down "Shopworn Angel." Why—She wants to do "The Shining Hour"—be another great lady.

When will these girls learn—to be themselves.

I saw Joan when she first arrived, one of the most vital, bumptious, effervescent, devil-may-care kids. Her greatest delight was kicking up her heels and winning the silver cup from collegiates while doing the Black Bottom at Cocoanut Grove and Monmarte. Today, or so it seems to me, everything about Joan appears to be synthetic. If I'm wrong, I'm sorry.

When Melinda and Ditty Markey, Joan Bennett's adorable daughters, visited her on the Texan set at Paramount, they received almost as much attention as Battleship, Man O' War's son. Each was wearing a gift from John Frederics. You've guessed it—hats, of course.

Marlene Dietrich ran second to Fritz Lang's monocle at the Vendome. And just after I'd written that she always looks like a moving picture star. Yesterday, she might have been Mrs. Vincent Astor.

Professor Max Reinhardt is right in thinking Hollywod should be a cultural center. But why wait to build a beautiful place to house it? The need is now. With so many fine artists out of work, and producers, actors, writers and designers willing to co-operate—with many theaters idle—why don't we set up our own theater guild, using three different casts rehearsing at the same time? So if one stepped into a picture during rehearsals, there would be two more to replace him.

I'm certain subscriptions would sell like hot cakes which would not only give our artists something creative to work with but for. That would keep our own off relief and reflect great credit to our community.

Speaking of relief, April 6, in the Biltmore Ballroom, Helen Gahagan is giving a concert for the Hollywood Guild, which Mrs. Ann Lehr started.

Boost Rejected For Income Tax In Senate's Bill

Tax

uals allowing "unreasonable" surplus to accumulate in corporations they control, instead of collecting taxable dividends.

Members voted to tighten section 102 of the present tax law, which provides for surtaxes of 25 to 35 per cent on the earnings of individuals using the corporate device as a loophole to escape taxes.

"Third Basket" Substitute.

The action was designed as a substitute for the so-called "1B" or "third basket" taxes favored by the President, levying special taxes on closely held or family-type corporations. This "third basket" levy was defeated in the House, and Senate sentiment is overwhelmingly against it.

The committee decided instead that section 102 could be strengthened in a manner making unnecessary the closely held company penalties — by placing more emphatically the burden of proof on the taxpayer.

Purpose Self-Evident.

As revised by the committee, Section 102 would provide:

"The fact that any corporation is a mere holding or investment company shall be prima facie evidence of a purpose to avoid surtax upon shareholders. The fact that the earnings or profits of a corporation are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business shall be determinative of the purpose to avoid surtax unless the corporation by the clear preponderance of evidence shall prove to the contrary."

Chairman Harrison estimated that the Senate bill in its completed form will produce $23,000,000 more in revenue than the tax bill which passed the House, on the basis of 1938-39 income. The House bill fell $21,000,000 shy of the $5,330,000,000 budget estimates of next year's expenditures. The Administration has insisted from the outset that the new tax measure at least raise as much as current revenues.

Harrison told reporters he believed the committee has attained its double objective of providing sufficient revenue and at the same time granding relief to business and industry without incidental losses in tax collections.

Before calling it a day on the tax bill, the committee voted to reduce the excise tax on automobile tires from 2½ cents to 1½ cents, and on tubes, from 4 cents to 2½ cents. On Wednesday, it had voted against this change. Provisions governing contributions to colleges and charitable institutions were liberalized by eliminating House restrictions and restoring the old law.

The completed bill drastically modified House business tax proposals. One of the first actions of the committee was to repeal the 16 to 20 per cent undivided profits tax provision of the House bill, and to substitute a flat 18 per cent corporate income tax with more moderate treatment for companies earning less than $25,000. In addition, capital gains provisions of the House bill were eliminated, and a flat 15 per cent tax substituted on gains from sale of assets held more than 18 months.

Other Changes in Bill.

Other changes in the House bill:

Extended for one year the time under which personal holding companies may liquidate and claim tax benefits—a move designed to loosen frozen credit.

Exempted from the capital gains tax utility holding company securities forced into sale or transfer by the "death sentence" section of the holding company act.

Substituted present law for House gift and estate tax provisions, to allow a wider margin of credit to the States on account of death duties to the States.

Eliminated the 25 cents per gallon increase in the Federal liquor tax voted by the House.

Eliminated the six cents per pound excise tax on imported pork voted by the House.

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, March 31.

CHANGE: Last year Vincent Astor's St. Regis Hotel devoted a considerable portion of its advertising budget to publicizing the fact that its new roof garden was to be called "The Viennese Roof." . . . Mr. Astor now is in Australia. His aides are awaiting official approval to change the name to one signifying a motif which is anything but Viennese.

* * * *

AMBITION: Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia conducted a poll of his family and household, regarding the question as to whether he should again be a candidate for Mayor . . . The results were all "No," with but one exception—his cook.

* * * *

ACHIEVEMENT: Although President Roosevelt has announced that he will contribute to charity all the money received from the newspaper syndication of his state papers, no expression has been made with regard to the royalties to be received from the sale of his book . . . The President's book will be released for publication by Ramdom House on April 28. The title will be "The Public Papers and Addresses of President Roosevelt." It will consist of five volumes, each volume containing 800 pages. The set will sell for $13.50 before publication, $15 thereafter . . . Roosevelt will receive 15 per cent royalties—an unusual arrangement, accorded only to the best-known writers . . . "Why give the President 15 per cent?" Publisher Bennett Cerf was asked. "What important thing did he ever write before?" . . . "He wrote," Cerf replied, "all these papers."

* * * *

CONFLICT: Life Magazine now is awaiting suit by the German government because of its reproduction of the Horst-Wessel song in the current issue . . . The editors, in applying for permission to reproduce the song, were advised by Berlin that permission would be granted upon the payment of 500 marks, and satisfactory response to the questions: (1) "Does your publication employ any non-Aryans?" and (2) "Is your publication pro-Nazi or anti-Nazi?" . . . Life's editors merely cabled the 500-mark fee and refused to answer the questions.

* * * *

AILMENT: Marshall Mayer, son of Howard Mayer, the Chicago publicist, is a victim of the measles epidemic now current in Chicago. Policemen arrived at the Mayer house, to post the quarantine notice. It read: "Chicken Pox. Keep Out." . . . The child's parents protested and explained that their son had measles, not chicken pox . . . "Sorry, lady," the officials replied. "We know that. But it just happens that we're all out of measles signs."

* * * *

CRIME: Alan Trower, the American representative for Reuter's News Agency, and secretary-treasurer of the Foreign Correspondents Association here, was held up by three men at 1 a. m. yesterday . . . "I'm a newspaperman," Trower told the trio . . . "That makes no difference," they replied . . . One of the men then pinioned Trower's arms, the second gagged him, and the third grabbed his wallet . . . The thieves now know that being a newspaperman does make a difference. The wallet contained nothing—except his Foreign Corr. Assn. membership card.

* * * *

ENTERPRISE: Last week, when Sam Goldwyn and Douglas Fairbanks sailed for England, they denied that the trip had any relation to the proposed United Artists deal with Alexander Korda. "I'm just going to London to say hello to Korda," Goldwyn insisted . . . Yesterday he sent a cable to Mary Pickford, instructing her to book passage on the Normandie, which sails for Europe Thursday. Miss Pickford will join Goldwyn and her ex-husband in London and there negotiate with Alexander Korda for the sale of United Artists.

* * * *

CHATTER: Martha Dodd, daughter of the ex-Ambassador to Germany, will review Ambassador Hugh Wilson's "Education of a Diplomat," for the Saturday Review of Literature . . . Jim Farley and Emil Hurja, who was the party's political prophet, no longer are pals . . . Tom Corcoran and Ben Cohen are responsible for the Government's victory in the utilities cases. They drafted the law, nursed it through the courts and carried the burden to the Department of Justice . . . Charles Bedeaux returned to America incognito and now is at Aiken . . . Frank Shields, the ex-tennis star, will play in summer stock at Dennis, Cape Cod . . . Cordell Hull suddenly canceled his appointment to see representatives of the League of American Writers, concerning the neutrality bill.

Offices

author of the pivotal merger title, followed Cochran to the floor. After quoting from the letter, he placed the vote squarely on the issue of confidence in the President.

Confidence at Stake.

"If you lack confidence in this man, if you distrust him, if you do not believe he will do a careful job and if you do not accept this statement of his intentions, then you ought to vote against this bill," said Warren.

The push for passage was on, and for the rest of the afternoon the chamber—packed from floor to rafters with members and spectators—reverberated with defense and attack of the reorganization program.

Vote May Be Delayed.

Leaders had hoped to bring the bill to a vote today, but they canceded last night this may not be feasible. Instead, they will move for a vote to limit or even shut off, debate some time today. If the motion carries members will go back into the committee of the whole and read the bill for amendments, and final action may come tomorrow. The immediate opposition effort is directed at defeating any curtailment of debate, and postponing the final vote until next week.

Leading off yesterday's opposition attack was Representative Arthur P. Lamneck (Democrat), of Ohio, who charged that "perpetuation of the Roosevelt regime with Harry Hopkins as Presidential successor, is the real purpose behind the Administration reorganization bill."

"If the President does not desire to be dictator," said Lamneck, "he can prevent it by ordering the reorganization bill killed."

Hopkins Mentioned.

Welfare Board provisions of the bill, the Ohio Democrat said, "would incorporate the enormous Hopkins relief machine into the permanent Government structure and name Hopkins Secretary of Welfare." The bill, he said, "would create political jobs by wrecking the civil service and permit unbridled spending by abolishing the Comptroller General's Office."

From the Republican side of the aisle, Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York, rose to charge a plan to take from Congress "the control of the purse."

Wadsworth denied the House measure will leave the Comptroller General and the General Accounting Office untrammeled.

President's Letter Used.

"It is the purpose of the House bill," he said, "as well as the Senate bill, to eliminate the power to settle accounts in the name of Congress, or to stop the misuse of appropriations in the name of Congress."

Despite frequent leadership use of the President's letter, Representative Roy O. Woodruff (Republican), of Michigan, alleged "widespread fears of a dictatorship," and insisted: "Free government is at stake here." He linked the reorganization bill with the defeated court plan.

Progress of the bill was contested every step of the way by the coalition opposition, seeking by every possible maneuver to delay a vote until the full effect of week-end radio speeches and telegraphed protests can be felt by the House.

At the outset, Representative Samuel B. Pettengill (Democrat), Indiana, raised a point of order against authority of the Reorganization Committee to call up an omnibus bill which contains two measures already passed by the House. Pettengill was backed by Chairman John J. O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee, but Speaker Bankhead over-ruled the point.

Reading of Bill Forced.

Complete reading of the new four-point bill was forced when Representative Earl C. Michener (Republican), of Michigan, blocked an effort to dispense with the reading.

Further delay was forced when Representative Thomas F. Ford (Democrat), of California, said the bill should be written in words of one syllable, so "Republicans could understand it." Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, demanded the remark be "taken down," but Speaker Bankhead saw nothing objectionable in it.

As debate opened, two of the most influential members of the Reorganization Committee — Representatives Cochran and Warren—sought to allay fears of members that there may be hidden objectives in the bill.

Hoover's Power Recalled.

Cochran said there was "no cry of dictatorship" when reorganization powers were voted former President Hoover, and that "President after President" has asked similar authority.

The Missourian assured members they need entertain "no fear we are going to transfer the Comptroller General's office and the General Accounting office."

"I want to tell you that the men who compose this special committee will never agree to transfer any of the activities of those offices to the Treasury, a spending agency, or to the Budget Bureau," said Cochran.

Warren followed with other "assurances." He said Senate provision for a National Resources Planning Board would not be accepted by House conferees, without bringing the proposal back to the House for a vote.

Report Was Junked.

Warren insisted the bill was greatly modified from its original form, and "proposes far less power than was given to Hoover."

"We didn't bring in here the so-called Brownlow report," he said. "We junked that report, practically in toto."

Warren said reorganization powers given Hoover would have permitted him to transfer all of the functions of any one agency to another, and "he could have wiped out the I. C. C." He named several Republican and Democratic opponents who voted for the Hoover authorization.

Warren was challenged by Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell, who pointed out that a simple resolution by either house could have stopped the Hoover reorganization orders. Warren countered that Former Attorney General Mitchell advised Hoover that a provision for stoppage by a single house "was not worth the paper it was written on."

Warren Wins Applause.

Representative John Taber (Republican), New York, said the limitation would be valid if disapproval was permitted by a concurrent resolution of both houses. But Taber ducked when Warren asked if he would vote for the bill if that limitation was made. Prolonged applause followed Warren's speech.

Overshadowing all other topics in the lobbies was the President's letter to a friend, released to correspondents, who were routed out of bed at Warm Springs in the small hours of yesterday morning.

Timed to reach morning newspapers as a late news bulletin, quotations from the letter appeared in the press as an offset to Wednesday's outburst in the Senate against the President's charge of an attempted Senate vote "purchase."

"I have no inclination to be a dictator," the President told his "friend." He said "charges of dictatorship are made out of the whole cloth" and referred to "silly nightmares conjured up at the instigation either of those who would restore the Government to those who owned it between 1921 and 1933, or those who for one reason or another, seek deliberately to wreck the present Administration of the government of the United States."

House Majority Leader Rayburn said the letter "ought to satisfy anybody who is in favor of Government reorganization," and Senate Majority Leader Barkley called it "a very admirable statement."

But Minority Leader Snell called the letter "a perfect fake" designed "purely as an effort to get the front page and to get people's minds off the bill."

"Was he dreaming?" asked Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware. "Did they wake him from a dream?"

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, "welcomed" the statement, but said he "did not need to be assured of those facts," while Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, another leading opponent of the bill, declared "no one questions the President's sincerity in disclaiming any design to make himself dictator, but this is not the issue presented in the reorganization bill."

"If the President says he doesn't want to be a dictator," said Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, "it makes it unanimous as far as I am concerned."

From Bangor, Me., Senator Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, said the President's use of the pronoun "I," indicates "he is swayed by his own desires, and not by those of the 130,000,000 people in this country."

In the midst of House debate, Representative Dewey Short (Republican), Missouri, shouted that "assurances are no good when they come from one who cares no more for them than a tomcat cares for a marriage license in a back alley on a dark night."

Horace M. Albright, president of the American Planning and Civic Association, last night in a statement commended the editorial in yesterday's Post on the value of a National Resources Planning Board.

"The provision for the National Resources Planning Board, contained in the Senate reorganization bill, should by all means be included in the House legislation," said Albright. He said the board would not add to the President's powers, but the purely advisory agency would keep both Congress and the President informed on essential matters of planning.

City's Stores to Close

Pittsburg, Calif., March 31 (AP).—The Pittsburg Merchants Association voted today to close the city's stores for one day next week as a protest against provisions of the governmental reorganization bill, now pending in Congress.

Telegrams announcing the contemplated action were ordered sent to President Roosevelt and to Washington newspaper correspondents.

Still Wanting.

A sketch map of the new plans for the Jefferson Memorial appears on the opposite page today. Instead of the middle of the Tidal Basin, a location 44 feet from the south bank has been unanimously recommended. As for the design, a slight reduction in the drawings executed last year by John Russell Pope has been approved.

The revisions embody several improvements. Only a few cherry trees need be disturbed under the new scheme. Certain of the expensive engineering difficulties of the original proposal appear to have been eliminated as well, though the problem of building on bedrock and of providing effective flood protection are by no means completely solved. Moreover, lower Fourteenth street traffic would be somewhat facilitated by the new plan. Finally, the landscaping called for would do much to beautify what today is a bald collection of tennis courts and playing fields.

However, no amount of wishful thinking will gloss over certain fundamental objections that still remain. The Tidal Basin is not a happy spot for the memorial. The charm of that body of water lies in its simple informality, an atmosphere which any grandiose structure on its periphery would necessarily dissipate.

Even without this criticism, the site is not satisfactory. It is too close to the railroad tracks and the through traffic which flows over the Highway Bridge. Freight trains and trailer trucks would seriously detract from the dignity of the memorial. Lastly, Washington is already overdecorated in this general section; good planning would place the memorial in some part of the city less contiguous to the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial and the many Government buildings nearby.

Representative Boylan's argument that the Tidal Basin area "has been regarded since 1901 as the proper site for a memorial of major importance" is considerably vitiated by the remark of architects that the building as now planned will face north, forcing it into perennial silhouette. Architects also protest the arbitrary selection of Mr. Pope and his successors as designers; they would have an open competition which would unquestionably better become the memory of the "Great Democrat."

Whether anything but a classical design could properly fit into the Tidal Basin frame, however, is open to question. A memorial of at least a semiutilitarian nature, which many favor, of course could not be considered for the present site.

In sum, despite long deliberations by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission which this year drew on the advice of the Fine Arts and the Park and Planning commissions, the memorial plans still fall short of giving complete satisfaction. Whether the deficiency is serious will be more apparent when Washingtonians have had opportunity to speak their minds.

In Behalf Of Democracy.

In vetoing a bill passed by the New York Legislature, which would have barred Communists from teaching and civil service positions in that State, Gov. Lehman has responded in splendid fashion to a challenging and difficult test of his devotion to the principles of democracy.

Freedom of speech and of thought, freedom of the press and of assembly are, as he pointed out in his veto message, "inherent rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the State and Nation to every citizen." Any law that would disqualify a person from holding public office merely because of his political views or partisan affiliations would undoubtedly inhibit free speech and limit the opportunity for free public discussion. Hence it would be essentially undemocratic.

Paradoxical though it may seem, the distinguishing mark of the genuine believer in democracy lies in his readiness to defend the rights of those who constitute a menace to democratic institutions. It is easy to do battle for those with whom one sympathizes. But it takes resolution and an unflinching kind of intellectual honesty to fight for those whose views are anathema to the defender. That is the position in which Gov. Lehman finds himself in espousing the right of Communists to occupy public positions of trust and influence.

"I abhor communism as I do fascism," he says. "Both constitute a threat to democratic government." But, as the Governor realizes, a democracy that tries to cope with this threat by denying to minorities the rights of free citizens is delivering itself into the hands of the enemy. Those who think they are helping to preserve democracy by acting contrary to its fundamental principles are in reality its worst enemies.

The presence of a professed Communist in public office is not, therefore, an anomaly, as some would have us believe. It is, on the contrary, proof positive that we have not lost faith in the principles that are the essence of democracy.

The Ghost Of The Court Bill.

President Roosevelt does not seem to understand the real source of opposition to the bill permitting him to overhaul the executive branch of the Government. Even the 42 votes against the bill in the Senate—about two-thirds of them cast by Democrats—have been discounted as questionable products of partisanship or lobbying. Apparently the President learned little or nothing from what should have been the greatest lesson of his career.

A single paragraph of the President's letter to an unidentified correspondent on the reorganization bill epitomizes his view:

> You know that when over a year ago I recommended a reorganization bill to the Congress all parties and all factions agreed on the need for such a measure. You know, too, that a year later a carefully manufactured partisan and political opposition to any reorganization had created a political issue—created it deliberately out of whole cloth.

Despite the President's assertion that the opposition to his bill is directed at any and all reorganization plans, there is still a strong demand in and out of Congress for an overhauling of the executive departments to enhance their efficiency. The question on which the present controversy centers is whether this task shall be entrusted to Mr. Roosevelt with only perfunctory checks upon his exercise of power. At the beginning of its 1937 session Congress would undoubtedly have granted him that power. Now many legislators in both houses are skeptical, if not definitely opposed.

Mr. Roosevelt frankly admits that a change has come over the country. And he makes a fighting effort to show that it is partisanship manufactured "out of whole cloth." A glance at the line-up in the Senate is sufficient to show the fallacy of that statement. What possible reason could such Senators as Wagner, Walsh, Glass, Miller, King, George, Connally, Clark, Burke, Bone, Tydings and Wheeler have in trying to discredit the Administration most of them helped to elect?

During the year in which the country changed its mind about the reorganization bill it experienced one of the most soul-searching controversies in its history. In the President's letter he blandly ignores the public outcry which prevented him from packing the Supreme Court. But that fight is uppermost in the mind of virtually every member of Congress and every citizen who is opposing the proposed grant of reorganization powers.

To the President that historic struggle to preserve the independence of the judiciary may be just a bogy planted under the bed by politicians. But millions of citizens whose concern is the future of democracy can not regard it so lightly. In that fight the President manifested a positive contempt for our system of constitutional government with divided powers. He put a co-ordinate branch of the Government in jeopardy to gain his ends. And the whole scheme was cloaked in the deceptive language of "judicial reform."

If the ghost of the Court bill now rises to plague the Administration, it can scarcely be said that skeptical legislators are yielding to pressure or playing politics. The President himself has thrown a long shadow over every proposal seeking to extend his authority. His regard for constitutional government is under a suspicion that mere words will not remove. Until these fears can be overcome by an impressive record of government by law and not by impulse, every attempt to expand the President's powers will meet with stubborn and non-partisan resistance.

Mussolini Clanks The Sword.

The swashbuckling speech which Mussolini made before the Italian Senate on Wednesday marked his second effort to sugar-coat the bitter pill Italy was forced to swallow when Hitler seized Austria.

Some weeks ago, in his statement to the Fascist Grand Council, the Duce sought to emphasize the inevitability of what had taken place in Vienna. He also insisted that the Berlin-Rome axis was stronger than ever. And he argued with vehemence that Austria's disappearance had not endangered Italian security. Italy, he said, was well able to defend herself.

Apparently his assurances by no means wholly convinced his countrymen. They know that German troops are now encamped on the Brenner. And Italians who remember fighting the Germans do not have to be told what this means. So Mussolini has found it necessary to make a more detailed report about Italy's defense situation.

It is interesting that his emphasis was on Italy's capacity to defend herself from attack by land, which means from the direction of Germany. Once "some (Alpine) passes are hermetically sealed," said the Duce, "Italy becomes secure." And if that did not convince his hearers he hastened to argue that Italy is now in a position to put between eight and nine million men in the field.

At the same time Italy is building up a fleet which by 1940-41 will consist of no fewer than eight capital ships and a host of other men-o'-war and is rapidly developing an air force capable of waging effective "war from above." That war, he said, > must be conducted in a manner to disorganize the enemy positions, to dominate the sky and to fracture the morale of the peace . . . War from the sky is destined to assume even greater importance in the war of tomorrow.

Possibly Mussolini hopes by such remarks to frighten away Italy's potential enemies. But since war from the air can be waged by others than Italy it may succeed in frightening Italians, too. Indeed the Duce recognized this fact by telling his fellow countrymen that if war comes the "great centers of population" will have to be emptied of all those who "are not absolutely required to live there."

This is hardly a pleasant prospect for the inhabitants of the crowded peninsula. For in every particular cited by Mussolini as a proof of Italy's capacity to wage war other nations, not least Germany, excel the kingdom. This Italians realize. No wonder, then, that the delirious enthusiasm usually manifested by his audiences whenever the Duce makes a speech was, this time, conspicuously absent.

The myth of Mussolini's superlative skill as a mover of pawns on Europe's diplomatic checkerboard has been swept into the discard. Chest-thumping and sword-clanking are not an entirely satisfactory substitute.

First Person Singular.

It may be confidently asserted that in all the state papers of all the Presidents there is no document quite as extraordinary as Mr. Roosevelt's letter of March 29, made public yesterday, replying to charges that the reorganization bill would tend to confer dictatorial powers on the Chief Executive.

A vital underlying issue which the letter ignores is examined elsewhere on this page today. But it is also imperative to notice the strange phraseology of the "three simple reasons" which, in the President's words, make him "opposed to an American dictatorship."

The first of these reasons is that: "I have no inclination to be a dictator."

The second reason is that: "I have none of the qualifications which would make me a successful dictator."

The third reason is that: "I have too much historical background and too much knowledge of existing dictatorships to make me desire" substitution of dictatorship for democracy.

In every case there is the same disturbing emphasis on the personal characteristics of Mr. Roosevelt himself as the chief bulwark of the traditional American system of government.

If the President will call upon his historical background he will surely be impelled to agree that identification of the individual leader with national welfare is the very essence of the dictatorial principle. From the dictum of Louis XIV that "I am the state," down to the latest pronouncement of Hitler and Mussolini, this merger of individual will and national policy is the hallmark of dictators. The real characteristic of the Fuehrer is found in the emphasis which he places upon the first person singular.

It is not because of the inclinations, the qualifications, or the knowledge of its chief executives, admirable or otherwise, that the United States has remained a successful democracy. It is because those executives have heretofore regarded themselves, under solemn constitutional oath, as temporary trustees for a democratic system, based on a nice balance of powers between the Federal Government and the States, and between the three divisions of power within the central government itself.

The American system of government, not the personal characteristics of those temporarily elected to operate it, is the real reason for expecting, and demanding, Presidential opposition to dictatorship, in actions as well as words. And therefore, it is, in every sense of the word, extraordinary to have a President base his opposition to a revolutionary change of government primarily on personal grounds.

It is to be feared that this letter, for all the cogency of its secondary reasoning, will do more to stimulate than to allay the concern of Mr. Roosevelt's unidentified correspondent, and millions of his fellow-citizens.

Inasmuch as the future of the world looks so dark, we think steps should be taken at once to postpone it.

Note to the optimists: No one ever got enough silver out of the lining of a cloud to pay for an umbrella.

A candidate these days needs four hats: One to wear, one to toss into the ring, one to talk through, and one to pull rabbits out of.

Disappoints Fascists.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Brazil's Dictator Vargas is proving a sad disappointment to Europe's brand of Fascists and a welcome one to the Western Hemisphere to the extent that he seems to be a local phenomenon and not an intrusion of Europe into the New World.

When Vargas took over he was hailed as a recruit to the Berlin-Rome axis. His program seemed to meet the specifications and large sections of Brazil's population are of Italian and German origin.

When he failed to take program and Brazil's Fascists tried to tip him the black spot they learned that fascism, too, is included in the political parties that he abolished. He evidently rejects the theory that where there is German blood, there is Germany; where there is Italian blood, there is Italy. Instead he displays a stubborn belief that all the people in Brazil are Brazilians.

We may deplore the conditions that give absolutism a foothold in this hemisphere, and say so, but so long as it is Brazilian, it is Brazil's business. If it were an extension of Europe's absolutism, it would surely become our business, too. That would be less agreeable.

The Mexican Oil Situation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was with much interest that I read the article on Mexico by Mr. Jeffery Paul in The Post of March 30. I am sure that he has set out the situation as viewed from the Federal District and had it not been for the opinion expressed by the writer would have called for no comment from me.

When he refers to the abuses of the oil industry of this country he is going outside of the Mexican oil situation to air an opinion that can only be formed on misinformation. He refers to "The History of the Standard Oil Co." as though there was something sinister in that history, yet it is the greatest pure democracy in the world today, has more tangible assets and is better governed.

"Teapot Dome," he says, "marches side by side" with this history; yet he must know that the greatest kindness ever done to the purposed exploiters for that vacant dome was when the acts of the Government kept them from spending their money trying to develop oil where it was not. There was no oil in Teapot Dome. Just what the Doheny churches have to do with the Mexican situation is not apparent, nor is it clear why a good old man should be ridiculed for an innocent fancy, unless it was to attempt to justify this last act of piracy on the part of the Mexican government, by indicating that a like situation would have been justified here.

He says the "country is coming of age" and "let us see what Mexicans can do with their own riches." The country was old when this country was young; they have always had the riches, but both the mines and the oil would still have been in the ground had it not been for the outside capital, mostly American, that went in under promise of protection and all had the same treatment now being administered to the oil industry. We have never regained our lost respect caused by much note writing. The Mexicans have been laughing at us ever since and are still laughing.

I hold no brief for any oil company nor do they need it. The ultimate consumer, also mostly American, will pay whatever loss they may sustain, justly or unjustly. But when anyone talks of "filthy camps" of the oil companies it is pure misrepresentation or willful ignorance. No Mexican ever lived as well or any cleaner than in the oil camps.

Mexico ran the poor farmers out of the Yaqui Valley, in southern Sonora, confiscated their land and ruined them years ago, made it impossible for them to return and paid no damage, just as they will pay none in the oil case unless forced to do so.

A statement of the facts and an unbiased viewpoint would help Mexico as well as the United States, but when Mr. Paul says that the elder Rockefeller gave away dimes, so perforce, Mexico is justified in confiscating all oil interests, we wonder, as they say in Congress, "for what purpose does the gentleman rise?"

FRED B. WOODWARD,
Washington, March 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree with Representative Jerry O'Connell, of Montana, that our abandonment of silver purchases from Mexico was "a most dastardly act." I'm not saying that our silver purchases from foreign countries was right in the first place, but why do we start things which hurt or benefit other nations and then drop them like a hot potato, letting these other nations get out of difficulties which we have created? This action will be felt not only in Mexico City but also in London, Bombay and Shanghai.

For the last three years, we have patted President Cardenas on the back and now make an abrupt about-face and slap his face. Our policy, here at home, of assailing big business, economic royalists, virtual confiscation of power companies through duplication of facilities, encouraging the C. I. O. strikes, etc., has been interpreted by Mexican officials and labor leaders to mean they could do likewise to American business located in their country. Over this three-year period American interests in mining, agriculture and business have suffered while Washington seemed to nod approval. Then to cap the climax, the present regime in Mexico was further encouraged by our contributions to a large part of their revenues through our silver purchases.

Somehow, to me, this sudden change of policy, not only doesn't make sense but will tear down more than it will accomplish.

Mexico is one of our best customers in the Americas, being second only to Canada. Normally our yearly trade with Mexico exceeds the amount of our oil investment in that country. Are we to sacrifice this trade because of the stubbornness of the oil company officials who have nothing to lose personally except pride? I'm sure an arrangement can be worked out to accept payment for their properties in crude oil and undoubtedly further arrangements can be made to buy crude oil for their plants in Port Arthur and Bayway at a lower price than their previous costs of production.

In 1934, I suffered great loss when the hacienda in which I had a one-half interest was confiscated. However, I would rather lose my right to any possible future indemnification for this property than to see the United States return to the 1914 and 1917 policies toward Mexico. Incidentally these policies were indirectly the causes of the present trouble.

Those of us who have lost under Cardenas, no matter what our reactions might be toward his policies, can not help but admire the man, knowing that nothing will stop him in his determination to raise the standard for the Mexican people.

This determination of his may lead to further retaliation toward the mining and other interests if we don't "come down off our high horse" and accept a practical solution to the present oil situation.

PAUL J. COGGER.
Silver Spring, Md., March 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter you published on March 24 from "Ex-Diplomat" is highly interesting and I congratulate the author and particularly our relations with Mexico.

I have spent six years in that country and had business and friendly association with quite a number of its politicians and citizens not directly connected with politics. "Ex-Diplomat" uses the words "change of government" when he refers to Mexico. It is possible that he does not comprehend the fact that since the creation of the Revolutionary Party in 1922 there has been no change of procedure in the political life of Mexico? Since then every President, every member of Congress and every member of the judiciary has been an active member of that party. Its slogan remains the same "Mexico for the Mexicans" and its procedure is to make use of the constitution of 1917 as a means to give legality to the confiscation of properties owned by foreigners. And if they do not find in this constitution sufficient means they proceed by taxation and then add laws relating to labor. They do not appear to be interested in international law, for they ignore that completely.

By the convention of 1923 between the U. S. A. and Mexico provision was made for the payment, inter alia, to the owners of properties confiscated by the Mexican government, and now after nearly 15 years this convention has not been terminated.

Not since the year 1922 has the confiscation of properties ceased but momentarily and the latest is the confiscation of the oil industry, which Supreme Court Justice Icaza styled "a political convenience."

I believe I express the opinion of most Americans who had property in Mexico when I say that the recall of Ambassador Sheffield, 12 years ago, to placate President Calles was an error from which we suffer today. Ambassador Sheffield gave his time and his abilities to promote the interest of his countrymen and not to make himself popular with the Mexicans! The good neighbor policy introduced after the recall of Ambassador Sheffield has continued ever since and the result is patent to every one. How much longer is it to continue?

There is little left, comparatively, to confiscate except the mining industry and as the taxes therefrom bring a large revenue to the government it probably will not be until it is found to be "a political convenience."

It is a serious and difficult task our Government now has to adjust affairs with the government of Mexico and it does not appear possible to do so through the friendly neighbor policy after 12 years of its failure, but if our Government and our people will cease to aid Mexico financially a solution will soon be found.

I have in mind the words of one of our Presidents which were: "The life and the property of our citizens, no matter where, are a part of the common domain and must be protected accordingly." VERITY.

"The Silver Racket."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am glad to see signs that you intend to keep on exposing the silver racket.

The Treasury issues silver certificates equal only to the price paid for the silver, making no profit at all. The silver certificates thus forced into our currency system displace an equal amount of gold or gold certificates. The stocks of gold in this country are far beyond the needs of our currency system and $1,200,000,000 of gold has therefore been sterilized. The more silver certificates, the more gold sterilized—i. e. lost for all practical purposes. So in its effect the silver policy is a complete, 100 per cent loss.

Considering silver as a commodity, the policy means that the United States has been paying 77 cents an ounce (now reduced to 64 cents) for domestic silver for which no other sucker in the world would pay more than 25 cents except for the opportunity of selling it to Uncle Sam. The alleged profit is simply that Uncle Sam, having paid a sucker's price for the article, says to himself "I'll show a profit by carrying these stocks on the books at $1.29 per ounce." Try this transaction on corn or real estate and see where the profit comes in!

Silver was once the basis of some of the world's currencies and the success of the silver racketeers is partly explained by Congressional ignorance of the currency problem. From this point of view the silver policy shows a loss very close to 100 per cent. The Government can at any time issue paper money on which its immediate profit is practically 100 per cent. If, instead of taking this 100 per cent profit, it spends say half of the value of the note issue in buying silver, that expenditure is nearly a total loss inasmuch as the silver in the vaults of the Treasury is all but worthless.

The world price of silver is maintained at present entirely by the United States Government, which has been buying for several years more than the total world production of silver. If the United States should cease to buy, the bottom would drop out of the silver market, and if the United States should begin to sell this alleged "security" behind its silver certificates, it might not be able to get more than the price of nickel or aluminum for its vast hoard.

While the issue of unsupported paper money appears to yield the Treasury a profit of 100 per cent, this is at the expense of the people who have money or wages, salaries and other income. It inflates the currency and lowers the purchasing power of the classes which have money incomes. The country is unable to get something for nothing by issuing paper money; but when it pays a fool's price for silver and issues paper money on the basis of that silver, it simply adds to the disadvantage of the inflationary currency policy the net loss on the differences between the highly inflated price which it pays for the silver and the negligible amount which it could recover if it tried to sell the silver. Cherry-O.

ROBERT BROWNING, I believe, expressed once and for all the nostalgia of springtime when he exclaimed, "Oh, to be in England, now that April's there!" There's no use saying that one season is as good as another. You know that isn't so, in Washington, anyhow. Washington, in fact, has only three seasons—summer, autumn and sinus-trouble. Here winter cannot linger in the lap of spring—there is no lap, no winter, no spring.

So about the time that the sterile blooms around the Tidal Basin begin to wither many of us begin to get homesick for England—for Boston, Chillecothe, Fort Wayne, Syracuse, Montpelier, Tionesta, Erie, Moline, Rapid City and points north. We have an irresistible urge to pile in and go home for Easter—irresistible except that Uncle Frank has just written that "they" are coming down to see the cherry blossoms, and Mabel, who went to kindergarten with you, is bringing her seniors down at Easter, and wouldn't you enjoy showing her around? Yes, indeed!

Ah, the cherry blossoms! Much as I love them, I love my country more. I have never dared minimize them within the 10-mile limits of the District of Columbia. Nor am I minimizing them now. I merely say that I saw cherry blossoms in a small way before I ever saw Washington. We had an orchard of about 200 trees. I don't say that they were more beautiful than the Japanese blooms, but they have taken the edge off of all cherry blossoms that I shall ever see. They were Early Richmonds, Montgomerys and a few English Morellos—full-grown trees, full-blown with white petals, indispensable bees and April sunshine.

As a matter of fact, I love all cherry trees. I think there should be a law requiring every American citizen to memorize A. E. Housman's poem called "Loveliest of Trees." And there is already an unwritten law that this poem should never be mentioned without quoting in full.

Loveliest of trees, the cherry now
Is hung with bloom along the bough,
And stands about the woodland ride
Wearing white for Eastertide.

Now, of my three score years and ten,
Twenty will not come again,
And take from seventy springs a score,
It only leaves me fifty more.

Fifty springs are little room,
Around the woodlands I will go
To see the cherry hung with snow.

Did you, by the way, ever hear "The Legend of the Ornamental Cherry"? I'll warrant you never did. I found it one spring day crumpled up under a bench in Potomac Park. God only knows who wrote it; probably some sensitive soul articulately inspired by the sheer beauty of the trees as perhaps no previous spectator has ever been:

Though these are only cherry trees
 Of flower and bark and root,
Eden, before the Japanese
 Munched upon their fruit
In that far day, so it is said,
 Lilith (Eve's predecessor)
Yearly would rob the cherries red—
 God caught the fair transgressor.
Under this tree her spirit fled,
 No one was there to mourn her,
 Not even Adam knew she was dead,
 Eve peeked around the corner.
Long years have passed since Lilith's doom;
 Leaves and no fruit, but O what luscious bloom!

* * * *

Yes, I love the Japanese cherry trees. I should hate to see them cut down for the Jefferson Memorial or even to see the spirit that hovers over them rent in twain by any anti-Japanese feeling. But they are an awful nuisance. They make me homesick, and they make me want to see a good old Northern spring again. I've been in Washington 13 springs now, and I'm getting fed up with cherry blossoms. Next year, dog gone it, the day I see the first robin I'm going to leave on a month's vacation and probably catch the tail end of winter somewhere just north of Frederick. And I may be singing this little "song" as I hasten toward Chautauqua County, N. Y. It was written by Harry Kabat and printed once in the Prince Georges (Md.) Post:

Once more the cherry blossoms bloom in pink,
 As thousands flock from far and near to view;
From early morn until the sun doth sink,

 These lovely petaled flowers from Nippon land;
They seem to fill your heart with soulful bliss,

Their bloom is short—they do not last a wink,
 As strong winds blow their frail forms to the ground;
Once more the cherry blossoms bloom in pink,
 But YOU can show my relatives around.

Whimsical Chips.

AMUSING, of course, is the revelation that much of the personal fortune of Richard Whitney, the former president of the New York Stock Exchange, was invested in economic dingbats rather than conservative blue-chip issues. But some restaurateurs go next door to eat, many saloonkeepers are teetotalers and Barbara Hutton wears very little jewelry from the counters of the five-and-ten.

PEGLER.

Mr. Whitney's properties included an applejack firm, a dirt mine whose product was calculated to invigorate tired land and a bug juice inimical to insect pests. These be queer interests indeed for a man in his position, and Mr. Whitney may feel embarrassed by the disclosure of his foibles in the inventory of his old golf sticks, collar buttons and initialed belt buckles.

Great men do have their whims, however.

The infallible fire extinguisher which Tex Rickard bought from an inventor was his favorite investment. It consisted of a powder inclosed in a glass grenade of egg shape, and the theory was that hundreds of grenades tossed through the windows of a burning building would shatter and smother the flames under a sifting of the magic chemicals. Unfortunately, however, in practical tests the glass eggs plopped in the blazing crates which Mr. Rickard had ignited for his demonstration and did not break up to the time of his death.

* * * *

MR. RICKARD was pondering on designs similar to the salt shaker and talcum powder sifter. He was sensitive about his patent fire extinguisher and defended it doggedly against the scoffing jests of Mr. Gene Fowler, who was his press agent at the time but lacked the true reverential spirit of the press agent toward his employer.

Mr. Rickard was the associate of many rich and socially refined Wall Street operators, included among his memorable 600 millionaires, and he always insisted that if a poor man rubbed elbows with millionaires long enough he would rub off some of the rich onto himself. Yet he was only a little brother of the rich when he died, and he had had to endure much from Mr. Fowler, not only with regard to his magic powder but also concerning his interest in acoustics.

Somehow around Madison Square Garden about that time there developed a strange interest in acoustics, and a number of fight managers and boxing writers talked loftily of their investment in a company which manufactured them. Mr. Rickard urged Mr. Fowler to get aboard for the future security of Agnes, his wife, and Jane, their young daughter, who recently fed John Barrymore a drink of sarsaparilla neat, causing him to roar, "My God, I am in the house of the Borgias!"

Mr. Fowler floored him, however, with the remark that acoustics were nothing but echoes and that he doubtless had been swindled by some clever scoundrel not above imposing on his unlearnedness.

* * * *

THERE may be some in this country who will jeer at President Roosevelt's economic knowledge, but among New Dealers he is held to possess the sum of all wisdom on such matters. Yet it was not many years ago that Mr. Roosevelt, as a private financier, was promoting a campany to trade in German marks, a company to produce a glorified tintype or snapshot gallery for the sidewalk trade and a company which was going to conduct vast retail business entirely by slot machines, thus eliminating incalculable numbers of store clerks.

That was before technological unemployment became a political and economical issue in the country, and it is Mr. Roosevelt's good fortune that the plan did not succeed, thanks be to the larceny that dwells in the human breast. Mr. Roosevelt's customers foiled the plan and saved him from blame for technological unemployment by using home-made money in the slot machines, so the jobs of the clerks were saved.

Henry Morgenthau, an economic genius surely, was a colleague of Mr. Roosevelt in those venturesome days, and in view of their interest in dingbats Mr. Whitney's investments in the applejack company, the dirt mine and the bug juice may be said to have the most eminent precedent.

Indeed, the blue chip often is a bad investment. American Telephone & Telegraph was selling around 180 a year or so ago, a blue chip if ever there was one. It closed at 112 yesterday.

Commission Chairman Explains New Jefferson Memorial Plan

Following is a statement by Representative John J. Boylan, of New York, chairman of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, which he issued in connection with the publication of the revised memorial recommendations.

For the Jefferson Memorial, we have reached a decision which gives Jefferson a noble memorial, worthily placed in conformity with his importance and with the plan of Washington. The plan is to leave the basin as at present and to place the memorial on its south bank, preserving the present informal beauty of the basin, diminishing the expense of the memorial and its setting, preserving and improving the traffic approach to the Highway Bridge.

The site on the south bank of the Tidal Basin, on a line south through the White House, has been regarded ever since 1901 as the proper site for a memorial of major importance. In relation to the Washington Monument, it gives the Jefferson Memorial a position on the south similar to the position of the Lincoln Memorial on the west, and completes the great central plan of the city, in which the Capitol and the White House occupy the other cardinal points on the east and north of the Monument. From the Washington Monument grounds the Jefferson Memorial will be seen across the Tidal Basin, which will retain its present irregular outline and natural beauty, and in which the memorial and the cherry trees flanking it will be mirrored. The selection of this site for the Jefferson Memorial has received the united indorsement of the Commission of Fine Arts and of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The accepted design of the memorial itself, as prepared by the office of John Russell Pope on a scheme which received his approval, is in the classic style which Jefferson introduced and advocated for the building of the Capitol. It is of the general type of the Roman Pantheon, which he admired—a circular building with a low dome, its curved outline contrasting with the rectangular mass of the Lincoln Memorial. A surrounding circular colonnade distinguishes the monument from others of the type and enriches its effect from the Potomac. The domed interior is dominated by a statue of Jefferson. It also offers suitable opportunity for commemoration, by bas-reliefs and inscriptions, of his services to his country and to humanity in the cause of liberty.

In considering the design of the memorial itself the Jefferson Memorial Commission, from the beginning, invited the chairman of the Commission of Fine Arts to sit with it and had the benefit of his advice, and later held repeated conferences with the commission as well as with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. No less than six successive designs were prepared to canvas the various ideas suggested for the memorial on this site, and these were thoroughly discussed with the other commissions. After prolonged consideration, the Jefferson Memorial Commission has unanimously adopted the design which most closely conforms to the original plan of 1901, and seems most appropriate as a monument to Jefferson.

This scheme for a memorial to Thomas Jefferson is located on the south shore of the Tidal Basin, about 3,000 feet south of the Washington Monument, and on the center line of the White House. It is so located that the Tidal Basin acts as a natural reflecting pool for the architecture, framed by the cherry trees lining the shore. On the south side of the memorial runs the roadway connecting with the Highway Bridge and Fourteenth street, which will be straightened and double-tracked for a distance, and with a clover-leaf to relieve traffic congestion at the bridgehead.

A Realistic View Of Reconstruction.

THE CAPITAL BLUNDER of the usual historian of the South during the years after Appomattox is to treat the period as Carlyle portrays the French revolution, as a melodrama involving wild-eyed conspirators whose acts are described in red flashed upon a canvas. Thereby is created the impression that during Reconstruction, Southern society was frenzied by misery. At its best this is only the picturesque pageantry of the artist; at its worst it is the cheap sensationalism of the journalist or the scenario writer. At both its best and its worst it is woefully one-sided and unhistorical.

Of course the South during Reconstruction, like France during the revolution, had its authors of misery, its fanatical idealists and its unprincipled knaves. But the behavior of these damned souls is not the whole story of Reconstruction; it is merely a partial recording of the political aspects of the era.

* * * *

MR. ROBERT SELPH HENRY, in his voluminous portrayal of Reconstruction, does not fall into the Carlylian error. His book is an intelligent digest of the findings of many scholars. It is studiously fair in detail, generally judicious in emphasis, and most accurate in its transcription of facts. At the same time "The Story of Reconstruction" is characterized by the same lucidity and powers of dramatic expression which made its companion volume, "The Story of the Confederacy," so eminently successful. Perhaps its most valuable feature is its numerous and patiently wrought summaries of the details of Reconstruction in each of the 11 Southern States. These are set forth clearly and critically, with encyclopedic reverence for places, names and dates. Yet generalizations and interstate and national correlations are not neglected.

Ample space in this long book is given to the Carlylian phases of Reconstruction: the follies and rascalites of Negro, scalawag and carpetbagger politicians. The stories of the silver spittoons, the cheatings, the bond steals, the fatuous legislation and the other extravagances of political life in the South in the time of Grant are as effectively and as interestingly presented as in the other histories of the period. The book is frankly designed for popular sale; and it is likely to have sales among the many who do not wish the conventions of history disturbed.

But this is not all. Mr. Henry gives the other side of the picture. He has carefully read the work of W. E. B. Du Bois and the other revisers of Reconstruction judgments, and consequently knows that some of the political acts of the period were as sane and constructive as similar acts during the French revolution. These acts were concerned with educational and constitutional reform and were instrumental in putting the South, both theoretically and practically, in line with the progressive tendencies of the nineteenth century.

* * * *

ONE LEARNS FROM Mr. Henry's book that in nonpolitical aspects of life there were achievements during the post-bellum period so quietly constructive that they have escaped the attention of most historians. This is even true of Du Bois, the colored historian who so ardently defends the Reconstruction record of his race. A great agricultural revolution under which it had been possible for whites and blacks to live together in harmony was effected.. A radically new system of business and credit arrangements was inaugurated. Notably constructive steps were made in the development of industry and transportation. Mr. Henry's most original researches concern railroads. He is a railroad lawyer by profession.

* * * *

THE STORY OF RECONSTRUCTION, however, despite its shining merits, is not the ideal chronicle of its period. One somehow wishes that the author had not so closely lived up to his professed intention of attempting no originality in research or conclusions. Except in the railroad chapters, little is presented not already known to the scholars. The lawyer's conservative bias too often leads to appraisals according to the standards of legality and constitutionalism. Such standards are obviously too rigid for application to an attempt at revolution. One regrets that the great majority of the 285,000 words in this book are given to political happenings; the suggestive nonpolitical events, while made clear, are not elaborated. Sometimes the reader is wearied by the almost countless wrangles of the Reconstruction politicians which Mr. Henry catalogues. There is no discussion of the momentous religious changes of the period.

The book is nevertheless a signal contribution to the popularization of the accurate and sound historical knowledge. As the fullest single volume on Reconstruction it will be useful to both the specialist and the general reader.

Europe's Lesson To U. S.

Hoover Says 370,000,000 Have Lost Liberty In Few Years.

Former President Herbert Hoover's speech before the Council of Foreign Relations, New York City, follows, in part:

Seven obvious forces or factors have come to the forefront in Europe over these 19 years. The first of these is the rise of dictatorships—totalitarian, authoritarian or centralized governments, all with so-called planned economies.

Nationalism, militarism and imperialism have certainly not diminished in 19 years. At one moment, if we include the Kerensky regime in Russia, over 500,000,000 people in Europe, embraced the forms of democracy.

Today, if we apply the very simple tests of free speech, free press, free worship and constitutional protections to individuals and minorities, then liberty has been eclipsed amongst about 370,000,000 of these people. But today there are 30,000,000 less people living under liberal institutions than there were before the war.

Armament Race.

The second great movement today, partly cause and partly effect, is the race to arms. Every nation in Europe—communist, fascist, democratic—is now building for war or defense more feverishly then ever before in its history. In five years their expenditures have doubled from $4,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 annually.

The third process in motion is increased government debts and deficits. There is hardly a balanced budget in Europe—that is, if we strip off the disguises of words. Government debts are increasing everywhere. Another inflation in some form seems inevitable.

The fourth movement is every European nation is striving for more and more self-sufficiency in industry and food production, either for military reasons or to meet the necessities of "planned economy."

League Called Failure.

The fifth factor is the failure of the League of Nations as a potent force for peace, and its complete replacement by the old shifting balances of power. And they are certainly shifting.

The sixth of these forces is fear—fear by nations of one another, fear by governments of their citizens, fears of citizens of their governments, and the vague fear of people everywhere that general war is upon them again. And there is the fear of the promised massacre of civil populations from the air.

The seventh force is the steady increase in some nations of brutality, of terrorism, and disregard for both life and justice. Concentration camps, persecution of Jews, political trials, bombing of civil populations, are but the physical expression of an underlying failure of morals terrible to contemplate.

All in all, it is an alarming and disheartening picture. There is a brighter side. Their recovery from the depression has been better than ours.

They have little unemployment. Some part of employment, especially in the authoritarian states, is due to a boom in armaments, non-productive public works and subsidized self-sufficiency programs.

War Not Imminent.

And I do not believe general war is in immediate prospect. War preparations are not complete. The spirit is yet one of defense, not of offense. The power of military defense has so greatly increased over the power of offense that armies hesitate to move. New balances of power emerge to neutralize each other. . . .

These are the visible, apparent tides and moving storms. There are still deeper currents beneath them. I hardly need catalogue them. They comprise all the inheritances of the war and in fact of history. There were the injustices and unrealities of the peace treaties. There were the debts and post-war inflations that led up to the European financial collapse in 1931 with its enormous unemployment and misery, both to themselves and to us. There has been one blunder after another.

Not the least of them have been the lack of co-operation by the allies with the struggling democracy of Germany; the rejection of the American proposals of disarmament in 1932, and the destruction of the currency conference of 1933.

There is the ever-present fact of 1,000 years of European history that on a score of boundaries exist zones of mixed populations, each with own age-old hates and aspirations. Whatever way these boundaries may be drawn, some people will be separated from their "fatherlands." Their agitations are perhaps the key to much European history and the key to one repeated war after another. Perhaps this was what George Washington had in mind in his farewell address.

New Philosophies.

There sounds constantly through this labyrinth the shrill note of new philosophies of government and the echoes of old orders of society disguised in new phrases. There are democracy, socialism and communism of 57 varieties; there is fascism with its variations from soft to hard; there are autocratic forms all the way from disguised democracy through authoritarianism, totalitarianism to dictatorships and unlimited monarchy.

And these movements contain as many dangers for the American people as either the military forces or trade barriers of Europe. They require examination in any inquiry as to American policies.

I need not recall to you that after the war the first rise of hope to this distraught humanity was democracy. And the steps by which this liberty was lost are as important to the American people as what actually happens under despotism when it arrives. They, indeed, need to sink into the American mind . . .

In Germany, fascism has had its most complete development under the iron rule of the Nazi Party. In order better to understand the Nazi regime we must not overlook its apparent accomplishments. It has brought about a gigantic mobilization of a materialistic system at the hands of the government. . . . Germany has been restored to a first-class military power. It is today feared throughout the world. Germany today burns with a prideful sense of restored self-esteem. Youth has been fired with new hopes and high emotions.

Hoover a Finnish Ph. D.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.
HERBERT HOOVER,

Two Sides to Picture.

So far as material things are concerned the average German is today better off than five years ago. Yet to a lover of human liberty there is another side to even this picture.

And fascism has demonstrated a way to fool all the people all the time—by suppression of all criticism, and free expression; and by drilling children and youth, stage by stage, to a governmentally prescribed mental attitude.

It is becoming a gigantic spartanism. And let no one believe it is about to collapse.

Parallel with the rise of the fascist philohopsy, Marxian socialism is a dying faith. They have some things in common.

League in a Coma.

I found most nations in Europe convinced that we would be inevitably drawn into the next great war as in the last. Some people build confident hope upon it. But every phase of this picture should harden our resolves that we keep out of other people's wars. Nations in Europe need to be convinced that this is our policy.

Yet we are interested, vitally interested, in peace among other nations. The League of Nations, except as a most useful clearing house of economic and social information, is at least in a coma. Certainly the central idea that peace would be imposed by collective action employing military or economic force, is dead.

But these ideas of collective action now appear in a new form. I find in many quarters of Europe and some in America an insistence that, as democracy is endangered by the rise of dictatorships and authoritarian governments, therefore democracies should join in some sort of mutual undertaking for protective action. These ideas were greatly stimulated and encouraged by the word quarantine from these shores.

Such proposals, if sincere, involve more than mere good words. Anything honest in that direction implies the pledge of some sort of joint military or economic action by the United States with other powers. We may as well be blunt about it.

We should have none of it. If the world is to keep the peace, then we must keep peace with dictatorships as well as with popular governments. The forms of government which other peoples pass through in working out their destinies is not our business. You will recollect we were once animated by a desire to save the world for democracy. The only result that time was to sow dragons' teeth which sprang up into dictatorships. We can never herd the world into the paths of righteousness with the dogs of war.

While we should reject the whole idea of pledging our military or economic forces to any scheme for preserving peace by making war, we have both the obligation and the interest to organize and join in the collective moral forces to prevent war. I know I will be told again that moral forces do not weigh much in a world of soldiers and battleships. But the greatest force for peace is still the public opinion of the world . . .

Readjustment Urged.

There is a measure for very modest but long-view action by our Government that could bring great benefits to us and to other nations. It would serve to reduce greatly the area of frictions upon our war debt problem. After the armistice we established credits for reconstruction and food to Poland, Belgium, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Finland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Greece, Rumania and Jugoslavia. Only Finland has staunchly maintained these payments . . .

America Is Warned To Revitalize Her Democracy.

I believe we should consider suggesting to these relief-credit countries as distinguished from the war-credit countries a readjustment of the debts and—

That each of them make these payments into a fund in their own country in their own currencies.

That this fund be used for extension of higher education, scientific research and for scholarships in their own universities; also for exchange of post graduate students, professors and scientific information between the United States and that country.

That these funds are to be administered jointly by Americans and their nations.

There will thus be created a joint interest with us from which we will generate benefits far greater than we will otherwise receive. . . .

In summary, in the larger issues of world relations, our watchwords should be: Absolute independence of political action, and adequate preparedness. That course will serve the world best. It will serve our interests best. . . .

Currencies Muddled.

My own conviction is that the world muddle of unstable currencies has more to do with the maintenance of these artificial trade barriers than any other one factor. If the problem is to be corrected fundamentally on an international scale, it must be approached ultimately at this point.

The third of our attitudes which I wish further to discuss is our American relationship to the vast ferment of new and old social philosophies which boils furiously throughout the world. The wholesale eclipse of democracy must concern us. Our national mission is to keep alight the lamp of true liberalism. But it is in the United States that we must keep it alight . . .

Let no man believe in either of two popular misapprehensions so widespread in this country today. This philosophy of communism is not imposed, suddenly, new born, from the top down. Both grew in prepared soils. Both are the aftermath of a gradual infection of democracy, a gradual perversion of true liberalism.

Spreading Infection.

And let me again repeat that democracies are first infected by the plausible notions of "cure the business slump" through so-called economic planning. Every step in this direction requires another. Every step further demoralizes free economy. And step by step more force and coercion must be applied until all liberty—economic and personal and political—is lost.

Let no man mistake that we in America have until now avoided the infection of these European systems. If our own so-called planned economy is not an infection from the original stream of fascism it is at least a remarkable coincidence. . . .

The protection of democracy is that we live it, that we re-vitalize it within our own borders, that we keep it clean of infections, that we wipe out its corruptions, that we incessantly fight its abuses, that we insist upon intellectual honesty, that we build its morals, that we keep out of war.

That is the greatest service that this Nation can give to the future of humanity.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

HEROES ON THE HILL.

I have sat in the galleries of the House and Senate now for two sessions, and prowled the Capitol's corridors. I have talked and lunched and dined with scores of members. Maybe it's too soon to make up my mind; perhaps I'm just a naive yokel . . . But I think a grave injustice has been done the men on the Hill.

* * * *

Cong. Allen . . . no cartoon type.

On both seaboards and in the hinterland the impression is widely and fondly cherished that Congress is composed of a queer assemblage of dolts, hypocrites, stuffed-shirts, clowns, pompous asses and eccentrics.

It's a shame to disillusion the dear public, but it ain't so.

* * * *

Perhaps a tenth of the Senators and Representatives fall into the lightweight categories . . . The rest compare quite favorably, as to skill, diligence and honesty, with the directors of great corporations or with the big shots back home.

"—as noble as the bigshots."

The average tourist who sits for an hour or two in the visitors' galleries of Congress is shocked and horror-stricken . . . He sees a great many extraordinary people; the queer types stand out . . . They are unruly, noisy, inattentive.

* * * *

Also, the small vanities and conceits, foibles and personal peculiarities, mannerisms, affectations in dress, bodily and facial incongruities, all are conspicuous. All is visible, in fact, except mentality and character . . . The few cartoon types are conspicuous.

* * * *

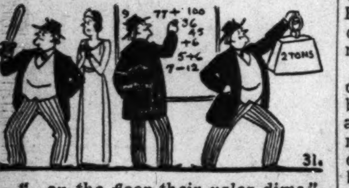
When the members of the House win a rare chance to make a speech they do not usually cover themselves with glory . . . After weeks of pent-up silence they try to cram all the pent-up emotion, all the patriotism and partisanship, all the eloquence and guile, and all the gestures and postures, that have been bottled up, into 10 minutes of fervid oratory . . . They won't have another chance for a long time.

* * * *

Another phenomenon that shocks the tourist is the apparent absence of any rhyme or reason in the proceedings. In the House the members have no individual seats assigned; the Senators seldom sit in their own seats . . . The Representatives whisper, converse out loud, pay scant attention to each other's five-minute speeches; the Senators talk on and on, and seldom is half of the membership of either chamber visible at the same moment.

* * * *

The onlooker is not aware of the ironclad rules which limit debate in the House, nor of the unlimited debate which is the proudest privilege of a Senator; nor of the fact that most of the work of the Congress is done away from the floor, in meetings of committees or sub-committees, or in their own offices; nor that more of the Nation's destiny unwinds in little whispered arms-around-the-neck chats than in fullblown speeches.



"—on the floor their valor dims."

So appearances at the Capitol are deceptive . . . Alas, the brilliance and nobility of the average Congressman seems dimmed in the crowd—much as one Hollywood cutie is by no means so impressive in a large bevy of cinema cuties as when you see her alone.

* * * *

On the floor their valor dims. They may be performing prodigies of heroism, defending Columbia (the gem of the ocean) from all perils; they may achieve miracles of arithmetic in committee rooms, or carry tons of the republic's burden . . . But on the floor they merely give second-rate wits a chance to coin fairly good gags about them.

* * * *

Some of the more laughable or dismaying members are gifts to the republic from some of the more flagrant political machines . . . But at close range, and observed as an individual, the average member is not a superman, but quite a redoubtable hombre; conscientious, shrewd, practical and patriotic . . . He may think of his own interests occasionally but not all the time.

In a report to United States Attorney David A. Pine, John J. Conliff, chief clerk, yesterday said there had been a reduction of almost 50 per cent in the number of criminal cases on the docket. The period covers the term from December to March 31.

There were 629 cases awaiting trial at the beginning of that term. Of that number, 301 were disposed of. However, since there were 546 indictments during the period, the cases actually terminated arose to 847, an unusually large number for three months. In addition to instructing his assistants to speed up, Pine had the assistance of an additional judge for the criminal courts.

Roosevelt Puts Gen. Reisinger In Retirement

Charges Against the Marine Paymaster Are Expected to Be Dropped.

President Roosevelt has approved the recommendation of Secretary Swanson that Brig. Gen. Harold C. Reisinger, paymaster of the Marine Corps, be retired from active duty May 1, because of physical disability incurred in the line of duty, it was revealed yesterday.

Although no official announcement has been made, it is expected that pending charges against Gen. Reisinger of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline" now will be dropped.

He was ordered before a general court martial several months ago, but the proceedings were stopped abruptly when he contended he was mentally unfit to conduct his own defense. Since that time he has been a patient in the Naval Hospital.

Gen. Reisinger's position received the support of Naval Hospital doctors, of the naval retiring board, which met on March 21 to consider his case, and in the recommendation Secretary Swanson presented to the President.

A native of the National Capital, he entered the corps in 1906. He was made a colonel in 1924 and reached the rank of brigadier general upon his appointment as paymaster.

Perfume Racket Is Smashed; Cost D.C.Women $2,000

A fake perfume racket that has mulcted fashionable Washington women of at least $2,000 during the last month was smashed last night with the arrest of two men at the racket's headquarters in the 2900 block of Connecticut avenue northwest.

The arrests were made by Lieut. Joseph Shimon and members of his pick-up squad after complaints by victims. The two men, both New Yorkers, were held incommunicado at the Eighth Precinct Station for investigation.

Police confiscated several thousand dollars' worth of equipment, including counterfeit labels of legitimate perfumes, counterfeit revenue stamps, a quantity of expensive perfume apparently used as a base for the adulterated product, chemicals used as adulterants and several cases of empty perfume bottles.

Officials said that some of the adulterated perfume had been sold to Washington women for as much as $50 a bottle. They charged that the operators had victimized hotel guests and women living in fashionable residential sections.

11 Police Vehicles Answer Alarm of Downtown Affray

The vicinity of Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was thrown into confusion at the rush hour last night when seven motorcycle officers and four scout cars, responded to a "policeman in trouble" call.

The call was sent in by policeman R. Sandberg, who noticed Edward Higgonson, a hack inspector, struggling with a man near the corner. Before Sandberg could reach the scene, two Army medical students, A. B. Christiansen and Gerald C. Humphrey, had assisted Higgonson in throwing the man to the ground.

Higgonson attempted to arrest the man on a charge of intoxication, he said, and was struck in the face.

At the First Precinct Station, the man gave his name as Allen Hatfield, 37.

News Writers Will Speak to Young Editors

Intercollegiate Association Begins 2-Day Meeting Today at G. W.

Active newspaper men will address student editors in the two-day meeting of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association at George Washington University today and tomorrow.

John M. Clark, editorial writer of the Washington Post who has been awarded a Nieman Fellowship at Harvard; Paul Y. Anderson, of St. Louis; Drew Pearson, co-author of Washington Merry-Go-Round column and founder of the association; Thomas McAvoy, of Life magazine; and Watson Davis, director of Science Service, will be speakers.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette will be principal speaker at the banquet in the National Press Club tomorrow night. Dr. Ralph E. Turner, Social Security Board, will also speak.

Dr. Raymond A. Vonderlehr, assistant surgeon general, United States Public Health Service, will address a special session tonight at the health service auditorium. Dr. Vonderlehr was chairman of the association's advisory group in connection with the anti-syphilis campaign sponsored by member papers. Howard Ennes, associate editor of the George Washington University Hatchet and president of the association, will give a report at the meeting.

News, editorial and advertising contests will be held and awards will be presented at the closing banquet.

Guardsmen to Dance.

Company A, 121st Engineers, District National Guard, will hold an April Fool's Day dance tomorrow at 10 p. m. in the Armory.

Brown, Police Chief, Condemns Bill Proposing Benning Races

Writes Representative Bates That Sacks Measure Will Attract Undesirable Element to Washington During Season.

A letter from Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, objecting to the Sacks bill to establish a race track at Benning, was made public yesterday by Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, to refute testimony given earlier in the week by witnesses for the bill.

Bates said statements made before the committee by proponents of the bill citing approval of District officials who formerly had opposed the legislation aroused his suspicion.

Upon investigation he found that the District Commissioners had filed an unfavorable report on the bill.

Maj. Brown then sent him a copy of a letter he had addressed to Chairman McGehee, of the House subcommittee which held the hearings.

"As major and superintendent of police," Brown said, "I wish to be placed on record before your committee as opposing the proposed legislation for legalization of horse racing in the District . . .

"In examining the annual reports of the major and superintendent of police during the period racing was in operation in this jurisdiction, I find that prior to each race meet, the records indicate that orders were issued to the force to give special attention to conditions developing as a result of the undesirable element being attracted to the city during the racing period."

The sub-committee has not yet met to decide how it shall report the bill. Chairman McGehee, however, is personally opposed to the legislation.

Masher Annoys Md. Coeds; Lone Walks Banned

University of Maryland coeds were warned last night not to go out after dark without an escort, after several of them complained they had been annoyed by a man in a small, tan automobile. The warning was issued by the Women's League of the university.

State police assigned Policeman Daniel Wiseman to patrol the area.

A few months ago Dean of Women Adell Stamp issued an order prohibiting unaccompanied walks at night after a George Washington University coed was attacked in Rock Creek Park.

Commissioners Ask New Board Of Recreation

Creation of a board of recreation with supervision and legal control over all District play facilities, received support of the Board of Commissioners yesterday, instead of a substitute plan suggested by Henry I. Quinn, member of the Board of Education.

The Commissioner-Approved plan corresponds to the King bill. Quinn had suggested the Board of Education be given control over all "supervised" play facilities, and that the National Capital Parks control the remainder. The effect of the Quinn plan would be to place the Department of Playgrounds under the school system.

The Commissioners voiced vigorous disapproval of this plan.

Commissioner George E. Allen, who has supervision of the Playground Department, said, "I want to see the creation of a board of recreation which would effectuate real co-ordination between our various playground facilities."

"I would not consider any plan for the abolition of the present Playground Department," said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Detective McCarty Will Return To Old Haunts With Promotion

Precinct Detective Richard F. McCarty today will return to the territory he tramped as a rookie policeman 15 years ago.

But when he reports for duty today it will be as a detective sergeant, at the Third Precinct.

Promotion of McCarty from precinct detective in the Tenth Precinct was confirmed by the Commissioners on recommendation of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Sergt. McCarty spent his first seven years on the force in the Third Precinct. In 1930, still a private, he was transferred to the Tenth Precinct and two years later was promoted to a precinct detective.

Almost single-handed, McCarty last year smashed an abortion ring which had been operating in the District for more than two years. Later he rounded up a gang which had been terrorizing barber shops in northwest Washington.

Spain's Strife Laid to Variety Of Aims There

Diversity of Peoples Made Civil War Inevitable, Says Dr. Petit.

The war in Spain and the turbulent history of the country are due mainly to the fact that the country is made up of a number of peoples having different ideals, religious faiths and political wants.

That is the opinion of the Rev. Dr. John A. Petit, for 12 years vice rector of the English College at Valladolid University in Spain and present rector of St. Edmund's House, Cambridge University.

Speaking last night at Carroll Hall, Tenth and G streets northwest, Father Petit declared: "No central power has ever controlled the country and it has witnessed little political peace since the beginning of the nineteenth century."

Tracing the political unrest in Spain during the past 100 years, Father Petit called the present crisis inevitable.

"The Basque, Castillian, Andalusian and Catalonia peoples all live differently," the speaker said, "and have never fully agreed on one central form of government. It is only natural that political uprisings of violent force have resulted."

D. C. Unemployed Are Paid $240,017 By Benefit Board

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars has been paid unemployed persons in the District since February 7, when the first checks were issued, John A. Marshall, director of the District Unemployment Compensation Board, said yesterday.

The total payments, tabulated through yesterday, were $240,017.50, paid out through 27,693 checks, Marshall said. During the past four weeks, the Compensation Board has been issuing checks at the rate of about a 1,000 a day, with the peak for a single day reached on March 25 when 1,650 checks were distributed. The latter figure represented $14,702.50

Marshall said he believed this rate of payment, 1,000 checks per day, would remain fairly stable.

U. S. Workers Ask for Chest Money Back

Petitioners Cancel Pledges Because Hospitals Oppose G. H. A.

Petitions demanding return of the signers' contributions to the Community Chest and canceling their pledges are being circularized in several Government departments, it was learned last night. The petitions express opposition to the Chest's contributing to hospitals that have denied facilities to doctors associated with the Group Health Association.

One petition, bearing more than 70 names, was mailed last night to Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Community Chest, it was reported. The signers are all employes of the Department of Agriculture.

The signers pointed out that "we are workers," and said their reasons for canceling pledges and demanding return of contributions were "obvious." The signers strongly condemned the District Medical Association; its attitude toward the G. H. A., they wrote, was "anti-social."

Dr. Raymond E. Selders, sole surgeon with Group Health, learned yesterday that fellow members in the Harris County (Texas) Medical Society would vote April 27 on his expulsion or vindication.

The news reached him one day after Garfield Hospital here had temporarily lifted its ban against Dr. Selders and other GHA doctors to permit him to remove the appendix of a 6-year-old girl.

Several weeks ago he was formally accused by the Texas society's censor committee of violating the code of ethics of the American Medical Association through his affiliation with the Washington Health Association. The surgeon's trial April 27 will be by the membership of the organization, which Dr. Selders joined when he was a practitioner in Texas.

Officials of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, a sponsor of GHA, said the staff doctor probably would not go to Houston to defend himself but file a written statement instead.

Spokesmen for the association confirmed reports that Dr. Selders operated on the young daughter of a Federal employe enrolled in GHA after being required to sign a statement that the case was an emergency. The appendectomy took place early Wednesday.

The girl's condition was reported favorable.

The Federal Diary

Reminiscences.

Mrs. Jane Shields Elliott, of the Bureau of Biological Survey, who retired yesterday after 27 years' service, writes us, interestingly:

Life seems to have many beginnings and endings. When I was graduated from the Washington High School my diploma was handed to me by President Grover Cleveland. It was hard to leave school life behind, but I always hoped it would be better further on.

When I entered the Biological Survey it was with many misgivings. As Mr. Vernon Bailey, chief scientist (now retired), tells it, the men on the rolls were all tried and found wanting. The chief, in despair, sent Mr. Bailey these instructions: "If the lady is young and good-looking, don't take her." I passed the test and was accepted. It has been a privilege and a pleasure to look back upon the 27 years spent in the Biological Survey—some humdrum hours—some disappointments—but many happy days filled with varied, interesting and useful work.

And now, as I graduate again into a larger freedom I am surer than ever that it will be better further on.

It is a natural thing when one reaches retirement age to look back over the years and compare life as it used to be with that of today.

Living Costs.

Washington was a delightful place in the years when I was a housekeeper. There were no apartments, but every bride entered her own home—even if it were not paid for. Good servants commanded reasonable wages and food was cheaper than it is now. Women went to market on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Center Market (where the Archives Building now stands) was a great historic building where a complete variety of food could be obtained. Henry Clay used to purchase there and carry his basket home with him.

In other days an usher called the carriages then—much as they did at receptions. As a tiny child I remember my terror at being lost from my mother in that vast building. It was usual for ladies, therefore, to meet there, chat leisurely with their friends and go on to the Avenue, Market Space or Seventh street, where the shopping centers were.

There were very few automobiles and no buses. Street cars, delivery wagons, bicycles and carriages were all that we knew of traffic troubles. It was said that a true Washingtonian could be known by her crossing the street 'cat-a-corner" and going about at night with no hat.

When one's budget failed to cover the family needs ladies of the prewar period took boarders, made and sold cakes, did dressmaking or fancy work. But when it became necessary to find an office job everyone offered sympathy and the victim of economic necessity was thought to be a very brave person.

First Day.

It did seem like entering a new world to attempt to fill an office position and its first day is etched deeply in my memory. I recall the early start and the trip downtown to the office—the crowds filling the street cars seemed different from those I had been used to. There was an energy and efficiency in their manner—just the difference I noted, between those who accounted for every precious minute in their day and those who had all the time at their disposal. The actual terror of my first work day was dispelled when the eminent scientist in charge of directing began to whistle softly, "How Firm a Foundation"—I soon realized that the tasks were reasonable—within my power to execute and opened new vistas of knowledge.

To a housekeeper who daily covered the fields of wife, mother, teacher, nurse, caterer, seamstress, employer and financier, the first pay check brought the realization that one's talents really had a market value.

The stabilizing of jobs through civil service has changed life in Washington and has made Government service more attractive. Many men did not bring their families from distant States because of the upheaval that followed a change in elections. The many years that the Republican Party kept the helm brought numbers of New Englanders to our city with Ohio and the Middle West—and some from the Pacific Coast. But this Administration has accustomed us to the softer tones of the Southern voice, as young people from the deep South have taken jobs. It is also noticeable that increasing numbers of lame and afflicted ones have been fitted into jobs where their handicap is not a hinderance to the work.

It is a surprise to some visitors to our offices to see the homelike and artistic arrangements on all sides—potted plants are growing in favorable windows, and paintings connected with the work, gaily colored maps, photographs of former chiefs and field groups relieve the bareness of the rooms.

The rush of women to fill the places of soldiers gone to the World War changed the aspect of Government service for a while and parties were made up only of women. During the flu epidemic, when so many of the girls died, and their remains had to be sent home, their fellow clerks gave a beautiful display of sympathy and generosity as they passed around the hat and made it possible. Indeed, I have never known a needy case where help was not extended. Collections for the Red Cross, Community Chest, Symphony Drives and emergency disasters show that the numbers employed in the United States Government can be counted upon to do their full part in humanitarian efforts.

I notice now the tendency to fill empty places with men and particularly with young people, fresh from college. Perhaps the knowledge that they will not add, in the immediate future, to the pension rolls is one reason for reliance on youth. I think that in some work they are desirable because of their speed, tirelessness and training. But there are positions requiring experience that call for older judgment and there should not be an age limit to shut out competent help.

Personnel of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board agencies contribute their talent to the Federal Show Window radio hour tonight at 10:30 through WOL. The theme is "Home Sweet Home" in a new setting. Fred W. Catlett, one of the five members of the board, will speak on the board's activities. The playlet, "His Homeward Way," was written especially for the program by Robert Dwight Swezey, an HOLC attorney. Those participating in the program are Howland H. Sargeant (FHLB Review), who takes the role of John Howard Payne; Helene Loney (Information Desk), Albert Siepert (Chairman's Office), Albert L. Shields (Personnel), and Charles Thompson, Neil Linger (HOLC Audits) will assist in the technical direction and sound effects.

Molded Food Entries Cover Wide Range

Carrot Ring Winner of First Prize in Post Contest.

Many Suggestions Offered for Salads and Desserts.

Entries in the contest this week have a crazy quilt slant. Every occasion has its molded dish and readers were quick to make use of them in providing novel and compliment-provoking dishes.

Recipes for every meal of the day with a special stress on party dishes were entered. The favorite type of molded dish, judging from the number of recipes, were bridge party refreshments. Here color scheme, novel shape and garnish were stressed.

The winning dish is for a carrot ring served with a filling of green beans or hot buttered peas. It has a mild, delicious flavor and is a perfect Lenten dish or foundation for the vegetable plate. Coffee cream adds extra richness to the white sauce used as the base of the ring. The recipe was submitted in the contest by Mrs. Hugh Crafton, Fountain Head Heights, Hagerstown, Md.

The winning recipe is shaped into a ring mold. Individual molds are used for the second prize winning recipe, whole egg shells for the third prize recipe, the tray of the refrigerator for the fourth winner, and a large melon mold for the last winner. Many other suggestions were made by those entering the contest. Several fish recipes were shaped in fish molds, and the favorite method of serving salads was as hearts, clubs, and diamonds.

CARROT RING.

2 cups of cooked carrots
4 eggs
1 cup of sweet cream
2 tablespoons of flour
2 tablespoons of butter.
1 teaspoon of grated onion
¼ teaspoon of paprika
Plenty of salt.

Mash the carrots and press out the water. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and cream, and add this to the carrots. Add well beaten egg yolk. Add last the stiffly beaten egg whites. Put in a ring pan and place this pan in a pan of hot water. Bake for 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Garnish the platter with watercress or parsley. Fill the center with buttered string beans, peas, or mushrooms. Serve immediately.

Pink and green is the color scheme of this spring salad which is to be served in individual molds. The top is pink strawberry flavored gelatin, the base, lime gelatin filled with sliced bananas and chopped nuts. It makes a colorful center for party refreshments. Serve assorted sandwiches as the only accompaniment.

LUSCIOUS MOLDED SALAD.

Dissolve one-half package of strawberry gelatin in a cup of boiling water. Add a half cup of cold water. Repeat the process using one half package of lime gelatin. When cool, add a half cup of crushed strawberries to the strawberry gelatin and pour into molds, only half filling them. Put the molds in the refrigerator for 5 or 10 minutes, or long enough for the gelatin to set without becoming too solid. Then add sliced bananas, and chopped walnuts to the lime gelatin and fill the molds with this. Keep in refrigerator several hours or overnight. When serving, turn the molds out on lettuce leaves, surround with cottage cheese and place several whole strawberries around, embedding them in the cheese.

Novel salad for Easter entertaining is timely. This salad is made of red, orange, yellow and green gelatin Easter eggs. No special mold need be purchased. The prepared shells of eggs are used for this purpose. The recipe was worked out successfully by Ruth Jackson, 106 Raymond street Chevy Chase, Md.

EASTER EGGS.

1 box of cherry gelatin
1 box of orange gelatin
1 box of lemon gelatin
1 box of lime gelatin
1 can of halved peaches
½ pint of whipped cream

Mix each box of gelatin with 1 pint of hot water. Stir until completely dissolved. Fill two of the egg molds with each flavor. This will make eight. Put them in the refrigerator and let them stand until firm. When ready to serve place the halves of peaches on lettuce and fill the hollows with the whipped cream. Take the egg yolks out of the refrigerator, break the shell off, and place one egg on each of the nests.

The egg molds are made by making a small hole at one end of the fresh eggs and draining it. Then wash and dry, and insert the gelatin. They may be served with a garnish of colored cherries and nuts or each person can be served a garnish in a different color.

A layered salad wins the fourth prize in this week's contest. A rich chicken salad mousse frozen between layers of seasoned tomato ice is the delectable combination. It is a party salad and the recipe is in quantities to serve 16 persons. The winner is Mary Sue Cameron, 1929 Sixteenth street northwest

TOMATO AND CHICKEN SALAD LAYERS.

½ cup of cold boiled rice
⅓ cup of string beans, cut
¾ cup of diced cooked chicken
2 tablespoons of chopped green pepper
½ cup of diced celery
½ tablespoon of minced parsley
2-3 cup of mayonnaise
2-3 cup of whipped cream
1 tablespoon of gelatin
2 tablespoons of cold water
½ teaspoon of salt
Tomato ice.

Combine the chicken, beans, rice, pepper, celery and parsley. Combine mayonnaise and whipped cream. Soften the gelatin in cold water for five mintes, then melt it over hot water. Cool. Add salt and combine all ingredients, except the tomato ice. Line the refrigerator pan with waxed paper. Pour a layer of the tomato ice, previously frozen to mushy state, into the freezing tray. Then arrange a layer of chicken salad and cover with another layer of tomato ice. Freeze. Serve in slices on lettuce. This recipes serves 16 persons with a 2-inch square of salad.

Tomato Ice.

Heat two cups of tomato juice, let partially cool. Add one tablespoon of gelatin moistened in cold water. Then season with one teaspoon of lemon juice, one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce. Freeze.

Orange charlotte with a fresh orange flavor and a garnish of sliced oranges wins the last prize. It is more effective served at the table. A large star mold is recommended, but a melon mold can also be used for shaping. The recipe is a favorite of Miss Martha Kenney, 126 Ingraham street northwest.

GOLDEN ORANGE CHARLOTTE.

1 package of orange gelatin
1 cup of boiling water
2 tablespoons of sugar
⅛ teaspoon of salt
1 cup of orange juice
Pulp of one orange
½ cup of whipped cream

Dissolve the gelatin in boiling water, add the sugar, salt, and orange juice. Pour one cup of the mixture in the bottom of a quart star mold and chill until firm. Chill the remaining mixture until it begins to thicken. Whip until frothy. Fold in the orange pulp (strained off juice) and cream whipped stiff. Pour into a mold on top of the stiff gelatin. Serve with a garnish of sliced oranges.

Molding Gives Individuality

Ways of using spring lamb is the theme of the new contest. To enter this contest, write your own recipe, enclose name, and address, and mail to Jean Green, Post Food Editor, before April 9.

Trends in Nutrition Discussed at Meet

Dr. Stevenson Gives Pointers on Vitamins.

"New Nutritional Information" was outlined by Dr. Gladys Stevenson at the joint meeting of the Virginia Home Economics Association and Virginia State Dietetic Association on Saturday. Dr. Stevenson, now associate professor of home economics at V. P. I., was formerly on the staff at Ames, Iowa.

Here are highlights from her talk gleaned from the notebook of Lennice Sartell, assistant dietitian at St. Elizabeths Hospital and secretary of the local dietetic association. Miss Sartell was one of three representatives from the District to attend the convention.

The value of iron in spinach in relation to human metabolism has been exploded. Only about 20 per cent of this inorganic iron is available to the human body.

Vegetables that form oxalic acid in the digestive system should not be eaten for their calcium content, as the acid destroys the value of this mineral before assimilation.

Too large doses of cod liver oil have a toxic effect. First indication of this resulted from animal experimentation. Two cases recently were recorded on children.

Tests on children at Iowa City proved that 1 quart of milk every day is necessary for normal growth and development.

Thirty known vitamins have been "discovered." The chemical formula of some have been absolutely determined.

Six of the 30 vitamins are necessary for human growth and health.

Vitamin deficiency has been stressed but it is just as bad to take too much of any vitamin. A proper balance is the ideal.

Dried Beef Appetizer.

Select 12 good-sized pieces of dried beef. Spread each piece with a mixture made by adding half a cup of cream cheese to one teaspoon each of chopped parsley, green pepper and sweet pickles and a fourth of a teaspoon each of dry mustard, paprika, minced onion and celery salt. Roll each piece of beef in waxed paper and chill for an hour or so. With a sharp knife cut each roll into three pieces. Insert wooden picks in each and place them on hot triangles of toast.

To Relieve Eyestrain.

Virginia Bruce, movie actress, finds the glare of studio lights trying, and never uses water on her eyes. Night and morning, and between scenes, she uses an eye cup with a dependable eyewash, drying the eyes with absorbent cotton.

To relieve eyestrain, either from reading or from constant outdoor activity, Miss Bruce recommends this as the surest way to keep beauty and health of the eyes.

Kitchen Should Be Family Shrine, Enjoyed by All, Says Authority

By Jean Green.

WHAT will the kitchen of the future offer housewives? What is the trend manufacturers are following in designing kitchen equipment and labor saving devices?

These questions were answered last Friday in an interview with Katharine Fisher, director of the Good Housekeeping Institute, who spoke at the joint State convention of the Virginia Home Economics and Dietetic Convention at the John Marshall Hotel, Richmond, Va.

JEAN GREEN.

"The new kitchens are combining the utility of the modern streamlined unit kitchen with the home atmosphere of the kitchen of two generations ago," she said. I find that more and more kitchens are livable and are enjoyed by the whole family."

Quiet Favored.

Pointing out that the same atmosphere of restful quiet should prevail in the kitchen as was found necessary for the meditation of the sages, she said: "I believe a kitchen that is enjoyed by every member of the family is needed to establish a sane family life. It is certainly necessary in order to get children interested in the subject of cooking."

Miss Fisher approves of the modern streamlined kitchens that are fitted together and have "flow," so that every part is fitted into the next unit, but she believes them a luxury for the average family.

"I place utility first in kitchen planning," she said. "In the streamlined kitchen I believe that when money is at a premium, too much is paid for appearance. There is an abundance of cabinet space, but I am reminded of Benjamin Franklin's remark, "Are you paying too dear for our whistle?"

New Cabinet Shelves.

"We are now working out a new design for cabinet shelves at the institute. They will be very shallow and allow vertical filing for pots and pans. We want them so shallow that there will be room for only one row of everything. This will eliminate 'hunting.' We also want them designed so that they will be open during working hours. This will avoid the constant opening and closing of cabinet doors in order to reach the needed items on the shelf."

Miss Fisher, who has been director of the institute for the past 14 years, has noticed much change in the type of utensils and equipment sent to her laboratory for testing.

"The manufacturer is now conscious of the housewife's problems and is making every effort to see that time and energy is conserved," she said.

"This is shown in the many types of cooking utensils on the market that do not need to be scoured."

A new trend according to Miss Fisher, is to have cooking utensils that serve a dual purpose. "These dual purpose utensils," she said, "are on the order of casseroles and are designed for both cooking and serving. I have noticed that often when a tested recipe is used and the food is perfectly cooked, it is allowed to get cold before being brought to the table. These new dishes will overcome this to some extent. I feel that it is commendable and there is no reason why even an attractive skillet cannot be brought to the table."

She predicts that entertaining of the future will be more and more informal and that meals will no longer be restricted to the dining room. In the future they will be served in all parts of the house.

"I think a vagabond influence is being reflected in the service of meals," she said. "Old rules are being replaced by new and there is now a delightful informality in homemaking. Color is taking a leading rôle in this. There is beauty not only in food but in the dishes used for serving purposes. It is a system that encourages not expense but a verve for living."

Two Kinds of Women.

Before considering time spent in housekeeping and labor-saving devices, Miss Fisher classed all women in two types—the housekeeper type and the non-housekeeper type. She encourages the former to drag out her work as long and derive as much pleasure from it as possible. Labor-saving devices are for the woman who wants her work done as quickly as possible. Among the times savers, Miss Fisher listed the new automatic washing machine that washes, rinses, and automatically stops.

"One of the economical labor-saving items is the paper towel," she said. "These are not only inexpensive to purchase but they save in laundry bills. The paper towel serves a hundred uses and the habit of reaching for a towel is a convenient one. Paper liners for garbage pails, oil treated paper dish cloths are also available and quite inexpensive."

For keeping hands soft, Miss Fisher recommends swagger gloves that are rubber coated. These are adapted to use both in the kitchen and in gardening.

Hawaii Has Same Foods As America

Delegate King Asserts Culinary Art Is Almost Identical.

By Jean Green.

DON'T go to the Hawaiian Islands with a "grass skirt" complex in regard to food. There is no more difference between the culinary art of the islands and the States than between different regions of the States, in the opinion of the Honorable S. W. King, delegate from Hawaii.

"It is only at the 'Luau," a Hawaiian feast, that the old art of Hawaiian cooking is revived," he pointed out in an interview yesterday. "At other times the diet is similiar to that selected by Washingtonians. We have adopted many American foods and even have chain stores on the islands."

The difference between the food customs lies more in the selection of the fruit and vegetables used, according to Mr. King. The staff of life on the islands is the native poi. This is made from the tuber of a taro plant and is served on the menu as we serve the Irish potato. It is popular with all classes of people and holds the same position on the Hawaiian menu that steak and French fries does in America.

"The custom of serving poi has been followed for generations," said Mr. King. "It is made by baking the tubers from the taro plant, mashing them and mixing with water until of the consistency of library paste. The poi is served in the native poi bowls and eaten with fingers. This accounts for its name. The two finger poi is thin. The one finger poi is much thicker so only one finger is needed in handling it."

Poi Bowls Interesting.

The type of poi bowls used make an interesting study. In old days, the poi bowls were mahogany, but now they are usually either china or gourds shaped as cups. Cocoanut shells, sanded and polished, are also used. They are decorated in a novel manner.

Other fresh vegetables available are the eggplant, carrot, sweet potato, lima bean, onion, taro leaf, spinach, tomato, squash, corn, cauliflower and cabbage.

Fruits are an indispensable part of the menu, according to Mr. King. They are served for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Not only the fresh pineapple, which is world famous, but the kona orange, papaia, mango and avocado are cheap and universally used. The Chinese orange, which has the tangy flavor of the lime, the cocoanut, banana, strawberry, grape, date and fig, are some others at the fruit market.

"We call our fresh fruit combinations the Na Huaai O Hawaii," he said. "The combinations of fruit are usually served as an appetizer at the beginning of the meal or in a salad. Chilled fresh juicy pineapple is a frequent dessert while the papaia is our favorite breakfast fruit. The papaia is similiar to your melon."

Washington housewives might well take a tip from the Hawaiians' frequent serving of fruits. The combination of alligator pear, Hawaiian pineapple and litchi nuts (available canned at our stores) is a favorite one. The pineapple is served with lobster in salad, as a luncheon dish with a sharp cheese sauce, baked with sweet potatoes, made into fritters, pies, cup cakes and conserves. The bananas are grown for eating and cooking. The cooking bananas have red skins and are delicious baked in the skin brushed with melted butter. The flavor is similiar to the baked yam.

'Luau' Native Feast.

"Hawaiian wives are just as interested in new recipes as the American," said Mr. King, "and many new combinations of food are constantly being tried. Some of these recipes are published in our American and Hawaiian cookbook."

If you are invited to a "luau" while on the islands, don't fail to take advantage of it. This is the native feast in which the food is cooked and served, according to old Hawaiian customs. The food is served on the table covered with broad taro leaves and decorated with ferns and flowers.

According to Mr. King, the menu includes six distinct courses and individual portions of each is served the guests.

The relish course consists of the inamona or Hawaiian nuts, baked, mashed and mixed with salt to take the place of the olive or salted almond. The limu is fresh fragrant seaweed served in place of celery. The alsu is dried, broiled fish served in place of the anchovy as done at our banquets.

The fish course would either be lawaln amaama or mullet wrapped in ti (not tea) leaves and baked in its own juices in the oven pit, or kamano lomilomi, a salt salmon, soaked to remove salt and mixed with tomato and onion to form an uhcooked stew.

The fowl or moa anie luau is usually chicken prepared by mixing the chopped leaves of the taro plant with the chopped chicken. This mixture is soaked in the cocoanut milk and either baked or steamed in little bundles prepared in the ti leaves.

The meat course is the pig cooked in the Hawaiian oven. It is served with the maya baked bananas or yams and poi.

The dessert may be either kulalo made from poi and cocoanut or haupia made by shredding the cocoanut and squeezing the sweet juice from the pulp. This is thickened into a dessert.

The meal served at the 'luau' is prepared in the Imu or open pit. A fire is built here, huge rocks are placed in it and heated until red hot, then the whole pig is added. Around the sides are placed the ti bags of chicken and the vegetables, these are covered with banana leaves and cooked for one to one and one-half hours. The preparation of the 'luau' is very important on the islands and chefs trained in the art of their preparation are usually employed.

Hawaiian Fruits Are Appetizing

Miss Charlotte King, daughter of Delegate King of Hawaii prepares the Na-Huaai-O-Hawaii or fruit cup from the fresh fruit of Hawaii in their apartment at the Hotel Roosevelt. Alligator pear, Hawaiian pineapple, canned pears and litchi nuts are used in combinatoin.

Spare Water In Vegetables Chef Advises

The usual method of cooking vegetables in a large quantity of water is all wrong, according to Fred Meissner, chef de cuisine, Hotel Hay-Adams.

"When vegetables are cooked in a large quantity of water much of the valuable saline matter as well as sugar is lost," he said. "I try to avoid this whenever possible. In the case of turnips and beans, when it is not possible to use the cooking liquors in seasonings, I add a little sugar in cooking to replace that which is lost."

It is never possible to tell in advance the exact time for cooking various vegetables, he asserts. In some cases it depends on their age and size, in others on their freshness. Beets are a good example of this. The preparation of beets before cooking is very simple, as only the tops need to be cut off before cooking. The young beets need only be cooked an hour, while the old ones need several hours in order to be tender.

Among the tragic milestones in vegetable cooking is the loss of the green color. Chef Meissner avoids this by cooking green vegetables quickly in rapidly boiling water without a cover. Cooking without a cover aids in preserving the color, and is more satisfactory than adding soda to the water.

MARKET TIPS

Fresh pineapple is at the height of the season. The fruit is economical and very delicious. It is an ideal blender for the fruit cup. Being crisp and tart, it blends well with such seasonable fruits as bananas, citrus fruits, melons, strawberries, apples or pears.

• • • •

Asparagus is becoming more moderate in price. Certain stores feature a special type of cooker for the asparagus. However, it is possible to cook it in a uniform manner by placing it upright in boiling water. This gives the more fibrous portion of the stalk opportunity to cook before the more tender tip. Try the fresh asparagus with hollandaise sauce or a tart sauce made by adding vinegar to melted butter. A sprinkling of grated Cheddar cheese adds to its appearance and taste.

• • • •

Kale cooked with ham is a Southern dish that should be revived this week. Kale, beet tops, spinach and other "salad" greens were noted in abundance this week at local vegetable stalls.

• • • •

Fresh fish is coming into local markets daily. Don't let the fresh shad season pass without having baked shad with a roe sauce. Or have a special breakfast and have broiled shad roe and bacon. You can be sure that you are getting fresh fish at the market if you select those with red gills, scales that stick closely and eyes that are bright. The flesh should be firm and free from slime. When pressed with the finger it should leave no impression.

• • • •

Strawberries continue to come in from Southern States. A quick recipe for making shortcake consists in baking waffles three stacks high, coating each with a light coating of butter and a generous layer of halved sugared strawberries. The waffle marks will automatically divide the cake into fourths. Serve with thick fresh poured cream.

• • • •

Eggs are the best protein "buy" this week. An attractive supper dish is prepared by poaching eggs on toasted English muffins and arranging on top of each egg a few golden links of crisp sausage. Pour over this a special sour cream sauce made by cooking in a double boiler ¾ cup of sweet cream, 1 tablespoon of tarragon vinegar and 2 egg yolks. Broiled tomatoes can be served with this if desired.

READERS' FOOD FORUM

How to Pep Up Breakfast Is General Problem.

How are you making the breakfast menus more interesting? This is the question selected this week to register the opinion of Washington housewives.

MRS. F. M. DILLARD, 317 South St. Asaph street, Alexandria, Va. My typical Virginia breakfast consists of the Potomac roe herring, batterbread or corn cakes, broiled tomatoes, bacon, eggs, and coffee. I always purchase the herring roe in Fredericksburg where it is shipped all over the world. I soak the roe all night and broil them just before serving. They are rather unusual and very good.

MISS MABLE HALER, Dupont Circle Apartment. Sunday breakfast means having a few guests in to enjoy waffles and country sausage or delicately flavored brains scrambled with eggs and served with freshly made toast. Those are my two favorite main dishes though I do include salt mackerel on the menu from time to time. No breakfast is complete without flowers or fruit on the table and much well made coffee. I like the smell of freshly made coffee so always make it in a percolator.

MRS. WILLIAM ORDERY, 5420 Connecticut avenue northwest. We prefer a light breakfast on the orange juice, toast and coffee order through the week and save interesting special dishes for Sunday. One of my popular dishes is broiled kidneys and bacon which is also a favorite of my English father. Batter bread served from the casserole with crisp browned links of sausage is another combination that is frequently on the menu. My husband is from the South so I have learned to make many types of hot breads. We have biscuits frequently. The batter bread similar to Virginia spoon bread is ideal for Sunday when we have guests. It is simple to serve and most everyone seems to like it.

I make the creamed dried beef with a mushroom sauce. I think the flavor is improved by frizzling the thin strips of beef in butter, then adding canned mushrooms, and a seasoned thin white sauce. I serve it over split hot biscuits but toast can be used.

Creamed chicken livers, mushrooms and minced bacon is another good creamed dish. On Sunday, I scramble the eggs with dices of fresh tomatoes and bits of minced bacon.

The preparation of salt fish is one thing I have not yet mastered. The one exception is the finnan haddie which is cooked in a deep frying pan of milk. It comes out in thick slices and is good with a sauce of melted butter.

Cake Filling Aid.

To keep cream fillings from soaking into cake layers, sprinkle a thin layer of confectioner's sugar over the cake. Then add the filling and sprinkle it with a little more sugar before the next layer is put on the cake. To avoid excess sweetness use less than the usual amount of sugar in the filling.

Spicey Storey

A TOUCH of spice adds new life to old dishes. Cooking wisdom, especially during the Lenten season, calls for a complete supply of fresh whole cloves, whole allspice, whole black pepper, whole mace, whole white pepper, celery seed, ground ginger, anise seed, yellow mustard seed, tumeric and brown mustard seed. Each spice conveniently packaged in cellophane and priced at only

April Fools Day Frolics Slated For Shoreham

Pall Mall Room to Present 'A Night in Venezuela' Next Wednesday.

By Chanticleer

It's April Fools Day today and a good excuse for celebrating with a little fun. At the Shoreham, Barney and his blarney, and Nina Olivette will make you laugh. Carl Sayton and partner with balancing feats, and Charles Carlile, the "Tenor of the Air," complete a balanced bill.

Having done honors to Washington's cherry blossoms, the Pall Mall room goes back to Pan-American next Wednesday. It will be "A Night in Venezuela," and for the occasion the "Venezuelan Nightingale," Miss Fedora Aleman, has been imported. Miss Aleman is a coloratura soprano and studied in New York under Maestro Cleva, of the Metropolitan Opera. Her voice is said to be more like that of Lily Pons, of whom she is a great admirer, than any other singer, and, like Miss Pons, she can hit an F above high C. She comes of one of the most prominent families in Venezuela, and was born and reared in Caracas, its capital.

The surprise party scheduled for the Metronome room of the Wardman Park Hotel tonight is causing comment behind the scenes. Secrecy surrounds the preparations, and the crew in charge of the set-up are bound not to disclose the decoration motif and favors.

Tommy Johnson, debonair and smiling pianist, is currently unraveling the chords in the salon of the S. S. Anchor room. Tommy, who recently joined the Happy Walker Orchestra, is a Keystone State lad. He shows signs of repeating here the success he enjoyed in the hinderlands.

Russell A. Conn, manager of the Ambassador Hotel, attributes the popularity of the Hi Hat to his new policy of diversified entertainment and says that business is swell.

Tonight, the King's Jesters—billed as the "biggest little band in America"—open in the Shar-Zad Room of the Carlton at 10 o'clock. The George Stokes, in an acrobatic act.

What to do on Saturday night? The Russian Troika still offers unband includes the three original Jesters—George Howard, John Ravencroft and Fritz Bastow—who started on the road to fame with the King of Jazz, Paul Whiteman, several years ago. Whiteman chanced to hear their broadcast one night—got in touch with them, hired them on the spot for an act with his band. He dubbed them the "King's Jesters" because of their crazy antics, and the name has stuck. The band now has six men and a "Queen"—Mary Ruth Milan. They have all been working together steadily for the last two years.

The revue at the Lotus this week starts out with a fast-moving routine by the Buster Keim Girls. The team of Vales and Brady holds the spotlight with a semiacrobatic bolero. They come to the Lotus from a six-week engagement at the Sine Roma Theater on Broadway. Other features are Peggy and George, in a drum tap and challenge; Peggy King, in a tap number accompanied by a whole chorus on skates, and usual atmosphere, entertainment, food, and music for dancing. The famous Troika ensemble is capably emceed by Mischa Markoff.

Appears at Carlton's Shar-Zad

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Norman Frauenheim presents Sigismond Stojovski in a Chopin recital Thursday night at the Sulgrave Club. Program: Polonaise in C minor, Fantasia in F minor, four Etudes, Sonata in B flat minor, six Preludes, Ballade in F minor, Nocturne in F major, three Mazurkas, Scherzo in C sharp minor.

Recitals devoted to a single composer may be exciting or dull, depending upon the interpretative intuition of the performer. Monotonous is the last epithet that one would think of applying to the Chopin recital given last evening by Sigismond Stojovski at the Sulgrave Club, for the sympathy of the interpreter with the music he was discoursing vitalized every piece. Coming so soon after the Brailovski exhibition of dry-point etchings, Stojovski's array of aquarelles was all the more enjoyable.

Despite the repudiation of the past by our impatient century, there is something to be said for tradition in the arts. Stojovski, who is on the verge of his sixty-eighth birthday, can remember his contacts with a pupil of Chopin, and memories of this kind have an indelible quality; moreover his Polish blood gives him a kinship to that part of Chopin which was not French. In his readings one accordingly feels as affinity with the music of his countryman.

Although the peak of Stojovski's virtuosity has been passed, his technique has brilliance when he chooses to employ it. But it was not with the surface scintillance of Chopin that he was concerned last evening; rather was he bent upon the essence of the music which is so evasive that some players never capture it. What he disclosed, some times more fully than at others, was the union of languour and fire, of romantic ardency and melancholic musing. In his readings were apparent the fluctuations of dreamy harmonies and flashing melodic ideas, of poetic delicacies and rebellious protests.

Dr. A. B. Potorf Defends Pacifism in Club Talk

The "believing Christian has his own cross to bear" and his own "Jerusalem to face," Dr. A. B. Potorf, of the faculty of American University, told members of the Cosmopolitan Club yesterday in an address at their luncheon meeting.

Pilot and Aides of Missing Plane

Associated Press Photos.

On Capitol Hill

By the Associated Press.

Legislation authorizing regulation of over-the-counter dealers and brokers in securities won approval of the Senate yesterday without a record vote.

It approved and sent to the House a bill by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, which would permit associations of securities dealers to impose self-regulation under supervision of the Securities Commission.

Senator Maloney told the Senate the legislation was another step in Government supervision of securities transactions under the Securities and Exchange act.

* * * *

Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, proposed yesterday to place upon the Federal Reserve Board the duty of regulating dollar value and fixing the national price-level. He told the Senate he would introduce a bill which also would make the board obedient only to Congress.

The Reserve Board would be directed to fix and maintain the price level at a point within 2 per cent of the all-commodity index established by the Labor Department for 1926. It also would be ordered "to establish a dollar of stable, permanent debt-paying and purchasing power."

* * * *

The O'Mahoney bill extending the provisions of the commodity exchange act to include dealings in wool-tops futures won Senate approval yesterday. It now goes to the House. Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, author of the bill, said the legislation was advocated by wool-growers desirous of making the wool-tops futures exchange subject to the same regulations that relate to other commodity exchanges.

* * * *

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, charged "four or five big oil companies" yesterday with controlling the price of gasoline and oil. "You will find no competition in price," Borah told a Senate judiciary sub-committee. "That's been true for four or five years."

The veteran foe of monopoly made these observations at a hearing on a bill by Senator Gillette (Democrat), Iowa, to require separation of marketing petroleum products from production, refining and transporting. The measure would fine companies up to $10,000 for not divorcing marketing from production, processing and transporting.

The Senate adopted yesterday a bill by Senator Truman (Democrat), Missouri, forbidding unlicensed drivers to operate motor vehicles in interstate commerce. Truman said the bill would not become effective for four years, and that no machinery for Federal enforcement would be established.

Architectural Honor Given to William Suite

William Suite, of 2432 Tunlaw road northwest, won second place in the Lebrun Travelling Scholarship competition, conducted by the New York chapter of the American Institute of Architects, it was announced yesterday.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Abnormally Jealous of Woman Her Husband Knew Before Marriage, Young Wife Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: To you, my problem may seem foolish. But to me my very life depends on its solution. To begin with, I am 20 years old, have been married two years and have a 9-month-old son. I went with my husband more than a year before we were married. During this time we were crazy about each other. It was a bargain between us that we were to go with no one else and I, at least, stuck to my word.

* * * *

After we had been going together about a year he got a job in a town about 200 miles away. Before he left, we promised to be true to each other. He was so earnest and I trusted him so that I could not have imagined him being untrue to me, even if no promise had been made. He was to send for me in a few weeks—just as soon as he had enough money saved for us to start housekeeping. He wrote to me every day or so, telling me he was being true and urging me to be true to him or it would break his heart. During the whole time he was away I hardly left the house; just sat around in a daze, crying my heart out for him. Two months after he left we were married.

* * * *

I was talking to a friend about a month ago, and she told me my husband had started going with a married woman almost immediately on his arrival in the town, and that he went with her all the time he was separated from me. I have talked it over with him. At first, he denied even knowing her, but after a long time he confessed going with her. This woman is still crazy about him and living in the same town with her is driving me crazy. She is all I think of from morning until night. Every time my husband is late (he has to work a lot at night) I have the conviction he is with her. I cry nearly all the time and am on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I feel as if I cannot trust my husband out of my sight. All my faith in him has been destroyed.

* * * *

I know this woman would go with him now if she got the chance. Had I known about their association before we were married, it could easily have been forgotten. I love my husband so desperately that I would not leave him for anything in the world. Yet I can't continue like this. Maybe you can help me find faith and trust in him again. As things are today I am just

BROKEN-HEARTED.

The Man's Psychology.

DEAR BROKEN-HEARTED: Your husband's pre-marital deceit was bad enough, but your present conduct is worse. Your hysterical goings-on are calculated to drive him straight into the other woman's arms, if anything could. No man can stand a woman's tears for long, and particularly not when they are used as a weapon of reproach and punishment against him. The guiltier his conscience the less he can stand constant scene-making predicated on his dereliction.

* * * *

It has been said (and it is ironically true) that so long as a man strives to keep his infidelities, technical or spiritual, a secret from his wife or sweetheart, she is still the No. 1 woman in his life. When the day comes that he is perfectly willing that she shall know him for the unworthy creature he is, when he no longer deems it worth the effort to keep her thinking, at all costs, that he is 100 per cent loyal and faithful, she may know that his love for her has breathed its last. The wise woman, therefore, who espies her husband straying in adjacent pastures will not only close her eyes to that dismaying spectacle, supposing she wishes to have and to hold him, but she will aid and abet him in his earnest pretense that it must have been two other persons; or, at the very least, that he was only fooling. Her only alternative to putting on rose-colored blinders is to pack up her bags and stalk out of that situation altogether.

* * * *

Bravely undertaking to explain men to women, John Beeckman tells us in his recent book, "The Way to His Heart," that men are by nature loyal but unfaithful to their mates. He gives us to understand that a man may indulge in one or several passing flirtations without his loyalty to his wife being affected in the least. I think this interpretation of your husband's conduct is the greatest and perhaps the only consolation you can apply to your breaking heart.

* * * *

After all, his interest in the other woman didn't prevent his marrying you; nor did it prevent his making you entirely happy until your trouble-making so-called "friend" thrust her hypodermic injection of vicious gossip into the situation. Presumably, then, it didn't damage his love for you in the slightest; may even have enhanced his reverent appreciation of you, if anything. As I see it, the worst actor, so far as sheer malicious intent is concerned, is that person who told you about an outlived and best-forgotten episode. The next-worst actor, right now, is yourself.

Since you love your husband "so desperately" that you "wouldn't leave him for anything," I can only suggest that you crack down on that hysteria of yours, put the lid on it, and accept your husband for what he is—a susceptible man, easily tempted to stray a little, who knows his own frailility, but has tried to keep it a secret from you, and whose exaggerated insistence upon mutual fidelity was his way of trying to protect your mutual relationship from those dangers his own weakness invited.

* * * *

Don't think he deliberately betrayed and deceived you; that he is not to be trusted, essentially; that he doesn't really love you and is enamoured of the other woman. Just think of him as a man whose masculine weaknesses are a little more exaggerated than those of the average man; as a man who is not and never will be emotionally self-sufficient; who must always have a woman companion to lean on, turn to, confide in and share his leisure hours and recreational activities with. And make up your mind that you are going to be that woman—because you have the inside track on all other women, through occupying the handy and intimate position of his wife; because you know him, his weaknesses, his preferences, his good points, better than any other woman is ever going to get the chance to learn them; because you love him so deeply and so necessitously that you are willing to tolerate his shortcomings without flinching or whimpering.

* * * *

This agony of fear and jealousy you are undergoing is the common portion of nearly every bride or young wife some time during the early years of marriage. In my opinion, you are making a dangerous mountain out of what was, essentially, an innocuous molehill, in kicking up all this fuss about a flirtation that had run its course before marriage, and that involved a married woman to boot. With your moping and crying and scene-making, you are tearing your marriage apart with your own hands.

* * * *

The only way to get the situation under control, objectively as well as subjectively, is to dry your tears, laugh at your fears, apologize to your husband for your conduct and your suspicions, telling him they have been most unworthy of both of you; give him (and yourself) a solemn pledge to grow up, to stop acting like a baby who thinks her stick of candy is about to be taken away, and hereafter never let him know, by the flicker of an eyelash, that you are jealous of other women, or that you are brooding over his comings and goings with sick suspicion. Frankly, I think you need more spiritual sustenance. I think sincerely intentioned church attendance might help you a lot. I think you are trying to make your husband a substitute for God, and that is perilous substitution indeed. M. H.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, March 31.

ALICE HUGHES

QUITE A FEW years ago, as the film unwinds, our great Borough of Brooklyn produced a movie star of very high power indeed. She came on in the goofy post-war period, when youth went completely daffy, when little boys toted tin flasks of kitchen gin, and when little girls exposed their knees for the first time in modern history. Her name was Clara Bow, and was the archtype of the youth of that unlamented era.

After Bow retired to wifehood, motherhood and the proprietorship of a Hollywood hamburger-emporium, Brooklyn faded from the cinema scene. Nearly 30 years ago it had produced the Talmadges—Norma, Connie and Natalie. Then came the Bow. Then no one—until a few weeks ago.

Now comes the great and mysterious Affaire Goldwyn—the sudden disclosure of the fact that his exotic Scandinavian cutie, Sigrid Gurie, who plays opposite Cowhand Gary Cooper, was actually born in the big borough across the East River, and then was taken to Norway, where she spent most of her life until four years ago when she was "discovered" by the Bald Eagle of Beverly Hills, or Sam Goldwyn (nee Goldfisch). He and his wife and Miss Gurie, on their way through here toward Europe, laughed heartily. "Knew she was born in Brooklyn all the time," chuckled Sam. Thus the old showman has put over a fairly high-class hoax on the film public, since his press people have rather stressed the point that the Gurie has been hidden away in his little red schoolhouse, trying to whip the English language.

Of course, it really doesn't make much difference, since it came out through her attempts to get a divorce from a vague Mr. Stuart, vague at least to her. It's all just another silly manifestation of that dear Hollywood. My only fear now is that that other and more famous Scandinavian, one Garbo, is not Stockholm-born at all, but really worked in a bake-shop in the American Northwest. People like the jocose Mr. Goldwyn sort of make us lose faith in things!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: Two ladies of our business world up and married the other day. One, Countess Hoyos, who began life as a Smith and then married a Viennese gentleman of title, married John C. Ten Eyck, jr., also divorced The Countess Alice has been working for Miss Tobe, the fashion pundit. The other bride from our crowd was Constance Hope, one of the city's busiest press agents, who married Dr. Milton Berliner. Her wedding, since she has a lot of fancy musical clients, was adorned with extra-special song. Mme. Lotte Lehmann and the famed tenor Lauritz Melchior, both of the Metropolitan, exercised their larynxes for the happy bride. Miss Hope had her name legally changed from Bernstein some years ago, and then legally switched to Berliner. After which Miss Lily Pons and Mr. Emanuel List sang a few, and all was gay and bright.

Right on schedule came my invitation to address the graduating class of the Columbia University School of Journalism—and, as usual, I shall learn far more from these fledgeling newspaper people than they will from me.

One of the best stores on the avenue has hit on a very smart idea. With every dress they sell, they attach a swatch of the same material, so that instead of dragging the dress to match with any sort of accessory, they merely take the bit of material. This is the most helpful thought of its sort I have encountered, and I recommend it to the stores in your city.

Five Simple Rules Banish Oily Skin

Follow five rules and oily skin will eventually give way to the kind of skin every woman craves. Perc Westmore, movie make-up expert, offers the five rules and has seen them work:

1. Reduce fats and oils in the diet to a minimum. Cut down on sugar and starches. In their place substitute plenty of fresh and dried fruits and vegetables.
2. Arrange for regular exercises in the morning and evening so that they can be followed by a warm shower. Pay particular attention to those stretches and bends that get the upper part of the body.
3. Use lots of soap and warm water, washing the face at least three times a day and following each with an astringent.
4. Apply an astringent mask to the face once or twice a week. Use cream rouge and a good powder foundation daily.
5. Get nine hours of sleep every night and drop the nervous tension several times during the day for a few moments of complete relaxation.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

THE LONGER an eligible young bachelor remains unattached the more we want to know what kind of girl appeals to him, so I asked Nino Martini pointblank his preferences. To have a chance with this debonnaire singer, a girl must be—as I learned—just right.

"Slim?" I questioned, with the idea of launching him on my favorite topic.

"Oh, no!" Mr. Martini declared. "Those Hollywood girls are disgusting. You can see their bones! I never look twice at a thin woman. I like them just right, and—" he added thoughtfully, "blonde."

"Just right is rather vague," I said. "Let's get this straight. You mean you like them fat and blonde?"

The Discriptive Curve.

"No," Mr. Martini denied. "I like them this way," and he drew an imaginary but descriptive curve in the air. "For example, if a girl is 5 feet 5 inches tall, she shouldn't weigh 160 pounds. That is too much. She should be around 130." April fool . . . he likes 'em slim! He probably wouldn't look once at a woman who was too fat.

If it is the feminine prerogative to change one's mind, it seems to be the masculine prerogative to contradict oneself. Calisthenics is another thing Mr. Martini says he does not believe in. All nonsense, he says. But he goes on such a tear that he can't always wait for taxis. When he is in Hollywood, he plays tennis twice a day. His latest enthusiasm is the Big Apple! And there is enough activity to keep anyone from being overweight.

And on the subject of diet. He eats very sensibly and when busy often makes a meal of fruit. If you should be lucky enough to be invited to dine with this forthright young actor, however, be sure and eat! His pet peeve is the girl who nibbles her food and apologizes for being on a diet . . . and that is the sentiment of the entire masculine population!

Females Overdo Things.

Perhaps there is some justification for this typically masculine viewpoint, so full of contradictions and yet so insistent that a woman be "just right." Women do tend to go to extremes. If we let ourselves take on a little weight, we are apt to turn into regular butterballs; and when we reduce, we reduce until we are down to skin and bones.

In Mr. Martini's opinion there are just two kinds of unattractive women: The ones who make such a fetish of dieting that they wreck their looks and those who ignore their figures entirely—and wreck their looks. Make normal weight and lovely proportions your goal and you won't fall into either class.

American Legs.

The shapeliness of American women's legs was attributed to the popularity of walking shoes with low built-up heels by Franciska Gaal, Hungarian film star who plays the leading feminine role in "The Buccaneer."

"The high-heeled shoes worn almost constantly by fashionable Europeans," she said, "may give the ankles a slim appearance, but they bunch the muscles in the calf of the leg."

Complete Social Victory Over Capital Scored By Officers From Visiting British Cruiser York

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

The British took Washington yesterday. After a seige of several days, H. M. S. York chalked up a complete social victory as its officers stood stanchly by their guns for a constant round of feting. Beginning with their own "at home" aboard the cruiser in the afternoon, continuing to hold the spotlight through the dinner hour, and ending up with a dance at the British Embassy last night, their social program left no free time on their hands. But they seemed to like the arrangement.

HOPE R. MILLER.

In their trimly turned out uniforms, set off with yards of braid, gold buttons and wing collars, they proved their prowess as hosts yesterday afternoon when several hundred naval notables, official celebrities and debutantes climbed the York gangplank to sample their hospitality. White-capped tars clicked their heels and saluted as each guest came aboard and filed onto the quarter-deck, where the party took place. A shrill whistle split the air as naval officers came on deck, and a bugle sounded as each admiral approached or departed. Vice Admiral Sidney J. Meyrick, flanked by members of his personal staff, greeted the guests, chatted briefly with the "lesser lights" among them and then clicked to attention again as the whistle sounded or the bugle blew.

The canopied quarter-deck was rigged up for the occasion with red and white bunting and small Japanese lanterns arranged in a center row overhead and around the sides. At one end the vice admiral's band played a series of lively airs. Opposite them, and above the crowd, two of the cruiser's six 8-inch guns pointed their noses straight ahead. Centering the quarter-deck, a line of tables was arranged in horse-shoe design, and there guests were served their choice drinks and hors d'ouvres . . . while officers buzzed about . . . bowed and smiled . . . and answered a barrage of questions. Yes, they liked Washington, found it "amazingly interesting." They would be loathe to leave on Saturday, even though they would be heading for "a quiet two months in Bermuda."

Many Notables Glimpsed in Crowd

The British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay were among the earlier arrivals, and they remained for almost two hours. In fact, the entire embassy staff seemed to be on hand during the entire party. Also mingling in the crowd were several wives of the York officers. Mrs. Meyick was there, and so were Mrs. A. C. Luce, who wore a handsome green wool suit with a dashing felt hat turned up on the side and trimmed with a feather, and Mrs. B. I. Robertshaw in a brown ensemble.

Holding a little naval court of her own was Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, whose black suit and sable neckpiece was set off with a snappy black straw turban. Today she will be hostess to wives of the York officers, taking them for a sail down the Potomac in the "Sequoia." Seen chatting with Mrs. Swanson were the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, the latter in a stunning black ensemble.

The Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. George Pettingill were there; also, the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams, the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, who was turned out in full uniform and was accompanied by his wife, Donna Bianca Cugia. Also, resplendent in gold-braided glory was the Japanese Naval Attache, who arrived with his wife, Mme. Kengo Kobayashi and Commander Kanzo Miura.

Among others I saw there were Mrs. Emmet Gudger, Mrs. Tyner Dugdale, Mrs. Geoffrey Parsons, the Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney and the former's daughter, Miss Anne Mahoney, Mrs. Joseph Cecil and her daughter, Miss Caroline Cecil, Mrs. Emmet Gudger, Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard, and Commander Hamilton Bryan.

Climaxing the round of social events for the day, the dance at the British Embassy got under way at 10 o'clock. Daffodils and forsythia from the Embassy gardens decorated the ballroom where around 250 guests danced to the tunes of Sidney's orchestra until midnight, when supper was served at small tables.

Officers Feted at Several Dinners Before Dance

Preceding the dance there were several dinners for officers of the York and a few fortunate residential Washingtonians. The Naval Attache and Mrs. F. C. Bradley entertained in compliment to Vice Admiral and Mrs. S. J. Meyrick in their apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Others in the company were the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; Capt. H. E. Morse, Chief of Staff of the H. M. S. York; Flag Lieut. J. S. H. Lawrence; Mrs. W. S. Mann, daughter of the South African Minister and Mrs Ralph William Close, and the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart.

The Air Attache of the British Embassy, Group Captain G. C. Pirie and Mrs. Pirie also had dinner guests in their home on Highland place. In the party were four officers of the York—Commander A. A. Murray, Lieut. A. A. Wood, Midshipman A. H. St. G. Gore-Langton, and Paymaster Midshipman R. H. P. Browne, also Squadron Leader A. F. Britton who is not connected with the York, and Mrs. Britton, Miss Edith Beardall, Miss Louisa Popham, and Miss Nancy Brereton.

With the exception of one guest, Mrs. Harold Hinton, the list for the dinner given by the Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. F. J. A. Coleby was an all-York affair. In the company were Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. B. I. Robertshaw, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. A. Cecil Luce, Paymaster Commander R. H. Pearce, Commander G. D. Beiben, and Engineer Commander H. F. du M. Hunt.

Fourteen guests attended the dinner given by the Honorary Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Harold H. Sims, who entertained in their Wardman Park apartment. Those present included Lieut. Comdr. C. G. W. Donald, Maj. L. Mercer, Sergt. Comdr D. H. Kernohan, and Paymaster Commander G. A. Youle—all of the York staff.

Also in the party were Lady Maxmuller, of London; the Third Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. H. A. C. Rumbold, Mrs. C. Matthew Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Joyce, Miss Margot Garrett, Miss Phyllis Thompson, and Benjamin Plunkett, Attache of the British Embassy.

Diplomats Attend Musicale At the Bulgarian Legation

Naoumoffs Give First Large Party Since Their Marriage Last Summer; Ivan Petroff, a Fellow Countryman, Sings for Guests.

Despite such counter-attractions as a dance at the British Embassy and the opening night of the Fort Myer Society Circus, last evening found a distinguished gathering at the Bulgarian Legation on Woodland drive. There the Minister and Mme. Naoumoff entertained at a musicale with Ivan Petroff, a fellow countryman, as artist.

This is the first large party the Naoumoffs have given since their marriage last summer in Sofia. Mme. Naoumoff met her husband when she worked in the press section of the foreign office there. Young and talented, she speaks English, French and German as well as her native tongue.

Hostess Gowned In Blue Crepe

Wearing a simply made gown of heavy blue crepe, with a draped neckline, Mme. Naoumoff received her guests at the head of the curving stairway which leads to the second floor. The program took place in the drawing room which opens onto a long garden. Mr. Petroff's selections included several Bulgarian songs, works of Italian composers and as his piece de resistance, "Figaro," from "The Barber of Seville." Mr. Petroff, who has been staying at the legation, leaves today for New York, where he will give a concert tomorrow. A member of the National Opera Association, in Bulgaria, where opera is run by the government, he has been on a concert tour of the United States and has given several programs over the radio from Manhattan. He studied in Vienna and Rome.

The drawing room of the Legation was filled last evening with a profusion of flowers. In silver bowls were aranged yellow roses and red carnations, while tall gladioli in pastel shades were in vases on low tables. The dining room, where the guests adjourned after the music, was decorated with a mixture of spring flowers, including tulips and daffodils.

Numerous Diplomats Among the Guests

Many "chefs de mission" were among the guests last evening. The Balkan countries were represented by the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fottich, and the Charge d'Affaires of Rumania and Mme. Babes. Also present were the German Ambassador, Hans Dieckhoff; the Minister of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne; the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de los Rios, the Mexican Envoy and Senora Casillo Najera, and the Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom.

Associate Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Roberts. Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis were early arrivals, and other guests included the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George Messersmith; Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffat, Mr. and Mrs. Orsen Nielsen and Mr. and Mrs. Michael McDermott. Mr. McDermott is head of the press division of the State Department.

Civilian society was represented by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Miller, who are generally on hand where anything musical is concerned; the former Governor of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, and half a hundred others.

Mr. Sklarevski Gives Concert

Music lovers assembled last evening at the home of Mrs. Richard W. Deaver on Brandywine street for a concert by Alexander Sklarevski, followed by a reception.

Wearing a frock of white chiffon and a corsage of orchids, Mrs. Deaver received the guests in her drawing room. Assisting were Mrs. Robert Moran, Mme. Tamara Dmitrieff and Miss Willa Semple. About, 50 persons heard Mr. Sklarevski's program, which was given under the aegis of the Dmitrieff-Gnoocheff studios.

Serving on the committee for the concert were Miss Rose d'Amore, Mme. Dmitrieff, Mrs. Gustav Emery, Miss Tatiana Gnoocheff and Miss Mildred Shackleford. Patronesses for the event, in addition to Mrs. Deaver, were Mrs. Roger P. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Jasper A. Lyon, Mrs. Arthur T. Lyon, Mrs. Robert Moran, Princess Leonid Curusoff, Mrs. Raymond S. Patton, Mrs. Earl R. Templeton, Mrs. Ross Thompson and Mrs. Ralph Wolfe.

Betty Vandenberg And Husband Plan West Coast Trip

It will be some weeks before Washington sees the former Betty Vandenberg and her husband of a few days, Edward Pfeiffer. From Bermuda, where they are now honeymooning, the couple will sail for California by way of the Panama Canal.

Mr. and Mrs. Pfeiffer will make their future home either in New York or California, it is reported.

Betty Young Engaged To Marry Vernon Ahn

Mr. and Mrs. John Mehrer Young, of Washington and Philadelphia, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty Young, to Vernon Ahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Ahn, of Baltimore. No date has been set for the wedding.

The bride-elect was educated at William and Mary College. Her fiance attended school in Annapolis and also was graduated from Temple University. He is now connected with a steamship company in Baltimore.

German Aide and Wife Give Party at Miami

The First Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Herbert Scholz, who have been sojourning in Miami, en route to New Orleans, entertained at a cabana and beach party at the Pancoast Hotel there earlier in the week in honor of visiting officers of the German ship Meteor.

The Scholzes will proceed on to New Orleans, where Dr. Scholz will substitute for the German consul general, who was injured in a motor accident.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

FROM THE ADMIRAL to the "snotties," or midshipmen, the personnel of H. M. S. York has done as much as a treaty expert to further "hands across the sea." Washington is going to seem awfully unglamorous when these friendly officers depart tomorrow.

DUDLEY HARMON.

Lots of ladies in heels much too high for scurrying up ladders were escorted over the ship yesterday and learned all about semaphores, compasses, minesweepers, and airplane catapults. In a small gallery below decks is a picture of the King and Queen. The Queen christened the ship when she was Duchess of York. She presented her with a gold tankard which is now framed on the wall. The city of York memorized the occasion with a silver loving cup and plate, which is also in a glass case.

* * * *

IN HIS leisure, which is extremely rare in these complicated times, the Assistant Secretary of State, George Messersmith, likes to read detective stories. An entire row of shelves in the library of his Georgetown home is filled with thrillers, ranging in title from "The Corpse With the Floating Foot" to "Monsieur Faux-Pas," evidently a French idea of something blood-curdling.

The other evening our former (and as it has turned out, our next to last) Minister to Austria and Mrs. Messersmith entertained at a large buffet supper for members of the Foreign Service who have been detailed to Washington for study. The Messersmith home, where Viscount J. H. de Sibour formerly lived, is one of the largest in the neighborhood. The drawing room is particularly attractive, extending the length of the house, with walls tinted a pale green and red brocaded draperies. Supper was served in the adjoining covered patio, which has windows high up in the wall filled with boxes of geraniums.

Among the guests was Miss Virginia Layton, Mrs. Messersmith's charming niece from Wilmington, Del., who is engaged to William Barnes, of the Foreign Service. Their wedding is scheduled for July in Wilmington.

Others there were Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, the Director of the Foreign Service School and Mrs. J. Klahr Huddle, who are occupying Mrs. Benjamin Thaw's house here; G. Howland Shaw, Mrs. Geoffrey Parsons, and the students at the school.

IN THIS COLUMN the other day we transported Viscountess Milton back to New York when at the last moment she changed her mind and decided to stay on here a few more days. Today the Minister to Latvia and Mrs. Frederick Sterling are entertaining her informally at luncheon at the 1925 F Street Club. The Sterlings knew her when the minister was our envoy to Ireland . . . A few more parties to enliven the limping season: the dinner which Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling will give April 12 . . . The new Brazilian envoy, Mario Brandao, will leave by plane on Sunday from Rio de Janeiro for Washington. Meanwhile, the entire staff of the embassy here, with the exception of the Naval Attache and the Commercial Counselor, will set off soon for Rio to help former Ambassador Vargas with his new job as Foreign Minister.

Miss Buffy Rappleye To Visit Kitty Magill

In compliment to her house guest, Kitty will entertain 12 of her friends at a party tomorrow evening. The event will take place in her parents' apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Pageant With Oxen and Horses Diverts Gay Throng at Ft. Myer

Capt. T. J. H. Trapnell, Disguised as Tamerlane, Opens 'Hoofprints of 1938' With Display of Hurdle Jumping.

By Elizabeth Ford.

Messrs. Barnum and Bailey and their slight three-ring divertisement had better come to town in a hurry if they want to keep up with "Hoofprints of 1938." There was everything on the program at the Fort Myer Show last evening but a steam calliope, an elephant and a tiger in a cage.

From the front row boxes to the rafters of the Riding Hall, every available square inch of spectator space was jammed by members of society. After several penitential weeks of hard-bottom gilt chairs; high "C's"; and visiting artists, local lights relaxed comfortably as Capt. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, disguised as Tamerlane, took half a dozen hurdles in his horse's stride. At this "soiree," starting promptly at 8:30 o'clock, nobody had any trouble staying awake, either.

Wainwrights There For Colorful Drills

"Army blue" was all over the place with Col. J. M. Wainwright especially resplendent in a uniform trimmed with the traditional broad yellow banding of the cavalry corps. With him, of course, was Mrs. Wainwright. Attracting a good deal of attention also was Maj. Gen. John K. Herr, new chief of cavalry and Mrs. Herr. Senator Ernest Lundeen of Minnesota and Mrs. Lundeen, as well as Representative and Mrs. Richard M. Kleberg of Texas were members of the Congressional set attending the event last evening.

Also on hand was the Chief of Chaplains, U. S. A., Chaplain William R. Arnold, who was the guest of Chaplain Ora J. Cohee. Still others present were Col. and Mrs. Iverson B. Summers, Gen. Lorenzo D. Gasser; and Col. Leonard T. Gerow.

Both the Polish and German embassies have taken boxes, with the Polish contingent planning to attend one of the later performances. Rumor is also having it that the President, himself, may be there for the Sunday evening show if he gets back from Warm Springs on time.

Gen. and Mrs. Malin Craig, who were not able to be present for the first performance, will be there this evening, and, among those going tomorrow, will be Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, who will have with them Mrs. Holcomb's sister, Miss Eudora Clover; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Thomas C. Hart, who will have a box party of young people; Mrs. Sherman Miles, and Mrs. David J. Rumbough, whose son, Ma. J. W. Rumbough, will come down from New York City for the show.

Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, one of the patrons for the affair, entertained at dinner last evening, taking her guests, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hupp, of Kansas City, Mo., onto the event afterward. Maj. and Mrs. Milton Boone also gave a dinner before the show.

Mrs. Hines Portrays Wife of Tamerlane

Mrs. John L. Hines, jr., portrayed Algai, first wife of the much be-married Tamerlane, and arrived on the scene early in the program atop a two-wheeled cart drawn by oxen. (At least Maj. Milholland said they were oxen and we don't split hairs with the United States Cavalry.) No sooner had she appeared than the gymnastic riders of the Machine Gun Troop, dressed up to look like Tartars, gallivanted into the spotlight on 12 highly schooled horses in an elaborate drill calculated to raise anybody's blood pressure to a new high.

After that the Headquarters Troop dashed into the hall, carrying torches and prancing around in what is known as a bridleless ride . . . which looks a lot harder than it reads, Capt. Reynolds Condon, as the Emir of Samarkand comes out on the thin end of an argument with Tamerlane, who takes over the Emir's wife (Mrs. T. J. H. Trapnell) . . . the horse show has been too much for Algai who has died in the meantime.

Then there was the tandem ride performed by Tamerlane's odalisques, whom spectators recognized as some of Washington's most attractive girls.

Many Local Girls Are in Hunt Ride

The last number of part two was the hunt ride in which the Misses Elizabeth Burnett, Betty Balsley, Betty Brooks, Margaret Cotter, Mary McKim Crane, Ann Hagner, Ann Johnson, Jean Ellen O'Connor, Blair Rogers, Lisbeth Steig and Mrs. John R. Pugh take part. Other young ladies in the show included Miss Margaret McMullen, Miss Gertrude Pearson, Miss Kay Pearson, Miss Sue Hardenburgh, Miss Carolyn Chantry, Miss Patricia Brewer, Miss Alexandrine Rowam, Miss Stellita Stapleton and Miss Maria Whitehurst.

Part there was "Life and Death on the Prairie" complete with Indians, pioneers, covered wagons and excitement. Mrs. John Meade portrayed a frontier woman, and Troop E, of the Third Cavalry, were Indians for the scene.

"Hoofprints" will be made again tonight, tomorrow night and Sunday night. The whole presentation is under the direction of Capt. John D. Reybold, who ought to receive a 21-gun salute for the excellent work he has done, not only with arranging the various "scenes" but also in planning the elaborate and colorful costumes.

The Shearers Have 'At Home'

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Shearer were at home to a few friends yesterday afternoon at their residence on Sixteenth street.

Among those about the buffet in the study and admiring Mr. Shearer's marine paintings were Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Oscar G. Feagan, Mrs. Emil Ludwig, Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Calhoun, Mme, Orlics Brejska, Dr. Vladimir Rybar, Counselor of the Yugoslav Legation.

Also Mrs. Joyce Booth, Resid Anamur, of the Turkish Embassy; Mrs. Matilde Schultze, Dan Waters, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kendall, Miss Reba Doughton, Mrs. G. C. Haas, Paolo Hasslocher, of the Brazilian Embassy, and many others.

Miss Jane Perry Will Be Married to John Vandercook

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Perry, of Washington and New York, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to John W. Vandercook. The marriage will take place in June.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of the late John F. Vandercook, founder and first president of the United Press Association, and Mrs. Margaret W. Vandercook. He is a writer and explorer.

Miss Perry was graduated from the Brearley School in 1934 and is now a senior at Vassar College.

Nuptials Today For Mrs. Thayer

Of interest to the Capital is the wedding today in New York of Mrs. Eugene van Rensselaer Thayer the former Miss Elizabeth Harding, daughter of the late William P. G. Harding, a governor of the Federal Reserve Board during the Wilson Administration.

Mrs. Thayer will be married to Vadim Makaroff, yachtsman and caviar magnate, the son of a czarist Russian naval commander.

Mrs. Thayer is the former Mrs. Frederick H. Prince, jr., of Boston. Mr. Thayer, her second husband, died last year.

Give Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong gave a dinner last evening in honor of Mrs. Allan Kirk and her daughter, Miss Marian Kirk. The affair took place at the Chevy Chase Club.

150 Attend Fiesta Given By City Club

Mexican Costumes Serapes and Flags Used as Decorations.

Miss Mary Clifford, Attired as Caballero, Receives Guests.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Mexican costumes, serapes and flags provided color last night at the fiesta held by the Women's City Club. More than 150 guests attended the affair, which included a supper with a Mexican menu and an entertainment of songs, dances and motion pictures of the country.

Miss Ethel Bagley, a sister of Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the United States Ambassador to Mexico, was responsible for many of the interesting decorations. There were baskets, shawls and other bright suggestions of Old Mexico in every room. Mrs. Thomas A. Sherman also had contributed to the evening's collection of "atmosphere," a group of unusual Mexican hats.

As the guests entered they were greeted by Miss Mary Clifford, dressed as a caballero in a broad sombrero and spangled jacket and trousers, and Miss Lois Garlock, treasurer of the fiesta, also in a man's costume, with a toy pistol on the table beside her cash box.

Club President In Striking Costume

Mrs. Gladys Ball Middlemiss, acting president of the club, wore a black gown with a large red flower as the trimming and across the front of her hair a spray of matching red blossoms. Mrs. Margaret Hill, hostess at the club, likewise was in black, enlivened with red flowers, one on her dress and another tucked under the brim of her black hat.

Mrs. Henry Anson Bates, chairman of entertainment, had the co-operation of the Mexican Embassy in providing the guests real Mexican music during the dinner. Records of tunes familiar in Old Mexico, but little known in this country, were loaned for the occasion. The dinner menu included chili con carne, hot tamales, green salad, coffee and for dessert cream cheese, guava paste and crackers.

The guests were served at small tables arranged in the drawing room and music room, and spread with paper covers in bright flower designs. A group of club members, in Mexican costume served.

Songs and Dances Comprise Program

The program which was presented during the dinner and followed it, included a tango and rhumba, presented by Miriam Prettyman and Gerald Farr, of the Thayer School of Dance; guitar solos by Arsenio Colle, who appeared through the courtesy of Sophocles Pappas; two solor tangos by Miss Virginia Barry, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Walter Doe; Mexican songs, sung by Mrs. Alenda Cooper, accompanied by Mrs. Izant Couch, who also played a group of piano solos; a dance by two children from the Loretta Murphy School of Dance, Elaine Silbersberg and Jane Mack; a Mexican dance by Betitta Martinez and pictures of Old Mexico, shown by Mrs. Laura Waters and Stewart Wright.

A few among those who attended the affair were Mrs. Sidney Jacobs, who entertained a party of 20 guests; Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bates, Miss Lucy Powell, Mrs. Esther Dodge, Mrs. Don Sanford, Mrs. Nadine Gallagher, Mrs. Phyllis Stewart, Mrs. Campbell Gray, Miss Lulu Withers, Miss Nell Withers, Miss Pearl Jencks, Mrs. Frank Golden, Mrs. Gertrude LeLecheur, Miss Loretta Barnes, Miss Mary Clifford, Miss Anne Singleton, Mrs. Annabell Stewart, Mrs. George Treackle, Mrs. William Sears, Miss Bagley, Miss Charlotte Carmody, Miss Mary Black, Miss Caroline B. Stevens, Miss Dorothy K. Butler, Mrs. Frank Birgfeld, Mrs. Harry Packard, Mrs. John M. Waters.

Mrs. Howard Hodgkins To Pour Tea at Meeting

Mrs. Howard Lincoln Hodgkins will pour tea in the social hour at the monthly meeting of the Columbia Women of George Washington University, on Tuesday, at 4 o'clock at the Columbian House, 2033 G street northwest.

Mrs. Hodgkins will be assisted by Miss Merle Hazzard, Mrs. Charles W. Holmes and Mrs. H. J. Russell McNitt. There will be a short business meeting following the tea, which will be presided over by the president, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin. After the business meeting, the group will be addressed by the president of the university, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, who will discuss "The Problems and Progress of the University During the Past Year."

The annual banquet of the Columbian Women will be held on Saturday, May 7, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Plan Dance Tonight.

Only Woman Coal Operator Backs U. S. Regulation

Federal legislation and federal regulation are essential to the coal industry in the opinion of Miss Josephine Roche, president and general manager of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Co. of Colorado, the only woman operator in the coal industry. Miss Roche, who resigned last November as assistant secretary of the treasury, is here attending the conference of coal producers and the National Bituminous Coal Commission on price establishment procedure.

Investors, management, labor and the public have a vital stake in sound and constructive regulation, she believes.

"For years, she said, "it has been demonstrated that without Government regulation, chaos has prevailed in the industry, with labor, the people, and management all paying a heavy and tragic penalty. During even the brief periods of Federal regulation we have known, all parties have benefiited and made progress."

Miss Roche, small and feminine, dressed in a tailored black suit, a small black hat perched jauntily on her white hair, may have appeared a trifle out of place in that gathering of coal men, but she has earned her right to be there. In 1927, she inherited Colorado coal properties upon the death of her father. She then bought enough stock to enable her to control the company in order that she might change its policy and unionize its labor. Her mines were the first in Colorado to be unionized.

Miss Roche, who in 1934 became assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of public health, said she was definitely out of politics at present. She still maintains a lively interest in public health problems and while in Washington will attend a meeting of the inter-departmental committee for the co-ordination of health and welfare in the Federal Government.

Womens Association Will Give Tea Today

The board of managers of the Women's Christian Association will give its annual tea this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the association residence, 1719 Thirteenth street. Receiving with Mrs. William W. Scott, president, will be Mrs. Philip Ashford and Mrs. Louis Laudick, past presidents of the association, and other members of the executive board.

Those who will preside at the tea table will be Mrs. Walter S. Perry, Miss Mabel Thurston, honorary member, and Miss Frances Chickering, whose mothers were for many years active members. Also Mrs. Wilmer Souder, wife of a member of the advisory committee; Mrs. Thomas Edwards, Mrs. Harry Burford, Mrs. Charles Emery Ferguson and Mrs. Lewis Ryan.

Mrs. Claude Wright is general chairman, assisted by Mrs. J. C. Hemphill, and Mrs. Robert Lyons is chairman of the flower committee.

Mrs. Rebecca Reyber Addresses 'Y' World Fellowship Luncheon

Member of Flying Caravan Sent to South America to Urge Ratification of Buenos Aires Treaties Tells of Her Trip.

Mrs. Rebecca Hourwich Reyher, of New York, who was a member of the flying caravan sent by the People's Mandate Committee to South America last fall to urge ratification of the Buenos Aires Treaties, yesterday addressed the World Fellowship luncheon at the Y. W. C. A. She described the South American trip and its aims and pointed out the value of cultural exchange between the two continents.

Other guests of honor at the luncheon in addition to the speaker were Senorita Trucco, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador; Senora de Guachalla, wife of the Bolivian Minister; Senora de Puga, wife of the Air Attache of the Chilean Embassy, and Miss Mabel Vernon, director of the Mandate committee. Mrs. William S. Culbertson, chairman of the World Fellowship committee, presided.

The countries of Latin America have much to offer, said Mrs. Reyher, mentioning their music, literature and art. The University of Peru antedates any in this country, as does the University of Mexico, she said, and it is with a feeling of humility that we should approach their culture.

Mrs. William Lee Corbin, president of the Y. W. C. A., was among those at the luncheon, as was Mrs. Wilson Compton, first vice president. Among others were Mrs. James Craig Peacock, Miss Elsie Hill, Miss Minerva Bernadino, Mrs. Joseph Cox, Mrs. S. L. Henderson, Mrs. Frank Ballou, Mrs. Charles B. Drayton, of the Fellowship committee; Mrs. Irving Ketchum, Miss Florence Dunlap, Mrs. Arthur D. Call, Mrs. Harry W. France and Mrs. William E. Willoughby, of the committee; Mrs. Harold G. Moulton, of the board of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Frederick M. Feiker, Miss Hettie Anderson and Miss Mabel Charest, of the staff.

Tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in Barker Hall, of the Y. W. C. A., the Girl Reserves will celebrate their twenty-fourth year at a homecoming as they welcome back alumnae. All past and present Girl Reserves are invited. In charge of the program are the Senior High Girl Reserve Council and the alumnae committee composed of Barbara Bachschmid, Mary Lesta, Wakeman, Marjorie Lipske, Mary Ashby and Eleanor Graves Kitterman.

A musical and dramatic production has been planned by the Girl Reserve Glee Club under the direction of Miss Mary Burnett, Mrs. Virginia Sholar and the Girl Reserve Staff. Specialty dances, unique costuming and lighting effects will be included.

The Floradora Sextet is composed of the girls' chorus with Estyleene Lawson, Betty Brooks, Virginia Rice, Gloria Ochsenhreiter, Margaret Snead, Ellen Renwick, and the "boy's chorus" with Mary Watt, Lucy McNeely, Anne Steif, Mary Hastings, Marie Lipske and Ann Roberts.

The highlight of the evening will be the Blue Danube Waltz with eight dancers — Mary Graves, Marie Lipske, Marjorie Stockett, Mary Hastings, Jane Daniel, Anne Steif, Frances Rucker and Lucy McNeely.

Many past Girl Reserve Council presidents and the Mei Ling Girl Reserve Club, youngest in the department, will participate.

Grace Adams East To Play Trumpet In Recital at Club

Grace Adams East, of Berkeley, Calif., considered America's foremost woman trumpeter, will be soloist today at the Congressional Club. Miss East twice in previous years, has been heard in Washington, once as soloist with the United States Navy Band and then with Nelson Eddy.

She has traveled from coast to coast with the symphony orchestras of nearly every large city.

The Congressional Club will have the privilege of hearing her only because of the fact that she will be here on her way to Annapolis to play Sunday at the Naval Academy before sailing April 15 on a world tour, including Australia and New Zealand.

The committee which will greet the guests includes: Mrs. Emmet O'Neal, Kentucky; Mrs. August H. Andresen, Minnesota, and Mrs. Frank E. Hook, Michigan.

Those who will pour are: Mrs. Herman P. Kopplemann, Connecticut; Mrs. Lewis M. Long, Illinois; Mrs. James C. Oliver, Maine, and Mrs. J. Hardin Peterson, Florida.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne.

GUESTS at parties this evening will do well to remember the date and its significance. If they have forgotten it's April 1st, they no doubt will find reminders of one kind or another prepared for their entertainment.

The Colorado State Society is having a spring frolic tonight, frankly announced as an April Fool party with plenty of fun in store. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moore are in charge of the arrangements.

• • • •

THE NORTH CAROLINA DEMOCRATIC CLUB, which always has a big crowd of North Carolinians out for its functions, also is having a dance tonight at the Raleigh. It is called a pre-Easter ball, with no suggestion of April Fool pranks—but you never can tell what may happen.

The committee, of which Marion C. Sedberry is chairman, promises elaborate decorations, dogwood blossoms and honeysuckle vines, which are being sent from the home State for the occasion. A grand march, led by Wesley E. McDonald, president of the club, and Mrs. McDonald, with 100 girls participating, representing their respective counties, will be a feature.

• • • •

AND, State societies no longer need worry about their music. An "All States Glee Club" has been organized under the direction of Lynn L. Gilchrest, and is ready for engagements—will go to any State (society) in the Union. It rehearses Wednesday nights at Central High School.

THE PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION of Anacostia Junior-Senior High School is planning a "shoe shower" soon for the benefit of the student aid, which provides clothing for children of needy families. A bundle day was held a short time ago for the same project.

Anacostia has had to change its meeting date this month from the third Tuesday to the second Tuesday, because of schools being closed Easter week.

• • • •

MRS. LILLY C. STONE entertained at luncheon Tuesday at her estate, Glenmore, just beyond the Congressional Club in Bethesda, for members of the Janet Montgomery Chapter D. A. R., the original chapter in the county.

It was reported that a decision was made at the State conference to start a fund for the Maryland D. A. R. Chapter House. Over $1,800 was pledged for this year.

The Maryland State luncheon will be held April 19 at the Mayflower Hotel for all Maryland D. A. R. members. A tree dedication in the Supreme Court grounds will be held later in the afternoon.

• • • •

MRS. FREDERICK KERBY, chairman of the Big Sisters of the Florence Crittenton Home, will be in charge of the meeting Monday at the home. The presidents of the 23 circles of the Florence Crittenton Home have been invited to this session so that they may take back to their circles a fuller picture of the work carried on by the Big Sisters for the girls leaving the home.

Miss Beatrice Hodgson, assistant executive secretary of the Travelers' Aid Society, will be the guest speaker and tea will be served.

BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS are being received today by the past regent, Mrs. William Phythian, of Columbia Chapter, from her co-workers in the Women of the Moose. She has been an active member of this chapter for the past 15 years, and has served in most of its offices. She has been a past regent for more than 10 years, and at present is recorder of the chapter and has served in that capacity for five years.

She is a member of the local alumni and was one of the first members of the chapter to have the friendship degree conferred upon her for meritorious service. In 1927 she organized the junior chapter for Children of the Moose in this city, and served for a number of years as its governess.

Mrs. Phythian is a past officer of the Order of Pocahontas and of the Shepherds of Bethlehem.

Sorority Plans Luncheon.

The members of Delta Chapter of the Theta Sigma Phi Sorority, of which Miss Sophie Litman is president, will attend a luncheon tomorrow in the crystal room of the Wardman Park Hotel at 2 p. m.

Board of Trade Group Inspects District's Jail

12 Committeemen Find Crowding and Eat Prison Fare.

Evidences of overcrowding and a prison-cooked meal were the fare yesterday in the District Jail of members of a special board of trade committee studying penal institutions.

Addressed by Superintendent Ray L. Huff, and Capt. Thomas Rives, superintendent of the jail, the members of the committee sat around a clean table and ate a 35-cent meal prepared and served by inmates of the institution.

The group, known as the charities and correction committee and headed by John F. Victory, heard the superintendents tell about the "inadequacy of facilities," plans for the future, and then promised their aid "in correcting the evils."

Rives escorted the 12 committee members through the quarters.

In the solitary confinement quarters, a colored prisoner, stripped to his waist and wearing no shoes, cried with delight at seeing the visitors.

One of the committee members questioned the man, who said "I ain't done nothing." A police guard said the prisoner stole another inmate's clothes.

Superintendent Huff presented plans for the future. Included in the present District appropriation bill is an item of $125,000 for the jail. It is planned to build an admissions office and hospital, fronting the present main building, and a wall around the entire grounds. Future plans call for a complete new jail. A population of 996 will be accommodated when the building is completed. At the present time, only 287 prisoners can be accommodated in comfort.

Rives said: "I wish I could show you a good jail, gentlemen, but unfortunately I can't."

The committee backed the Board of Public Welfare in its fight for funds for the continuation of the District Training School for Girls and the Receiving Home, funds for which were deleted by the subcommittee on District Appropriations.

A resolution will be drafted requiring the Commissioners to include the two items in the proposed deficiency bill. The resolution must have the approval of the Board of Trade's executive committee, however, before transmission to the Commissioners.

It was pointed out that to move the Receiving Home from its present quarters, Eighth street and Potomac avenue southeast, to the old Police Court Building, as has been proposed, it would be necessary to correct certain fire hazards in the old building.

Yesterday Fire Marshall Calvin C. Lauber reported he could not approve use of the old structure for residential purposes. It had been planned to remodel the building to suit the purposes of the Receiving Home. A sum of $10,000 has been appropriated by Congress for this purpose.

Bertha Donaldson Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Bertha V. Donaldson, 71, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday. She had been an invalid for several years, confined to her home at 1913 Park Road northwest.

A native of Michigan, Mrs. Donaldson had lived here for about 30 years. Survivors include her husband, William E. Donaldson, formerly with the Weather Bureau, a daughter, Mrs. Nellie A. Hurd, and a grandson, Donald B. Hurd. Funeral services will be held there today at 2 p. m., with burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

Harry B. Denham, Business Man, Dies

A native of Washington, Mr. Denham was a descendant of Josiah Bartlett, signer of the Declaration of Independence. He was vice president of the Columbia Building Association and owned a meat-market.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. M. Elizabeth Denham, a son, Albert O., and two daughters, Dorothy L. and Margaret H. Denham.

Burning Sugar Called Basis of Man's Thought

Electrical Vibration Set Up by Consuming Process, Scientists Report.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 31. — Human thought was declared by a Harvard University scientist today to be probably due to sugar burning in the brain and setting up a chain of chemical and electrical vibrations in it.

It has long been known that the brain generates currents of electricity, some of which are associated with thinking and others with other functions of the body, Dr. Frederic A. Gibbs told the American Physiological Society, meeting here as part of the convention of the Federated Biological Societies.

Result of Vibrations.

Research at Harvard recently has shown that these waves are the result of chemical oscillations, or vibrations, in the brain, and that the "energy supply in the case of brain oscillators appears to be derived from the oxidation (or burning) of sugar."

Further studies on the electrical activity of the brain covering "indicate that it, and probably the whole brain, is an aggregation of small chemical oscillators which can join together to form large oscillators" acting like tuning forks vibrating in harmony, he added.

These chemical vibrations of the brain in turn produce the electrical brain waves which appear to control thought and other bodily activities. In many mental diseases these brain waves become unbalanced.

Discovery of two pieces of brain tissue which act as controls or "pacemakers" for the rest of the brain was reported to the society by Dr. M. A. Rubin, of Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

In Frontal Area.

One of these controlling centers is located in the frontal area of the brain, he declared, and serves to synchronize the rhythm of the right and left halves just as the leader of an orchestra directs his musicians. The other, which lies directly opposite in the back of the head, appears to have a similar, or supporting, function, he added. This discovery may help to explain why persons recovering from brain concussions are unable to orient themselves or perform normally in walking or using their hands.

A superconductor of electricity in the nerves of the body and in the brain was reported by Dr. F. R. Miller, of the University of Western Ontario, Canada.

He declared that acetyl choline, an ordinary chemical in the body, was the agent which sped nerve impulses across the many jumps which occur between one nerve ending and another. It is normally manufactured in the body and controls part of the nervous system and the beating of the heart. Discovery that it is the superconductor in nerve functions may possibly open a new avenue in the treatment of nervous disorders.

Rites Set Today For I. C. C. Aide, Mrs. Coolidge

Served Navy in World War; Burial to Be in Arlington.

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence H. Coolidge, 56, secretary in the Bureau of Traffic, Interstate Commerce Commission, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the W. W. Chambers chapel, 1400 Chapin street northwest. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery. Mrs. Coolidge died Wednesday at Mount Alto Hospital.

She was a member of the U. S. S. Jacob Jones Post, No. 2, American Legion; Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans, and Thomas Marshall Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. She served as vice regent of the chapter last year. She had served as a yeomanette in the United States Navy from April, 1917, to July, 1918.

Memorial services for Mrs. Coolidge were conducted last night at Chambers funeral home by the Jacob Jones Post.

Mrs. Coolidge was a resident of New Hampshire until she came to Washington in the World War. She was connected with the Fine Arts Commission from 1918 to 1922, when she was transferred to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

She is survived by her husband, Frederic A. Coolidge, United States Tariff Commission official.

Funeral Set Tomorrow For Paul Copeland

Paul L. Copeland, 36, writer and president of the Cooperative Club, 1607 I street northwest, died late yesterday after a lingering illness. A native of Michigan, Mr. Copeland served in the Army before he came to Washington some years ago.

Funeral services for Mr. Copeland will be held at the W. W. Chambers undertaking establishment tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

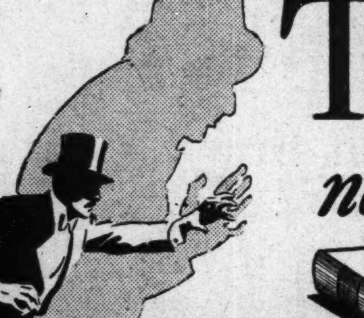
THATCHER COLT nabs the Mysterious Shadow!



1. "Hello, Mr. Colt? This is Thomas McElroy. Can you meet me for dinner tonight?—I need your help. For the past two weeks a mysterious young man has been shadowing me. Frankly, I'm worried for I'm sailing to London tomorrow night on a rather important business matter."

2. "Look, Colt, there he is now at the next table. Every time I go into a restaurant or bar, he follows me in."
"So that's your mysterious shadow, eh? Looks like a harmless chap, but I'll have my men pick him up and bring him in for questioning."

3. "Nothing sinister, Mr. Colt. A friend of Mr. McElroy's wanted to surprise him with a bon voyage assortment of his favorite liquors and I volunteered to find out what they are. Guess I've bungled it all around, for so far I've heard Mr. McElroy order only BLACK HAWK Rye."

4. "So this is the explanation of the mystery! Well, thanks for helping me, Mr. Colt—and now help yourself to a drink of BLACK HAWK! I had to turn detective myself to discover it, for good rye whiskey is hard to find, you know. Just taste it and see what a swell sleuth I am!"

6 D. C. Boxers Win College Tourney Bouts

This Morning..

With Shirley Povich

A Staff Correspondent.

POVICH.

Orlando, Fla.

Young Jimmy Wasdell didn't mean to start an argument on the Nats' bench, but that is what developed when Wasdell chirped "Lookit him go!" as George Case streaked to first base on an infield single.

"He's the fastest thing in this league for my money," added Wasdell.

The rookie first baseman was the recipient of a half dozen severe looks from the veterans within earshot.

"I'll take Ben Chapman," said one cryptically.

"Me, too. All the time," chimed in another with ten years of big league baseball to his credit.

"I dunno about that. This Case can fly. Chapman must be slowing up."

"At 100 yards, Chapman can still take anybody in the league."

"They say Case can run the 100 in 10 seconds flat in his baseball uniform."

"Don't believe that. That stuff is the bunk. Charlie Paddock couldn't do it in 10 flat with baseball shoes. He'll tell you himself he couldn't have done it. We're neighbors out in California. Paddock has told me that a dozen times."

"I doubt if Case can beat Jimmy Foxx at 100 yards."

"You mean Pete Fox, of the Tigers?"

"No, I mean Jimmy Foxx—of the Red Sox. That big boy doesn't look it, but he can travel. He's one of the five fastest men in the league."

"He's right about that, too. I saw Foxx take Wally Moses and Lou Finney of the A's in a race from the home plate to center field fence and beat 'em by plenty."

"Those big guys like Foxx are power runners. They might take 40 or 50 yards to catch up, but after that, they'll breeze past."

"How about Jess Hill? He could go."

"Yeah, that Hill could travel. He used to run with Dough Wyckoff and Charley Borah at Southern Cal and beat 'em at 50 yards."

* * * *

"Don't talk to me about Hill. He's another of those college trackmen. I saw Chapman beat him by plenty in a field meet at Yankee Stadium."

"That's right, I saw that, too."

"Hill was fast, but he was a joke base-runner, like a lot of other college guys. He didn't know how to turn a base. He'd waste 30 yards on the way around, running wide."

"I know a guy who can beat Chapman."

"Who?"

"A pitcher? I don't believe it. No pitcher's gonna beat Chapman."

"This fellow will. Chapman told me so himself, the other day in Tampa. Chappie said the guy was lightning. Ben said Vance outran him ten years ago, when they were both in the minors. 'He's the only fellow in the league who can do it, though, Ben told me."

"I'll tell you a pitcher who can gallop."

"Who?"

"Buck Newsom, that's who. Don't let that goof fool you. He can sprint."

"That's right, too. He can go. I saw him beat that Jo-Jo White in Detroit one day, and they had a bet on it."

"I wish the Yankees had let Chapman run against my man four or five years ago. I offered to bet $200 he'd take Chappie."

"Who was that?"

"That fellow Jim Levy, who used to play shortstop for the Browns. Fastest thing I ever saw in spikes."

"You mean the fellow who used to play football for the Quantico Marines?"

"Yeah, that's the fellow. He used to be in the Marines."

"He might have taken Chapman, at that. I saw him playing football, and if he can go as fast without a football in his hands as he could with one, you had a pretty good bet."

"Darn right I had a good bet. I wish they'd a-let Chappie run him."

"Yeah. I could go pretty god a few years back. I dunno if I was the fastest runner, but I know darn well I ran the most."

"Whaddayamean you ran the most?"

* * * *

"I mean it seemed like every time I got on first base Heinie Manush was up at the bat, and they always gave Manush that hit-and-run sign. That Manush would always get a piece of that ball and run me to death."

"How about Gerald Walker?"

"Not in it with Chapman."

"How about Bill Werber?"

"He'd beat Walker, but Chappie would leave him behind. If you want the fellow who'd probably give Chappie the best race at 100 yards take George Selkirk."

"Can Chapman do the 100 in ten flat?"

"Mel Almada was a ten-second man in school, and he can't run with Chappie."

"I'd like to see Chapman and Ty Cobb hook up when Cobb was in his prime."

"Cobb might beat him around the bases, but Chappie'd take him in a straight-away."

"There ain't anybody in the league who can get to first as fast as Wally Moses."

"Who said there was? We were'nt talkin' about that."

"This fellow Clyde Milan used to scramble down to first to hear Griff tell it."

"Yeah, Griff says some race horsemen used to clock 'em—Cobb, and Speaker and Milan. They'd clock 'em from the crack of the bat and Milan would beat 'em by a fifth."

"Somebody was telling Chapman in Tampa the other day that Case was the fastest thing in the league. Know what Chappie said?"

"No. What'd Chappie say?"

"He said 'Who is this guy Case you're talking about?' I told him he came up from Trenton last fall. Chappie said, 'Well, then, he ain't even in the league—yet.'"

"That sounds like Chappie. But I'll still have to take Case."

Nats' Failure to Hit in Spring Fails to Alarm Bucky Harris

Griffith, However, Fears Loss of So Many Training Games Will Affect Home Gate.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 31.—Bucky Harris, who manages the Washington ball club, refuses to be alarmed by the Nats' six straight defeats at the hands of major league clubs in Florida. He said so today.

"It's nice to win these exhibition games," said Harris, "it's always more fun to win them, but I'm not worrying about our defeats. We've been losing them because we haven't been hitting, and that doesn't alarm me, either.

"I don't have to go back any farther than last spring to see how meaningless these exhibition games are. Last year down here, we were sensations—couldn't lose. And then, when the season started, we lost seven out of the first eight games. My team left all its base hits in Florida.

"This team of mine will hit—I know that. As far as that goes, they've been pounding the ball hard with one or two exceptions, but they've been hitting in bad luck. I never saw so many line drives caught as I've seen this spring."

Harris revealed that he had called a meeting of the Nats' squad today to acquaint the team with his new set of signs, but there was also a bit of speech-making by the Nats' manager who acted at the behest of Owner Clark Griffith.

Despite Harris' philosophy in the matter of exhibition games, Griffith is genuinely worried by the Nats' apparent lack of punch at the plate. The Washington club owner is ever fearful that a string of defeats in the South will affect the ticket sales in Washington. He is a near-forlorn figure as the Nats accept defeat after defeat.

"I still say nothing counts until the season starts," declared Harris, "although Mr. Griffith doesn't like these losses a bit. I told the team today that it would help if we crashed through with some wins against major league clubs, but I didn't say anything specifically to any of the hitters. They're mostly old-timers and I can't tell them anything they don't know."

Particularly in the case of Zeke Bonura, who has not been achieving the hits expected of him, is Harris unconcerned. Bonura has been meeting the ball with great vigor in every appearance with the Nats but has had the ill luck to send his drives into the gloves of outfielders who are playing far back in territory where there would be fences in the American League.

"As far as that goes," said Harris, "I think more of Bonura now than I did when he was with the White Sox. I knew he was a fine hitter, but I didn't realize he was so absolutely dangerous. If he hits no better than he has hit for us down here, he'll be a powerful asset to us."

So apparently convinced is Harris that his ball club is destined for better things this season that today for the first time he said he believed the Nats would finish in the first division.

"I'll be surprised and disappointed if they don't," he said.

Despite the failure of his two prize rookie left-handers — Joe Krakauskas and Ken Chase—to justify their 1937 promise, Harris perceives no glaring weakness in his pitching staff. The performances of Wes Ferrell and Jimmy DeShong have been pleasing to the Nats' manager and he anticipates a deal of help from Monte Weaver and Pete Appleton. The latter, according to Harris, "has a curve ball second only to Tommy Bridges" and could be a sensation if he buckled down to work.

In an attempt to break up the Nats' slump, Manager Harris today announced a change in the batting order. Buddy Myer has been promoted from sixth place to the lead-off position, with Mel Almada droppink into Myer's vacated spot.

"It may or may not work out," said Harris. "Almada was as fine a lead-off man as any club would

Cards Send Quartet Into Semifinals

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., March 31.—The District of Columbia's representatives in the fourth annual intercollegiate carnival of clout, which got under way today, stood out in bold relief after two blistering sessions of preliminary punching with six men qualified for the semifinals.

Four Catholic University men, three of whom fought their respective ways into the bracket of 32, and one each from Georgetown and Maryland, both advanced by the draw, remain in the title race. Of these no less than two, Ben Alperstein, lightweight champion last year but fighting as a featherweight in this tournament, and Leo Katalinas, Catholic University heavyweight, odds on favorites to win their divisions.

Katalinas proved his mettle by scoring a technical knockout over Don Walker, of San Jose College, finalist in years tourney and Pacific Coast champion. Walker's seconds tossed in the towel after 1 minute 8 seconds of one-sided slugging in the second round, and after he hit the deck for a nine count in the first round.

Stant Wins Match.

Fred Stant, Catholic middleweight, came through with a pleasant surprise, flooring Joe Golsan, of Louisiana State twice before winning a decisive victory. Golsan, Southeastern Conferece light-heavyweight champion, moved down into the lower class to avoid meeting Ray Schmidt, of Virginia. The strategy failed, however, when Stant connected with a short and surprisingly potent left hook in the second.

Bernstein's victim was another L. S. U. standard bearer, Al Michaels, whom he outboxed and outpunched in the second and third rounds to win by a convincing margin. Normally a featherweight, Michaels started strongly but Bernstein's speed and cleverness took their toll in the last two rounds and he won going away.

One Virginian Survives.

Three Virginians appeared in the lists tonight, but only one, "Bull" Maynard survived, Stuart Barksdale, lightweight, dropped the duke to Ralph Caruso, of Pittsburgh, and Simpson was knocked colder than an arctic night by Dorand—after putting the latter down twice and almost having him out.

A Simpson victory would have been a major upset, for Dorand is expected to reach the finals along with the co-favorite, Sevile Whitney, of Loyola of the South. Simpson caught the Smoky City socker with a right hand flush on the button in the first few seconds of the fight, and Dorand fell face forward to the canvas. He took nine and staggered up, going into a crouch.

Simpson moved in for the kill and landed another right high on the temple, putting Dorand down again. He was on his feet at five, and Simpson, a Washington boy, chased him over near the press box and aimed another right. But Dorant lashed out with a right of his own, and still another.

Simpson weathered both and moved in again for a knockout, but Dorant beat him to the punch, and this time there was no getting up.

Harlow Wins Bout.

Harlow, a heavy favorite in the 145-pound division, stepped back as Hilmer Ingebretson, of California Aggies, moved in, flailing away with both fists, and dropped him with a short right. The Coast boy got up only to be dropped again and the bout was halted after 1 minute and 26 seconds of the first round.

A mild surprise of the evening bouts was Rex Williams' knockout at the hands of Sam Littlepage, of West Virginia. The Southern Conference champion was no match for the tall, cagey mountaineer.

College Ring Pairings

National Champion Bows at Pinehurst.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 31 (AP).—Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., sprang the first upset in the North and South Women's Golf Tourney today by eliminating Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, the national champion, in the quarter-final round. The score was 3 to 2.

Another favorite, Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., was ousted by Virginia Guilfoil, the blonde Syracuse, N. Y., co-ed, by the same margin.

Dorothy Kirby, the southern champion, had no difficulty in disposing of Grace Amory, of New York, whom she defeated 8 and 7.

In the other match, Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., turned in a 5 and 4 win over Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., the Maryland champion.

The semi-final round will match Miss Bauer against Miss Cothran, and Miss Kirby against Miss Guilfoil.

Mrs. Page's defeat was all the more astounding to the gallery because of the sensational 69 she shot to win the qualifying medal, and the fact that she had a three-hole lead at the turn.

A stymie gave the Providence sharpshooter a half on the tenth, and from that point on Mrs. Page's game lacked its punch. Starting at the eleventh, Miss Bauer won six consecutive holes and the match.

3 College Boxers In Hospital After Bouts at Virginia

By a Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., March 31. Three boxers competing in the annual intercollegiate tournament here were in the University Hospital tonight with various injuries. They included John Simpson, Washington, D. C., student at the University of Virginia, who suffered a possible concussion of the brain after being beaten by Ralph Dorand, of Pittsburgh.

Joe Golsan, 165-pound L. S. U. representative, suffered a broken jaw in his bout with Fred Stant, of Catholic University, while Nicholas Glenn, of Temple, suffered a broken nose in his fight against Sevile Whitney, of Loyola of the South.

Blackhawks Win, 1-0.

Chicago, March 31 (AP).—Chicago's Blackhawks stayed in the Stanley Cup playoffs by defeating the New York Americans, 1 to 0 tonight in the second overtime "sudden death" period on Cully Dahlstrom's goal, scored on a pass from Louis Trudell.

Racing Scene Shifts to Bowie as 12-Day Meet Opens; Charlotte Girl Favored in Kindergarten

By Walter Haight.

The 1938 racing season in the East gets under way this afternoon at the Bowie track, 18 miles out the Defense highway from the Nation's Capital. The Southern Maryland Agricultural Association, which has conducted the sport there since 1912, offers a seven-race program featured by the annual running of the $2,000 added Bowie Kindergarten. While the test for 2-year-olds to be run at 4 furlongs drew only a half dozen juveniles in the overnight entries, they are a speedy lot and should furnish a good race.

The field is topped by Charlotte Girl, Elwood Sachsenmaier's filly and champion of her sex in Florida last winter. She probably will be the favorite. Others slated to see action in the event are Shining One, Star Runner, Our Chuckie, Watch Over Top Staff.

Two allowance races will follow the feature. The fifth, known as the Potomac Purse, is for 3-year-olds at 5½ furlongs. In sixth place on the program is the Severn Purse, for 4-year-olds and upward at a mile and 70 yards. This event has drawn nine horses of more than average ability at the distance. The seventh race is a typical Bowie seventh race.

The program opens with a maiden event for 3-year-olds, followed by a promising sprint for veteran horses which has drawn seven starters. The third race brings together a rather ordinary lot to compete at a mile and a sixteenth.

Track officials have had men at work on the oval since yesterday morning's rains, and they hope that the program will start over a course that is nearing a fast stage. The daily double which was introduced in Maryland at Bowie will be conducted on the first and second races.

Bowie is offering a new deal in finish cameras. It will have in use today for the first time the Jones' high-speed camera. This is said to be a big improvement over any finish apparatus heretofore used in Maryland. If Bowie racing runs true to form the new camera probably will have plenty of work during the 12-day meeting. This track needs only a "break" in the weather to have a successful session. Mort Mahony, in charge of the wagering predicts that the average handle for each program will be well above the "three hundred grand" mark.

Meet Launches 45 Days of Sport on Tracks in Maryland.

The Maryland Racing Commission has placed its stamp of approval on the following officials for the 12 days of racing:

Stewards—Marshall Cassidy, Al G. Weston and William Harron. Placing judges—John B. Campbell, Edward J. Brennan, John P. Turner, sr. and John H. Anderson. Starter—James Milton. Clerk of scales—J. P. Turner, sr. Timer—William Jennings. Paddock judge—Patrick T. Roche. Patrol judges—Francis P. Dunne, William Doyle and Carter Lee Bowie. Physicians in attendance—Dr. J. Brooke Boyle and G. E. Lancaster. Racing secretary and handicapper—John B. Campbell. Pari-mutuel manager—Mortimer M. Mahony. Outrider—Roy C. Gordon. Custodian of the jockeys' room—Jesse Bennet.

After Bowie, the scene moves to Havre de Grace and then to Pimlico May 2 for the meeting which will close May 14 with the $50,000

2 Fights Tonight Will Be Broadcast

New York, March 31 (AP).—A double-header in prize fight broadcasting, including the activities of Joe Louis, is to be found on the WJZ-N. B. C. schedule Friday night at these times:

Joe Louis Is 20-to-1 Favorite to Win Over Thomas Tonight

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 31.—The Swingman from Minnesota's farm lands, hopeful Harry Thomas, gets the chance tomorrow night to swing the biggest upset in modern ring history.

Thomas meets Joe Louis, the 23-year-old world's heavyweight boxing champion, in a scheduled 15-round bout at the stadium—and no one except Thomas himself and his manager, Nate Lewis, has come forward to say that Thomas will win.

The betting odds, theoretically, are 20 to 1 that Louis retains his title by decision and 10-to-1 he knocks Thomas kicking. They might just as well be 100 or 1,000 to 1 in the face of a total absence of actual wagers.

It is admitted that the blond, pallid looking Thomas can punch, but he's easy to hit when trying to wind up his wild, round house swings from the floor. Max Schmeling knocked him down seven times before the bout was halted in the eighth. The brighest bit of interest attached to the Thomas-Louis affair, generally recognized as a tune up for Joe and his slated June 22 bout with Max, is speculation on how long it will take the Bomber to put Thomas down and out.

The Schmeling-Louis melee apparently is "stealing" at least some of the show from tomorrow night's program. Mike Jacobs, arriving from New York, went into conference with park board officials on the possibility that the Schmeling-Louis match be staged at Chicago's huge Soldier Field. The park board reportedly wants 10 per cent of the gate as its rental fee. Jacobs has said he might do business on a 5 per cent basis.

The mayor, Edward J. Kelly, the council and the fans are steaming up Chicago as the most desirable and profitable place for the fight, but the impression still prevails that the German and the Detroit Negro will do their stuff in Yankee Stadium, New York.

Weighing-in ceremonies for Friday night's bout, which will be the first indoor heavyweight contest in Chicago's history, are scheduled for tomorrow noon. Joe went through light exercises this afternoon, as did the challenger. Louis will weigh 200 and Thomas 196 when they answer the bell.

The titleholder again emphasized he will try to end the the bout "soon's Ah can," and interest in his terrific punching is expected to attract 15,000 spectators, with a gate of between $60,000 and $70,000.

Thomas will be gambling his undisputed courage and "haymakers" against the Bomber for a 12½ per cent cut of the gate. Louis, who only a few years ago was a $5 a day laborer in a Detroit automobile factory, will get 40 per cent, to boost his actual ring earnings to near the $1,000,000 mark.

Club Delays Naming Pro

Congressional Will Keep Applications Open.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Theodore S. Grape, president of the Congressional Country Club, announced yesterday that applications for the post vacated by Roland MacKenzie will be accepted until the moment the board decides upon a successor.

The recently elected president was surprised over MacKenzie's resignation. It probably will be several weeks before the berth is filled.

Several applications were received yesterday from local and out-of-town professionals.

Meanwhile, MacKenzie will remain until his successor has been appointed.

One of the city's vacant pro berths was temporarily filled when Wiffy Cox announced that Benny Loving would assist him at Kenwood until Loving takes his summer post with the Saranac Lake Country Club in New York.

Loving will start at Kenwood immediately. Al Jamison will take over the Indian Spring berth on Monday. George Diffenbaugh leaves Sunday for his new post at Roanoke, Va. He will return for a testimonial dinner at Indian Spring next Wednesday night.

Loving was a member of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. last year when he was on the staff of the Farmington C. C. He qualified for the P. G. A. tourney at Indian Spring. He later served with Craig Wood at Deal, N. J. and has played in a majorify of the winter tournaments.

Leo Walper, former driving range mentor who won the pro-amateur preceding the North-South Open, is back in town and will attend the annual meeting of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. at Rodgers Forge on Monday.

The pro upheavals at Congressional, Kenwood and Indian Spring have taken the edge off the Beaver Dam situation where the members are awaiting a new professional. The committee will definitely name the club's mentor by Sunday.

New Restrictions Put on Trout Fishing in Hunting Creek This Season

In This Corner

By Jack Cuddy.

New York, March 31.—Here's how the pennant races will wind up this season:

National League.		American League.
Chicago	1	New York
Pittsburgh	2	Cleveland
New York	3	Detroit
St. Louis	4	Chicago
Cincinnati	5	Boston
Brooklyn	6	Washington
Boston	7	St. Louis
Philadelphia	8	Philadelphia

Before anyone starts scoffing at these selections let me remind you that I picked the Giants, Cubs, Pirates and Cardinals to finish in that order in the 1937 National Flag chase. And that's the way they wound up. Also I picked the Yanks to win the American banner.

I figure Joe McCarthy's World Champion Yankees will capture their third straight pennant this time because they will pack murderous power and have potentially good pitching. They have appeared somewhat uncertain in training, during the absence of holdout DiMaggio and while Crosetti, Henrich, Selkirk and Pearson have been slow in rounding into form, for various reasons.

I never pay too much attention to club showings on the grapefruit circuit. Remember, last spring Cincinnati looked so good that some of the boys picked the Reds to win the National League ensign. They finished last. However, I do note two very important individual indications among the Yanks. Young Joe Gordon seems to be an adequate replacement for Tony Lazzberi at second base. And Lefty Gomez appears ready to have another good pitching season. I can't see where any American division outfit has improved enough to beat out the Yanks, who appear as strong as ever.

* * * *

It's a different story in the National League, where the Giants had more than their share of luck in winning the '36 and '37 pennants.

The Giants will open this season with Harry Danning as their No. 1 catcher, having replaced the fading Gus Mancuso in that position. Danning caught in 93 games last season and showed well, But shrewd Mancuso has been a major factor in the Giants' success since Bill Terry took over the club. Until I see Danning go through a full season as first-string backstop, I must rate the Giants' catching as uncertain.

That is an important angle on a club which depends so much on tight pitching. The catcher handles or mishandles those flingers. Also, it is uncertain how Second Baseman Whitehead will perform after his recent appendicitis operation. Can Outfielder Leiber come back after last season's beaning and slump? Can Ott stand up for a full season at third? And how will the Slick-Castleman tiff come out? They have a good defensive infield, if Whitehead recovers okay. They have an uncertain outfield. They have good pitching, topped by Hubbell and Melton. But they don't look like a championship band.

* * * *

I pick the Cubs to take the pennant this time because their '38 club is virtually the same as the one which made such an excellent showing last season, finishing only three games behind the Giants despite one of the worst string of injuries that ever struck any team. They led the league in batting and fielding. And the addition of Tony Lazzeri as assistant manager and utility infielder may inject some of the Yankee winning spirit into the outfit. They have good catching, a good infield and a good outfield, although somewhat uncertain pitching.

Pie Traynor will whip the Pirates into shape at last this season, and if certain pitching rookies come through as expected and Rookie Johnny Rizzo in the outfield lives up to Columbus performances, the Corsairs may win the pennant. However, because of uncertain pitching, I will tag them for second place, one notch above last year's finish.

With the Giants dropped to third place, the Cards should wind up in fourth, handicapped by weak catching and an uncertain infield. They might rise above this if Dizzy Dean has an excellent season, but I doubt it.

In the American League, Cleveland should rise to second place, aided greatly by Bob Feller and Johnny Allen and Catcher Hemsley. Oscar Vitt will get the most out of the Indians' fine pitching staff and good outfield.

Too much depends upon Schoolboy Rowe's comeback to grant the Tigers more than third place. They have power in Gehringer, Greenberg, York and Fox, but uncertain pitching, a gap at third base and a mediocre outfield.

Five Is Limit For Anglers; Time Is Set

Fishing Is Allowed Only Between 6 A. M-7 P. M. With Flies.

By Bill Ackerman.

Arthur B. Alley and John Leitzelman, local anglers, representing the allied Washington and Maryland Izaak Walton chapters, yesterday asked Director Arno Cammerer, of the United States Park Service, to rescind the recent order stopping Hunting Creek controlled fishing project for the present. Recognizing the rights of anglers in regard to this stream, the following regulations were issued yesterday at 4 p. m.:

ACKERMAN.

Fishing permitted only between 6 a. m. and 7 p. m., and with artificial flies only. The creel limit is five instead of the usual Maryland limit of 10. There's no additional fee.

Not until early this week was all hope given up, that this project might get under way this season, and then, only because of conditions beyond the control of the United States Park Service, or the Maryland Conservation Commission.

The Recreation Planning and State Co-operative Branch of the Park Service have succeeded in getting 7,600 acres of the total area. Another 2,500, of which many acres border on Hunting Creek, is under option or waiting condemnation proceedings in Maryland courts. The optioned land has been taken up, but the delay in the acquisition of the condemned land makes it impossible to proceed at present.

Neither would the present setup give the Maryland Conservation Commission the absolute control needed for a project of this kind.

Frank L. Bentz, chief clerk of the commission, gives us every assurance, that Maryland recognizes the future of stream fishing in the State depends on Federal or State owned and controlled waters.

He says: "Although we have been unable to open this paradise for anglers with the season, nothing is being left undone to assure its completion at the earliest possible moment."

Gabbing the other day with "Cotton-thread" Hill in the midst of many trays of trout lures, rubber bugs and flies in his sports section at Sears on Bladensburg road, we found him all het up over the idea that many fishermen lose much of their fun through the use of heavy tackle.

It wasn't at all hard to agree with his complex on light tackle, for we believe likewise. Also, that more real fun can be had if an additional hurdle, such as barbless hooks were added to light rods and small lines.

Have you ever been on a cotton thread-barbless hook hardhead party of four or five? If not, you certainly have been missing a lot of sport with this lowly rated fish, and the fun of razzing the one who has trouble getting going with this kind of tackle.

Hill's parting was: "You'll hear more of my light tackle, before the season gets under way in May."

Reports of commanders from practically every boat in the Maryland conservation fleet show rockfish in every section of the Bay and Potomac in greater numbers than have been observed for many years. And they are on top —weeks earlier than usual.

We wouldn't go so far as to suggest a special trip in search of a day's sport, but if you happen to be on the water, why not troll a feather of two?

The world's record on white marlin has changed fast this winter; it is almost impossible to keep up with it. The last two times within the short period of three days.

The breaking of Capt. Johnny Cass' record in 1935, which had stood for several years, by Mrs. Marion Stevens, was looked upon as a real feat, for white marlin larger than her 152-pounder are rarely seen. Ten days ago the record went back to Cat Cay with the 158-pounder of Carl Badenhausen. Three days later to Miami Beach by way of the 161-pound fish caught by L. F. Hooper.

Paul Townsend, who developed the white marlin fishing off Ocean City, and rated since last summer as the best grounds in the world, has probably caught more white marlin than any two anglers. Yet his largest fish weighed but 114 pounds.

The big one of the past season, reported at first as 130 pounds, upon examination weighed but 121 pounds. Still many pounds under the record, but there is nothing against trying to bring it to Maryland shores next summer, even though the Jacks Pot fish are generally conceded to be smaller than those in the Miami sector.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEMPLE FALL, $9.40, $5.00, $4.40; MY PAULINE, $17.30, $8.30; PRIPO, $9.30.

TEMPLE FALL had speed from the start, fought courageously with the leaders until the stretch, then drew away under punishment. MY PAULINE, forwardly placed in the run down the backstretch, came through on the inside and hung on gamely at the finish. PRIPO, off slowly, gradually worked his way through the field and finished with a rush on the outside. TOWN CAR had no excuses.

Daily Double, Dicty Step and Temple Fall, Paid $73.90.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:24. Off 3:25½. Winner, Flying Horse Farm's ch. g. (3), by Mackenzie II—Les Laques. Trained by W. E. Collins. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:22 4-5, 0:46 1-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LACONIC, $7.90, $3.30, $3.20; BROGAN, $2.70, $2.50; NOAJEAN, $6.30.

LACONIC took command immediately, opened up a safe lead on his field and held this advantage, winning with speed in reserve. BROGAN, closest in pursuit of the leader, was much the best of the others. NOAJEAN showed good speed and hung on well at the end. MILK DIPPER, unable to keep pace in the early stages, closed willingly.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Gulf Stream Polo Club Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:52. Off 3:54½. Winner, Millsdale Stable's b. g. (5), by Chance Shot—La Bayonette. Trained by A. G. Robertson. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 1:10 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INFANTRY, $6.00, $4.00, $3.00; COMO NO II, $6.80, $4.20; SUNPHANTOM, $4.40.

INFANTRY broke alertly, followed the pace closely down the backstretch, came to the outside on the stretch turn and was under severe pressure at the finish to stave off COMO NO II'S bid. The latter raced on the inside down the backside, slipped through on the rail rounding for home and made a game effort to overhaul the winner, but was not quite good enough. SUNPHANTOM broke fast, took a slight lead at the halfway marker, held on gamely until the last 70 yards when he faltered. PANTHER CREEK, far out of contention in the early stages, circled his field on the lower turn and closed gamely. DROWSY threatened in the stretch, but weakened. STUBBS quit after leading for half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 60 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. (Amateur riders.) Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:29. Off 4:30. Winner, Medway Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAM WORTHY, $5.10, $3.10, $2.70; SHOWABAL, $3.60, $3.10; CENTENNIAL, $3.10.

SAM WORTHY followed in closest pursuit of the leader until the stretch turn, then took command a sixteenth mile from home and won pulled up. SHOWABAL went to the front at once, opened up a wide lead on his field, but weakened in the stretch drive. CENTENNIAL raced evenly.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:58. Off 5:02. Winner, M. San Pedro's br. m. (6), by The Porter—Cordina. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORDINA, $11.20, $5.20, $4.00; TOP TAX, $4.50, $3.80; EARL PORTER, $4.60.

PORDINA broke forwardly, raced neck and neck with SUN ANTIOCH until rounding the stretch turn, where he widened out on his field, but had to be smartly urged to stave off the closing bid of TOP TAX. The latter, well up on the outside all the way, was overhauling the winner at the end. EARL PORTER, outpaced in the early stages, closed well at the end. SUN ANTIOCH tired after racing with the winner most of the way. COUNT MAURICE had no excuses. VOTE BOY and WHOOPER were outrun all the way.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:28. Off 5:29½. Winner, J. J. Fitzgerald's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAG SONG, $10.20, $3.40, $2.90; ESPINACA, $3.20, $2.60; LANDSCAPE, $4.10.

FLAG SONG, reserved off the early pace, saved ground on the rail all down the backstretch, moved up on the outside rounding the stretch turn and was drawing out at the finish. ESPINACA, away slowly, made his move when straightened out in the stretch, but could not overtake the winner. LANDSCAPE raced OLO MOR into submission at the half-mile marker, went to the front, but weakened when the final test came.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:57. Off 6:00½. Winner, Mrs. L. A. Daly's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RANICILLA, $81.40, $37.60, $14.50; COUNT ME, $6.50, $4.90; GEORGIA MEADEN, $4.50.

RANICILLA gradually improved her position down the backstretch, reached the leader coming into the stretch and held on gamely thereafter. COUNT ME opened up a wide margin on his field down the backstretch, but weakened in the run to the wire. GEORGIA MEADEN, outpaced in early stages, finished gamely and full of run.

Bucky Harris Not Alarmed

want last year, and the job may still be his when the season starts. But he hasn't been doing well at bat this spring and a shake-up may help. Myer always was a good lead-off man. He'll draw anywhere from 90 to 100 walks a year."

The Nats journey to Daytona Beach tomorrow to meet the Chattanooga Lookouts, their former farm hands. Harris will assign the pitching to a pair of his rookies.

The only two players excluded from the Nats' meeting on signs today were Catcher Bill Beard and Pitcher Joe Haynes, which forecasts their early release by the club. It has long been Harris' custom not to impart the team's signals to players who are destined to leave the club.

Clark Griffith has not as yet given Goose Goslin a contract, but Harris is urging it strongly. Harris envisions Goslin as one of the most dangerous batters in the league and a handy pinch hitter. He doubts that Goslin has slowed to any extent in the field.

At The Post . . . .

With Bill Bennings.

Selections at Bowie.

Dear Al,

Well, it's on to Prince Georges Park, as the track officials like to call the Bowie racing plant. After a winter of confining my efforts to Florida, with a dash of California, Mrs. Bennings' lovely boy finds himself on the home grounds. While the first day's entries smack a trifle of Charlestown, this is only the calm before the storm because there are plenty of good horses on the grounds and in the vicinity. While the track was muddy when the entries came out yesterday morning, it may be good if rain doesn't fall again before the initial program gets under way. Bowie will make every effort to stop sponging and horse tampering which has been prevalent here in recent years. In addition to having the stables well guarded, especially at night, track officials have arranged to have three veterinarians in the paddock prior to each race. These men who have been approved by the Maryland Racing Commission will examine all horses before they go to the post. The usual precautions against doping and stimulating. All winners as well as any other horses suspected by the stewards will be given the saliva test. This operation will be under the direction of Dr. Thomas A. Ladson, representative of the Maryland Racing Commission. I went deep into the speed books last night in an effort to get you Benningites off on the right foot. I'll see you on the rail, and I do mean you.

BILL.

First race—Travelo probably is the best of the maiden 3-year-olds in the day's opener. Gets in action with 108 pounds and will have Wayne Wright in the saddle. Ever Grand has shone speed on occasions and may show to advantage over this short sprint route despite the fact that he must carry 120 pounds. Anneke has been around a long time without visiting the winner's circle, but promises to be a factor here due to light weight.

Second race—New Deal always has been partial to the Bowie strip. He has worked well for this race and may take Sachem. Bartering Kate gets a nice shift in weights from the chief contenders and should be along in time to take down part of the pay-off.

Third race—Sun Crax appears nicely placed in this distance event. The assignment of 108 pounds seems about right. High Tension carries 119 pounds, but has some class and should be prominent. Zinnia has had a long rest and comes to this race with the recommendation of several fast trials.

Fourth race—Charlotte Girl did everything asked of her in Florida and is a natural choice in the Bowie Kindergarten. Watch Over has burned up tracks in work-outs and promises to give Charlotte Girl a run for the money. Our Chuckle has shown good general form and deserves a money chance.

Fifth race—Now Then was fairly reliable in Florida racing. Likes the abbreviated distance and I am goin to string along. Warlaine has been carefully prepared for a race of this sort and deserves attention. Benjam likes this track and should make a money appearance.

Sixth race—Vicar comes from a stable full of fit horses and probably will take down the chief honors. Evergold, veteran of Maryland racing wars, needs only to have retained a small portion of his class to be a prominent figure in this field. Sun Power probably will take down third money.

Seventh race—Baby Way carries only 103 pounds in the programs finale. This way rigged, I look for this one to lead throughout. Anne G. has keen closing ability and promises to be close at the end. Departed fits in well in this field and may deserve a higher ranking.

Best bet—Now Then.

Infantry, 2-1 Choice, Wins At Tropical

Como No II Beats Out Sunphantom for Place Money.

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., March 31.—Infantry, 5-year-old veteran of the handicap wars that races in the Chicago-owned silks of M. L. Emerich's Millsdale Stable, broke loose from a losing streak here today and won the 6-furlong fourth race, best offering on the card. The son of Chance Shot, well handled by Carroll Bierman, came from close off the early pace to triumph by a length in the speedy time of 1:10 3-5. He was a 2-to-1 choice in the seven-horse field.

Como No II, a Chilean, representing Cedar Farm, saved the place by a half length over Mrs. C. S. Bromley's Sunphantom. H. & H. Stock Farm's Panther Creek, away last from the inside and shut o at the first turn, was a game fourth, a head farther back. He might have won with clear sailing. Drowsy, Stubbs and Pageboy completed the field.

Five of the starters—Infantry, Como No II, Panther Creek, Stubbs and Pageboy—are eligible for the $10,000 added mile and a sixteenth Tropical Handicap of closing day.

Stubbs Holds Lead.

Stubbs, a very fast, but unreliable sprinter, rushed from fourth place at the break to take a narrow lead over Como No II, Sunphantom and Infantry. However, he had enough early. Some jamming took place when the field left the backstretch and Sunphantom stuck his head in front as Como No II dropped back to fourth position.

Bierman, timing his move nicely, sent Infantry up on the outside of Sunphantom turning for home. The Chicagoan forged to the fore, but had to hard ridden. Como No II gamely came again to oust Sunphantom from the place. Panther Creek's last furlong bid came too late.

Jack Richardson, one of the old guard horsemen, who has been in a slump for a long time, broke the ice in the first race here today. He saddled the 2-year-old Dicty Step and the colt flashed home on top by four lengths. Travel Agent, a hot paddock tip, saved second money by a length from the standout choice, Iskie, which could not keep up. Travel Agent broke away to a length advantage but was joined by Dicty Step nearing the stretch turn. The ultimate winner easily bounded into the clear, running the half-mile in 0:47 4-5. He was well backed, paying $8.30 for $2.

Bowie Opens

Preakness, Maryland's "race of the year."

Sixteen Kentucky Derby and Preakness candidates are among the 1,100 racers quartered at Bowie. Derby candidates which probably will give preview performances are:

A. C. Compton's Sun Egret, regarded as a likely starter in Saturday's $5,000 added Rowe Memorial Handicap; Ral Parr's Legal Light; Alvin Untermyer's Chaps and Torchlight; William Elder's Walkaway and Bomar Stable's Benjam.

Epidemics of "sponging"—thrusting of small sponges in horses' nostrils to slow them during a race—marred the last two fall meetings here and the State racing commission ordered all horses be examined before starting time. Three veterinarians will be on hand for that duty.

Havre de Grace will offer four big races with total value of $32,500. Pimlico is offering a stake race each day, and purses will total $105,000.

D. & H. Quint Beats Y. M. C. A., Gains Semifinals

Mount Five And Aggies Are Beaten

Hyattsville and Rockville Girls Win Games in Post-A.A.U. Play.

The fast stepping Delaware and Hudson quint moved into the semifinal round of the Post-A. A. U. tournament and earned the right to meet the strong Regal five tonight at Tech Gym by soundly trouncing the Y. M. C. A. team last night, 46-30.

Hyattsville's smooth working girl's team won a close and hotly contested tilt from Mount Rainier, 23-19, while a group of lassies from Rockville walloped the Department of Agriculture sextet, 25-15. Hyattsville and Rockville will play the finals Saturday night.

With Milton Genderson and Burdette Cogar finding the range of the bucket from all angles of the floor, Delaware and Hudson walked into a 23-19 lead at the intermission. The work of Bill Rodes kept the Y. M. C. A. boys in the running during the first half. But the eventual winners were too tough an aggregation to be held down by one man.

D and H Opens Up.

In the second half, Delaware and Hudson opened with a barrage of baskets that completely snowed the losers under. It was not only Genderson and Cogar, but Fones, Leib, Goss, Thomas, and Zola in rapid fire fashion that sent the score beyond reach of the fighting Y men.

The Mount Rainier-Hyattsville game turned out to be a thriller. Behind the excellent scoring eyes of Willa Ott and Virginia Miller, Mount Rainier clever forwards, the game seemed to be a walk-away for the District Line A. C. lassies during the first half, at which time they led Hyattsville 13-7.

But the dead-eye shooting of Betty Burgess and Isabell Butler had not been reckoned with and were not to be denied. These two young ladies really started to work in the third stanza and before five minutes had elapsed in the final period had brought their team to a 15-all tie.

Nip and Tuck Battle.

From here on it was a nip-and-tuck battle between Miss Butler, who was flinging some fancy shots from all positions on the floor, and Miss Miller, one of the classiest girl players to show in the tournament. With one minute and 20 seconds to go, Miss Butler again broke a tie by sinking a beautiful long shot that tucked a much cherished victory away.

The Rockville-Agriculture tilt was Rockville's all the way. With Margaret Lanier leading the way with 13 points, the girls from Rockville led at the half, 10-6. Ably assisting Miss Lanier were Miss Howard and Miss Nusbaum, whose combined scores added 12 more points to the final tally. Miss Watson was best for the losers.

Exhibition Match At Kenwood May 4

Wiffy Cox, Kenwood professional, wired last night from Augusta, Ga., where he is playing in the Masters Tournament that Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thomson, Horton Smith and himself would play an exhibition match at Kenwood May 4.

Smith, Thomson, Cox and Lawson Little played at Kenwood in 1936 in a match that drew a record gallery of nearly 10,000 persons.

Snead Choice For Masters

Golf's Greats Compete in Augusta Meet.

Augusta, Ga., March 31.—Out of an all-star cast that will tee off tomorrow in the Bobby Jones golfing spectacle, the fifth annual Augusta National tournament, Rookie Sam Snead is the choice of big Ed Dudley, host professional of the streamlined course.

"Slammin' Sam, the young pro from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., will be 'plenty tough' for the boys," said Dudley, himself well listed for the $1,500 top prize in the bookmaker's form chart.

Pairings and starting times for the first 18-hole round:

British Wrestler's Wife Objects to Use of Her Name in Marquee Advertising.

By John D. Paulus,

There were momentous happenings at Turner's Arena last night—all caused by two words on the marquee.

The two words were "Princess Baba" and the owner of that title, Mrs. Robert Gregory, of London, England and Sarawak, Borneo, caused the upheaval.

Gregory and Steve (Crusher) Casey, world wrestling champion of the Bowser mat interests, were cofeatured in the evening's festivities. A near capacity crowd was disappointed when Mrs. Gregory refused to stay for the entire program, but witnessed a pleasing performance by her husband and a successful defense of his title by Mr. Casey.

Gregory defeated Tony Calasino in 11 minutes with a "surfboat" hold. Gregory displayed a large assortment of standard wrestling holds and was easily the outstanding performer seen here this winter. The Englishman performed in an orthodox fashion and won unusual acclaim from the crowd.

Casey defeated Rudy Dusek, who substituted for one of his boys, Gino Garibaldi. Gino was taken ill at the last moment. Dusek dropped the decision in 24 minutes, succumbing to two body slams. Mr. Casey was his usual methodical self and took ample care of the Dusek youngster.

In other matches, Joe Cox defeated Henry Graber in 5¼ minutes with a backdrop and body press; Cliff Olson won over Lem Macaluso in 19½ minutes with a crotch hold and body slam and Ralph Garibaldi drew with Bob Managoff.

Getting back to the Gregory argument, the Englishman and his wife, interviewed in their suite at the Mayflower after the matches, said they had no objection other than the use of "Princess Baba" on the Arena marquee.

"We are in America on our honeymoon," said Gregory. "We have a contract with Paramount Pictures but, in the meantime, I have been offered an opportunity to make $50,000 in six months of wrestling activity here. It would be foolish of me not to take such a large amount of money.

"However, I do object to the use of my wife's name in a burlesque manner. That is what I objected to tonight. I know that I can stand on my own feet as a wrestler and perhaps add a little something to the American sport which I do not think is up to the standard of the Continental type."

Gregory said that he has been wrestling for 11 years, has fought in 2,000 matches and owns his own wrestling club in England, a venture which has made him financially independent.

Asked whether he would return to Washington to wrestle, Gregory said "Yes, I will wrestle anyone here weighing under 200 pounds."

Asked whether he would meet Jesse James, the man who claims the world light-heavyweight title, Bob said, "Yes, I'll meet him. And place a side bet of $500 to $1,000 that I could beat him. But I don't want my wife's name used as a leverage to draw the public."

What did Mrs. Gregory do after she left the arena?

"Oh, I went to the cinema to see 'Jezebel.' And it was good, too."

District's Soccer Champions Defeat Team From York

The District champion Heurich soccer team handed the H. M. S. York booters a 3-to-0 defeat yesterday on the Polo field.

The locals led 3-0 at half time and preserved the margin through the latter period. Heurich scored the first goal four minutes after the opening of play, the ball bouncing off Smith (York) and beating Everleigh. Six minutes later a penalty was awarded Heurich, from which Jim McBain made it 2-up. The final goal was scored when R. McBain beat Everleigh with a nice cross shot.

College Riflemen To Invade Capital Today for Match

Rifle teams from the Naval Academy, Pittsburgh, Penn State, Brooklyn Poly, V. M. I. and V. P. I. are scheduled to arrive at George Washington University this afternoon. With the Colonials, Georgetown and Maryland, they will compete in the Middle Atlantic sectional finals of the national intercollegiate rifle championship on the G. W. U. range tomorrow.

This is one of four sectional meets in the national tournament, with considerable attention focused on this shoot because Navy is the defending champion. George Washington was second last year and Maryland sixth, nationally.

The other sectional meets will be held at New London, Conn., Chicago and Lincoln, Nebr. All results will be sent to National Rifle Association headquarters here and the ratings of the 41 teams competing throughout the country announced.

D. C. 4 Lead Hoya Golfers

Nee, Shea, Dettweiler Johnson Set Pace.

Maury Nee added a third consecutive round of 74 to total 222 for the 54 holes, a figure tied by Willy Shea. Shea's rounds were 75-74 and yesterday's 73.

Billy Dettweiler was in third place, his sub-par 70 round picking up three strokes on the leaders. Billy was out in 38 but started back with birdies on four of the first five holes. He three-putted the seventeenth green and missed a 2-foot putt on the last green that would have netted a 31 on the nine and total 69.

Four tied at 231 for the final team positions and two alternates. The quartet included Johnny Burke, who could not better 77 for the third straight day; Charles Pettijohn who added a 76; Ray Higgins, of Duluth, with a final day's 73, and Frank Galvin, Boston, who tacked a 76 to a previous 155 total.

A team ladder will be formed with any of the members subject to challenge by the man below. The first four rungs will be filled by the local stars, with the four tied at 231 next followed by Bob Effler, who finished with a 78 for a 235 total.

Qualifying Rounds At East Potomac

Qualifying rounds in the East Potomac spring tournament will begin today and continue throughout the month, according to Tommy Doerer, jr., course manager. A prize list topping any public links event ever held in the city is offered.

The medal rounds will be over the 36-hole route, and can be played nine holes at a time. No entrance fee will be charged.

Flights will be provided for all qualifiers in the match play rounds starting May 2. Prizes will go to the medalist and winners and runners-up in each flight.

It is the initial public links event of the year. All other public affairs will be held at East Potomac.

Easterners Are Beaten In New York

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 31.—Eastern High, of Washington, D. C., lost its right to play in the semifinals of the nineteenth annual Eastern States Basketball Tournament when it lost to Atlantic City (N. J.) High in the third game of the tourney's first night play, 37 to 31.

Eastern had things its own way in the first quarter, Lee Lusbey at right guard scoring three times from the field in the initial period. A field goal by Washburn and a foul point by Belden gave Atlantic City three points, while a foul by Lombardy and a field goal by Quantrille, of Washington, ended the initial quarter with Eastern leading, 9 to 3.

Ralph Matera, of Eastern, was the outstanding star of the second quarter, scoring twice from the field while his teammates made an additional seven points, a total of 11, in the second period. Atlantic City also made 11 points in the second quarter, Anderson and Washburn, of the New Jersey lineup, each playing fast ball and each scoring three points, the half ending with Eastern leading, 20 to 14.

Field goals by Bernstein and Bolden, of Atlantic City, and a field goal by Lombardy, of Eastern, at the start of the third period brought the score to 22-18. A field goal by Quantrille and a foul by Lusbey made the Eastern score 25 at the end of the third quarter, while the New Jersey team ran up six points to end the period one point behind. Another spurt in the first part of the final quarter put Atlantic City ahead, 33 to 30, with time called out and four minutes to play.

Bolden, center for Atlantic City, was heavy scorer and played brilliantly, being largely responsible for bringing the score to 37-30 with two minutes to play.

FLORSHEIM SHOES WITH Zephyr CONSTRUCTION

FLORSHEIM removes the WEIGHT but not the WEAR!

Now! Another triumph for Florsheim master craftsmanship! Shoes that look and wear like regular street-weight footwear . . . but actually are ounces lighter! It's "shoemanship" not showmanship . . . it's experience and ingenuity that accomplish a truly amazing result . . . in short it's the Florsheim way of giving you more than just a shoe. And that's the policy that has made Florsheim leaders in the quality field.

"What Does Haight Say?"

After the horses reach the finish line, you want to know how they ran at the quarter, at the half, and in the stretch. Racing fans read Walter Haight's articles for his vivid, clear style. They like Haight, author of "Bred to Run," because they know that Haight knows horses. And now that the horses are running in Maryland, it's more important than ever to find out "What Does Haight Say?"

Wheat Prices Follow Stocks To Lower Level

September Contracts Hit New Low Record for Season.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 31.—Tumbling with securities, wheat in Chicago fell today 1½ cents a bushel at the extreme, and equaled the season's low price record for September contracts.

Favorable domestic crop prospects, as well as stock market plunges, contributed to the unsettlement of wheat values. E. H. Miller, a leading trade authority, reported that present indications were for a 1938 United States winter wheat harvest of 692,000,000 bushels, the third largest ever achieved.

Acting as a further weight on wheat prices here were Liverpool quotations much lower than looked for, with Australia and Russia reported offering wheat abroad more cheaply and freely.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅞-1¼ cents under yesterday's finish; May, 85⅜-85½; July, 81¼-81⅜; corn, ⅛-¼ down; May, 60⅝; July, 61¾; oats, ⅛-¼ off; rye showing ⅜-½ drop, and provision a fall of 25 to 37 cents.

Cotton Higher In Late Buying

New York, March 31 (AP).—Cotton, which had opened higher today and then eased, recovered quickly in the late trading. July sold off from 8.71 to 8.55 and closed at 8.69, with final prices 8 to 15 points net higher.

The market opened 5 to 11 points higher and moved up a few points further in the early trading on foreign buying and price fixing. Local and New Orleans selling developed as the stock market eased until May contracts again touched the 8½-cent resistance level. This basis attracted trade support and with contracts scarce, prices quickly recovered practically all of their losses in the last few minutes on covering.

G. A. Garrett To Be Partner In Murphy Firm

Former Member of Harriman & Keech to Join Brokers April 15.

George A. Garrett, who has been one of the resident partners of Harrison & Keech, New York Stock Exchange firm, will become a resident partner of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., also a New York Stock Exchange firm, on April 15. John E. Parker, for several years one of the associate managers of the Washington office of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., was made resident partner of that firm yesterday.

It was stated that the local office of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co. will be moved to the present quarters of Harriman & Keech, 815 Fifteenth street, on April 15.

Mr. Garrett was originally resident partner of Keech & Co., and has been a partner in Harriman & Keech since January, 1935. Mr. Parker originally was connected with John L. Edwards & Co. and went to Murphy & Co. when that firm took over the Edwards business. He is president of the Washington Ticker Club.

The changes follow the merger of Harriman & Keech with Winthrop Mitchell & Co., which provides for dissolution of the former firm on April 15. The other partner of Harriman & Keech, Maj. Ferry K. Heath, joined Winthrop Mitchell & Co., and is to be resident partner in charge.

John Caswell, jr., who has been office manager for Harriman & Keech, will join the staff of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., as will several other associates of Mr. Garrett.

The head office of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co. is at 111 Broadway, New York. Besides the Washington branch the firm has offices in Philadelphia and Providence and in London, England.

Selling Wave Wipes Out Rally, Toppling Prices to 5-Year Lows

News Developments Fail to Account for Either the Early Advance or Late Tumble; U. S. Government Bonds Lower.

By Frederick Gardner,

Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, March 31.—Stocks dived to new 5-year lows in today's market, many losing 1 to 4 or more points at the worst, when a morning rally again failed to follow through. While last-minute buying support enabled an assortment of issues to reduce extreme declines substantially, and a number of gainers were in evidence, most leaders were well down at the sound of the closing gong.

Brokers could point to no special news development as a cause for either the forenoon run-up or the final hour's tumble. "Bargain hunting" by traders on the theory the list was entitled to retrace some of its lengthy decline was thought to have inspired the morning improvement. The fact the come-back was on comparatively small volume proved a chilling influence and discouraged holders were believed to have liquidated as hopes dwindled for a seasonal pickup in business.

Virtually all departments participated in the initial advance. There was a dip at the beginning of the second hour when impaired margin commitments were dumped. Another climbing attempt soon got under way, only to culminate in the sharp break on the concluding lap.

A slide in automotive stocks touched off selling in other division and a number of so-called "blue chips" fell rapidly as increased offerings put the ticker tape behind for a brief interval.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .5 of a point at 33.7, a new bottom since April, 1933. The industrials touched new lows since 1934, and the rails since 1932. The utilities were unchanged at a 1935 low. Transfers totaled 1,271,030 shares compared with 1,667,260 yesterday.

Most commodities slipped, although cotton futures recovered briskly at the finish to end up 40 to 75 cents a bale. Wheat at Chicago was off ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel and corn down ⅛ to ¼. Foreign markets did better, despite continuance of European unrest.

Steel Shares Recover.

Steel shares wiped out a large part of their decline at the end as expanding demand for the metal was forecast for the second quarter. U. S. Steel was off ⅜ at 39⅛ and Bethlehem ⅞ at 41⅜.

Aircrafts had the benefit of estimates placing first quarter deliveries for the principal manufacturers at 40 per cent above the 1937 period. Up a point or more were Douglas at 32⅞ and United at 20⅝.

Some rails closed slightly higher as last week's freight loadings were believed to have registered a contra-seasonal upturn. Among these were N. Y. Central at 10¼, Chesapeake & Ohio 23½ and Great Northern 13¼.

Texas Corporation and Standard Oil of N. J. edged forward to 33⅛ and 40¼, respectively. These were aided by a boost in Ohio gasoline prices. Coppers did relatively well, Cerro de Pasco getting up 1 at 28½ and Kennecott ⅜ at 28⅛.

Chrysler canceled all but ⅛ of a more than 2-point drop, finishing at 37¼, but General Motors was off 1⅜ at 25⅞. Prominent losers included DuPont at 84, Eastman Kodak, 122; Air Reduction, 40¼; American Can, 75¼, Union Pacific, 55⅝; Westinghouse, 63⅛; International Nickel, 38⅜; Allied Chemical, 125; U. S. Rubber preferred, 58; Du Pont, 94, and Union Carbide, 58½.

Treasury Issues Yield.

The bond market moved to new low ground today with the pace accelerated by a considerable drop in U. S. Governments and top-grade corporate loans.

Bonds of secondary rating continued to slide back under moderate but persistent selling and general lack of support. Dealers attributed the paucity of buying interest to an unfavorble investment psychology fostered by the recent slump in rail loans.

U. S. Governments at one time showed losses ranging to ¾ of a point, but in late dealings, Treasuries, which had been under the heaviest pressure, rallied a little. Closing prices were 4.32s to 11-32s lower. Government dealers reported some liquidation by interior banks.

Heaviness of low-yield corporate issues was in contrast with firmness shown earlier in the month in disregard of marked weakness in the second-grade issues. The Associated Press average of ten low-yield bonds dipped fractionally to 106.7, the lowest since October, 1934.

Rails again found it difficult to absorb a moderate flow of selling, and some issues fell 2 to around 6 points.

Down 1 to around 3 points at the close were American Water Works 6s, at 87; Bethlehem Steel 4¼s, at 100⅛; Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, at 111; Consolidated Edison 3¼s, at 102½; Great Northern 4s, 1946, "G," at 79⅛; International Telephone 5s, at 42⅛; Northern Pacific 4s, at 76⅜, and Pennsylvania general 4½s, at 90⅛. Large losses were marked up also against loans of Paramount Pictures, Wilson & Co., Atlantic Coast Line and Chicago & Western Indiana.

Sears, Roebuck Sales 9.2% Under Year Ago

Chicago, March 31 (AP).—Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported today that sales during the second period of its 13-period year, from February 27 to March 26 inclusive, were $36,473,390, compared with $40,175,309 in the similar 1937 period, a decrease of $3,701,919 or 9.2 per cent. Accumulated sales for the year which started January 31 and included March 26 were $66,622,000. A year ago, the accumulated sales were $70,900,732.

Bohn Aluminum Omits Dividend

Detroit, March 31 (AP).—Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corp., announced today no action had been taken on dividend on the capital stock. In 1937 shareholders received dividends of 75 cents each in April and July and $1.25 each in October and December.

Charles B. Bohn, president, said payment of dividends would be resumed "as soon as the company's operations returned to a profitable basis."

Trading Increases As Stocks Decline

New York, March 31 (AP).—The March decline in securities on the Stock Exchange brought a substantial increase in the month's volume of trading in shares and bonds.

Total turnover in stocks was 23,000,335 shares compared with 14,526,094 shares in February and 50,346,280 in March, 1937. Transactions in bonds amounted to $169,194,455 face value, the largest since December. This compared with $127,593,000 in February and $422,794,000 in March, 1937.

Excess Bank Reserves Unchanged in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that the lendable excess reserves of member banks remained unchanged at $1,560,000,000 in the week ended March 30. This is the highest level since reserve requirements were increased May 1, 1937.

Money in circulation increased $4,000,000. The 12 Federal Reserve banks made no changes in their holdings of Government securities.

Rapid Growth Is Reported by Insurance Firm

Young & Simon Premiums Rise From $5,000 to $650,000 in 29 Years.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Young & Simon is one of the oldest partnerships in Washington and one of its leading general insurance underwriters. This firm, consisting of Eugene Young and Morris Simon, began business in February, 1909, in two small rooms on the second floor of a converted store and dwelling at 815 Fourteenth street northwest.

Harris & Ewing.
Eugene Young.

Mr. Young, a life-long resident of the District, was born December 11, 1885. He was graduated from George Washington University and admitted to the bar in 1907. Mr. Simon was born March 25, 1887, and his family moved to Washington from Philadelphia in 1905. He attended National University Law School, where he received the degrees of bachelor and master of law and was admitted to the bar in 1917.

From the start, members of this firm took the position that the insurance business was primarily the sale of a service and this idea they carried through. The business grew rapidly from a premium income during the first year on general insurance of about $5,000 to approximately $650,000 in 1937, exclusive of life insurance premiums.

Within a year after it started, the firm moved to the first floor of 815 Fourteenth street northwest, then to 1214 New York avenue northwest, and then to a few rooms in the Woodward Building, where it is still located, occupying an entire front of the third floor.

Morris Simon.

It became apparent to the firm that in order to give complete service, a life insurance department, supervised by an expert, was essential. In 1919 Leopold V. Freudberg, one of the city's largest producers, who has been in the "million-dollar class" every year for the past nine, became associated with the firm and has since been in charge of its life underwriting.

The success of the firm has been due in a great measure to its selec-

C. & P. Tel. Co. February Net Under Year Ago

Operating revenues of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for the month of February, 1938, amounted to $902,370 and operating expenses were $648,407 for the same period, according to a statement of Charles A. Robinson, general manager of the company.

In February a year ago, operating revenues were $890,690 and operating expenses were $628,080, which, in comparison with the same month in 1938, shows that, while operating revenues increased $11,680, operating expenses, primarily due to wage increases, had increased $20,327. Taxes for the month amounted to $85,510 and interest deductions were $31,448, resulting in a balance before dividend for February, 1938, of $141,778, as compared with $163,805 a year ago.

The cost of telephone plant in service at the end of February, 1938, was $42,801,562. There were 228,930 telephones in service on February 28, 1938, which was an increase of 922 over the previous month. Telephone users in Washington made 23,872,000 calls during the month, or an increase of 818,000 calls over February, 1937.

Bank Clearings Hit 3-Year Low

Total for 22 Leading Cities Is 21.8 Per Cent Below Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 31.—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities for the week ended March 30 hit the lowest level in more than three years and registered the twentieth consecutive decline from the comparable 1937 week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

tion of efficient personnel for various key positions and retention of such service. Joseph E. Casey, who began as an office boy 28 years ago, is now in charge of the engineering and inspection department. Lester R. Strasburger, who started as a solicitor 27 years ago, is in charge of the general claim department and his assistant, Julian H. Reis, has been with the firm for 14 years. Carl M. Weigle came to the firm 17 years ago as an accountant and today is in charge of the underwriting department. William E. Cumberland, who began as secretary to Mr. Simon 15 years ago, is now in charge of fidelity, jewelers block, personal effects and all jewelry claims. George E. Bond, who started as a bookkeeper 14 years ago, is now holding the position of comptroller.

Fiftieth Anniversary.

The firm of Alexander K. Phillips, Inc., announces its fiftieth anniversary in the general insurance business. Since 1888, it has represented some of the oldest and strongest domestic and foreign companies, writing and placing all forms of insurance nationally and worldwide. The old and well-known fire insurance companies for which the firm is general agent have for more than a century afforded protection to their many policyholders.

Firm officers are: Alexander K. Phillips, president; Douglas R. Phillips, vice president, and Mrs. J. W. Lawler, secretary. President Phillips is secretary of the Potomac Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia, and recently celebrated his fortieth anniversary as an executive of that company. The directors recognized officially his long service with the Potomac Co. at that time.

Underwriters' Luncheon.

Next Tuesday, the D. C. Life Underwriters Association will hold its monthly luncheon at the Willard Hotel. The speaker will be Hamilton R. Disston, vice president, L. H. Gilmer Co., Philadelphia, one of the world's largest belting manufacturers. His subject will be "Sell America First." Mr. Disston is known through the East as an able speaker, having appeared before Rotary clubs, trade associations, and real estate boards. He is also a lecturer, having been employed by various manufacturing concerns to address executive and sales groups. A large attendance is expected at the meeting.

Lincoln Bank 49 Years Old.

Lincoln National Bank passed another birthday, this week the forty-ninth, in its successful existence. Floyd E. Davis is president of this institution, deposits of which amount to $10,136,000, and total resources, to $11,392,000. Executive Vice President Albert S. Gatley and Director W. McK. Stowell were members of the original board.

Bowling Winners.

Winfield S. Dampier, Bank of Commerce and Savings, was winner of Class A honors in the recent annual Bowling Tournament of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking. V. C. Rhodes, Liberty National Bank, won the Class B event, and the doubles were won by Mr. Dampier and William T. Bobb, Bank of Commerce and Savings. Miss Helen H. Orme, Washington Loan & Trust Co., won first high set in the ladies' division, and Mrs. Margaret Fischer, Hamilton National Bank, was runner-up. Raymond L. Jones, National Metropolitan Bank, handled all arrangements.

Prince Georges Bank.

Directors of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. yesterday declared a 3 per cent dividend, payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 26. The previous dividend, 2½ per cent, was paid October 1, 1937.

Bob Burns Says—

I think one of the reasons why lawlessness is allowed to get such a head start over in this country is because we're too busy to concern ourselves with anything that affects us only indirectly. We don't give it any thought until it actually hits home.

It's like the time a young lawyer down home went to my uncle and says "Mr. Hink, I came to you to find out if I can depend upon your supporting me."

Uncle Hink says "Well now—that depends a whole lot on whether you are running for office or if you are figuring on marryin' my daughter."

Does America Favor Third Term For Roosevelt?

The President has never indicated that he wants a third term, but if he should change his mind and break the tradition—where would he stand? Last year six Democratic Governors called on President Roosevelt to make the race. The Gallup Poll has just completed a survey on public opinion to learn if America favors a third term for FDR. What is the answer?

Capes... cap the fashion climax!

You can't escape the cape. It's sweeping the fashion scene. And of course you can wear it. Let it swirl from the shoulders of your dress. Wear a cape in wool cut like the famous blue cape of the Italian army officers. Take your cape plain or flourish our new pencil stripes. If you're young, it's the youngest fashion you can find. If you're a matron, you'll find it dignified and romantic at the same time. And, of course, our Fashion Floor is cutting all kinds of capers over capes—with a type for every woman at a price to please every pocketbook.
